SHORT TALKS

The newest models in spring suits are both two and three-piece.

In coats there seems to be a leaning toward shorter lengths, some being only 26 and 27 inches long. How these shorter coats will take is problematical, as the longer ones are much more adapted for the hipless style than are the 26-inch coats.

In the dressier coats, there is a very marked tendency to fasten over at the left side.

In the three-piece suit the most noticeable point is the lowering of the waist line, which has been mentioned in this "Talk." The high Empire waist line is evidently on the wane; nearly all have the normal line, some with graduated belt being somewhat shorter in the back.

At a benefit concert at one of our large hotels, a gown of old rose cashmere, worn by a most graceful woman, is well worthy of mention.

The long skirt hung straight from a round waist line, belted with silk of the same shade. It opened at one side to the belt, with the edges close together. Near the hem they fell apart a little, showing a pleated panel of self-toned embroidery. To the height of the knees on each edge was a row of large, silk-covered buttons. Embroidery was oddly arranged about the armholes, and, marked in a great motif, the front of the corsage, low cut over a guimpe of écru tulle, laid over old rose. She wore the oddest possible hat of white straw, coarsely woven in great cords, like a basket. It was trimmed on one side with a great rosette of black grapes, set inside of a circle of green leaves. Under the narrow brim of the pot crown an old rose ribbon band was used.

Another woman wore a costume of tabac brown ribbed cloth, striped inch-wide with black. The stripes were cleverly arranged in straight lines over the hips of the long skirt, meeting in bias fashion under a narrow box-pleat in the back and front. Buttons covered with black satin marked the edges of the pleats near the hem. The half-long coat continued the box-pleat in the back, pressed flatly to the hem. On the body part was much trimming of wide black silk braid, that shaped a bolero, lengthening in front far below the waist. Braided tabs crossed on the bust, closing it.

The tailored suits of voiles and other like materials which proved such a delight during the sultry summer days will happily be the vogue again.

We describe a tailored costume of coarse wood-colored tulle. The circular skirt has three flat bias cloth bands at the foot, set wide apart; between each one runs a curling line of narrow silk braid. Bias cloth bands stripe the long coat; each stripe ends in a little loop; the sleeves, finished in the same manner, falling over the hand like a fringe. The chemisette is of large, dotted, wood-colored tulle, with a cravat of black silk, having long, narrow, tasselled ends.

Those who have lived through and battled with the peculiar climatic changes of a New York winter realize in a dull way they lack vigor, elasticity; to embody the feeling in one word, they are "tired." They need building up—look in vain for a tonic that is not medicine. To those we tell of the Pleasant Valley Wine, the pure juice of the grape. If you have never travelled through the beautiful Mohawk Valley, you must certainly give yourself the pleasure of visiting the home of "The Pleasant Valley Wine." Look over the beautiful vineyard with the vines bending with the bunches of grapes. With the sun shining upon them, bringing out the exquisite red and purple, an artist need not leave his country for inspiration. For a table wine for family or hotel, it is unequalled, whilst the "tired" christen it "The wine of the convalescent."

BUSY WOMEN

From the standpoint of one who knows, we women are naturally busy—busy as bees or boys. Since Eve suggested the forbidden apple to Adam, women have always been busy; busy in the right way or busy in the wrong way; but always busy. As this is not the millennium when we shall be all of one Mind, we cannot be busy about the same thing. There are, of course, a goodly number of occupations with which we may fill in the days, many more than there were in the "good old times," which, by the way, we don't hear talked about any more, principally because the ones who lived in them have passed on, and there is no one to talk.

Domestic life once kept women busy. Housekeeping was a more earnest business in the past than it is now. Possibly it was more interesting as well as absorbing by reason of the creative element such as the spinning and weaving and other home manufactures. The family was large, too, and every one in the home was busy; that was the saving element.

Leaping over a few centuries with the ease of the historian, we find the home a totally different affair, differently conducted. You can put the home into a van, and move it over to China if you want to; there are such splendid facilities for transporting the home. In the up-to-date home all you have to do is to press the button, and the difficulties of living are all overcome. You can cook your dinner without fuel, or, better yet, it cooks itself. The bread and plain sewing are done by machinery outside the home. You can no longer fashion your gowns or hats, for that is the work of the artist.

If you do not look so well as other women, your husband makes odious comparisons. He likes you best when you are well groomed, and when you compare favorably with women he sees and whose clothes he notices. He likes your hands to be white like a lady's hand, and he doesn't care for a lot of children to make a slave of you.

But in the meantime, while you are trying to please him, you must keep busy in order to be happy.

Maybe you play cards; but all women do not like to play cards. Maybe you are fond of dress and the theatre; but all women are not. Maybe you are interested in the fine arts; but all women do not find them interesting. You may be literary; but you can't read all the time. Maybe you are so much in earnest that none of the feminine diversions within the limits of "woman's sphere" appeal to you. You may give your forces to charity work, or you may go into clubs for the sake of the impersonal intercourse you find there. In the club the business woman finds something that appeals to her, and she is welcomed there. The professional woman goes to the club for her diversion, for like the business woman she is busy enough in her daily life to fill her requirements. The women of the professions meet with the home women and they all think thoughts together. Here trouble brews. Politics. It's bound to come.

It has never been man's idea that woman shall be strenuous outside her own "sphere."

As woman has found that certain wrongs cannot be righted without legislation, then she has demanded the ballot. She has ideas about temperance and purity. She is working for social betterment. Oh, she's busy. Make no mistake. No spinning, no sewing machine, no babies, and with foreign missions less absorbing than they once were, what pray are the women to do—the real earnest women with forces, ideas and time!

Women who are not in business, who do not care for society with its vapidness and insincerity and its time-wasting diversions, who have the heart to understand, the wisdom to advise, and the slipper to correct—the times have made her, gentlemen; and now the times must stand by her. A nation is just as civilized as its women.

hibition of Photographs of Southwestern Indian scenes by Frederick Monsen. Hours: 5 to 6 and 8 to 9.30 p. m. (to April 5). Fred-

American Painters" (to April 7). Lawyer's Title Insurance and Trust Company—160 Broadway.
Loan exhibition of maps and views of old New York, several dating as early as the seventeenth century. Among the earliest views is a French print, dated 1672, representing New Amsterdam as being washed by the waters of the "Mer du Nort," with a fine "Hotel de Ville," a big "Amiraute" building, and a "Place de la Bourse"; "Le Chateau de Nassau" over the north of the city, with "Quebec" on a high hill outside the walls on one side and high hills on the other, on which stands the gallows, "La Justice," with two victims pendant. Attention is called to a beautiful lithograph, as delicate as a fine pencil drawing, of about the date of the middle nineteenth century. This gives a panoramic view of North America. There are also views of Wall Street from Trinity Church, showing Brooklyn Heights. Hours: from 2 to 4 p. m. (to April 10). Hispanic Society—156th st., west of the public unless stated, when the ad-

GOD IN THE SCHOOLS

The Board of Education of Greenwich, Conn., has incorporated a new study into its school curriculum. The name of the branch is Humane Ethics. The American Humane Educational Society that numbers three millions of members and has headquarters in Boston must now accord the olive branch to Greenwich, Conn., for in the fact that the study has been duly adopted by the public schools in that town, Greenwich stands alone. The children are to be taught—not merely advised, but taught—to be kind first to all harmless creatures; then later to be kind to each other; and finally kind to the home folks. This is really a very great idea, although on the face of it, it seems too simple to talk about. This new study is compulsory rather than elective. There is said to be a law which through right thought and action works for harmony, and by means of this law the culture which is attained in higher education is gained by a short cut, even at the expense of some of the technical branches—maybe a dead language or two forfeited, or possibly logarithms omitted to give Humane Ethics a chance.

With no text-book at hand, when the teacher casts about to discover how kindness is to be taught in the school room there are difficulties mountain high to overcome. But all things are possible. Temperance is taught in the public schools; the dumb learn to speak; classes in manual training prove what can be done by the artisan teacher; so there must also be some way in which kindness may be taught. No mere layman like myself—unfamiliar with even the commonplace, every-day sciences—could be expected to throw light on kindness as a science. Any one can see how bad temper must be denied, and how the Golden Rule must apply itself to thought and action.

Some of us can remember when the Bible was turned out of the public schools. Previous to that we repeated the Lord's Prayer at the opening of school in the morning, and the schoolmaster read a chapter in the Bible. But this was followed eventually by an uprising of taxpayers, who said they wouldn't have their children learning things about God—things that would only have to be unlearned at home. So God was turned out of the public schools as much as it was possible, considering the fact that God is everywhere, and the children were taught the three R's and every one was content.

Such a long-suffering, patient and merciful Heavenly Father!

Now how insidiously is the Christian element creeping into education. It must come very cautiously, so that no taxpayer will suspect the meaning of it. It may be that the first lesson treats of the necessities of Mother Hubbard's dog in the familiar nursery rhyme. This must always be attended by a throb of comparison in a six-year-old heart. Compassion. That is it. This is the thing to be developed. Compassion will develop sincerity, unselfishness, consideration, loyalty, courtesy, honor and a dozen different virtues that have only a technical significance when not studied till in an advanced grade, when it is too late.

Humane education means character building. It means God in the public schools. But don't say it aloud. Some one might object. Just as long as it means persuading the young idea that birds better not be killed; that cats better not be treed and stoned; that dogs better not have tin cans tied to their tails; that horses better not have their ribs in evidence, and be cruelly beaten, and have their tails docked—why, what harm?

Humane education means something about the Spirit; and Spirit is God!

SHORT TALKS

Chiffon veils over a foundation of Russian net are the latest novelty, and they are very smart in the grenadine bordered styles and the new light shades.

The magpies in two-toned effects are very becoming to some styles of faces.

The square, chiffon-bordered veils in mole, rose, brown, blue, wistaria, etc., are in high favor.

The Russian nets in black novelty meshes continue popular.

White net waists are made so that they can be washed as readily as a lingerie waist.

In muslin underwear the popularity of the combination under-garment remains the same and several novelties are shown.

For example, a two-piece garment, consisting of corset cover and drawers in different styles of cut.

The drawers are circular in shape, or mounted on a deep yoke, or cut with a great many darts. But in all cases they must give the flat hip effect, which is still considered essential by well dressed women.

The corset cover and short skirt combination are sometimes cut in one piece, in the form of a Princess, and the underskirt is made with but very little fullness around the knees. Another style, the petticoat is cut circular.

A combination very much favored is the tight-fitting corset cover and long skirt, which is cut in one piece and fitted at the waist line. These are shown in very simple effects, as well as elaborately trimmed.

There is a wonderful display of dainty white skirts this season, which is due to the fact that washable dresses will be extensively worn.

The handsomest of these have hand-embroidered flounces, inset with lace, but the prices are far beyond the average purchaser.

Slips to be worn under lingerie gowns and waists are beautifully fashioned. The material employed is mull, lawn, taffeta, messaline and china silk, finished with lace around the neck, sleeves, and the flounces edging the skirt.

Not in many years has such general use been made of embroideries on summer costumes. Openwork patterns particularly are a feature of the season.

All-over embroideries are employed for jackets, waists and the upper part of the costume.

The embroidery fad has also spread to millinery for the lingerie hats.

The coats of embroidery are equally as fashionable as those of lace.

Trimming laces in spangled, beaded and jeweled effects, in semi-precious and imitation stones, are in greater request than they have been for years. All the colors of the rainbow and many colors never seen in any rainbow are used in the new metallic laces.

A scarf is now a necessary accessory to a fashionable woman's toilet.

The new scarfs are of the finest quality of chiffon, and of crepe de chine in plain goods and gold-embroidered designs. They come in lengths avering three yards and one yard in width, finished with deep silk fringe. Scarfs of black tulle for evening wear are also fashionable.

The extensive use of jet buttons is very marked. They are being utilized on coats, dresses and suits in both light and dark colors.

Separate lace coats with or without linings in black and white will be in demand later in the season.

In handbags, the latest novelty are those of suede leather in all the popular shades and colors, extremely flat, and mounted on thin gold frames. The decorative part is silk fringe. The fringe is attached by hand, being inserted in punched holes along the entire sides and bottom of the bag. The punched eyes or holes are arranged as near to the edge of the leather and as close together as possible, and the fringe consists merely of loose strands of silk floss, loop-knotted into the holes. POINTS OF INTEREST

Aldrich Court—41 Broadway. This formed the site of the first habitation of white men on Manhattan Island; was also the site of the second residence of Washington. Tablet: "This tablet marks the site of the first habitation of white men on the Island of Manhattan. Adrian Block, Commander of the Tiger, erected here four houses or huts, November, 1613. He built the Restless, the first vessel made by Europeans in this country. The Restless was launched in the spring of 1614. This tablet is placed here by the Holland Society of New York, September, 1890."

Apthorpe Mansion—Formerly located at the corner of Ninth (or Columbus) ave. and 91st st. It was here where George Washington remained during his evacuation of New York, and after it was occupied by Lord Howe.

Astor House—Broadway, Barclay and Vesey streets. One of the oldest hotels in New York City, founded by John Jacob Astor, and is noted as having been the headquarters of some of the most prominent men of the age. The property on which this hotel is located is said to be more valuable per square foot than any other of equal dimensions on the Island of Manhattan.

Barge Office—In Battery Park. This was originally the landing place of cabin passengers from ocean steamers, and was for a time used as an emigrant station. Now occupied by customs inspectors.

Block House—Located in Central Park. Built by the Americans, but later improved and occupied by the English during the Revolution.

Boreel Building—115 B'way. This site was formerly occupied by the residence of Lieutenant-Governor James DeLancey; after his death it was turned into a public house, known under a number of names, the most famous being "Burns' Coffee House." It was here the non-importation act was signed, also Washington's inaugural ball was held in the so-called "great room." During the year 1793 the building was torn down and a "City Hotel" was erected by a number of New York merchants. Tablet: "The site of the old historical DeLancey House, afterward the 'City Hotel.' The tavern located here had various proprietors, by whose names it was successively called, being, among others, known as 'The Province Arms,' 'The City Arms,' and 'Burns' Coffee House or Tavern.' It was here that the celebrated non-importation agreement in opposition to the 'Stamp Act' was signed October 31, 1765. Erected by the Holland Society of New York, March, 1890."

Bowery—Located from Chatham Square to junction of Third and Fourth avenues. In the early Dutch days this was a lane running along the farms or "Bouweries," on the northern outskirts of the city; from this the name was taken. On and near this thoroughfare the notorious dives of Owen Gagen and Harry Hill were located.

Bread Line—Originated by Fleischmann, the celebrated baker, now deceased, who nightly, between the hours of 11 to 12, gives to hundreds of homeless men of this city the surplus breads. This custom, which was started during the life of the philanthropist, is still carried on.

Bridge of Sighs—Connects the Tombs Prison with the Criminal Court Building at Centre and Franklin streets, and derives its name from the fact that prisoners undergoing trial for crimes are taken over this bridge from the Tombs to the Criminal Court Building. On particular occasions when some especially notorious case is being tried the street is crowded with curious people watching for the going of the prisoner to and fro.

Carnegie Hall—57th st. and Seventh ave. Founded by Mr. Andrew Carnegie. Cost over $1,250,000. Formal opening on May 5th, 1891. One of the finest edifices in the world for concerts, lectures, conventions, etc.

Church of the Messiah—Park ave. and 34th st. This site once formed the estate of Robert Murray, the "Quaker Merchant of the Revolution," and was called "Inclenberg," and became historic through the diplomacy of Mrs. Murray in detaining the British officers, Clinton, Howe and Cornwallis, while Putnam and his troops, on their retreat to Harlem, guided by Aaron Burr, passed within a mile of the house.

Coenties Slip—Between Pearl street and the river, above Broad street, and received its name in honor of an influential Dutch shoemaker, whose shop once occupied a corner in this locality; here also stood the old Dutch City Hall, and is now called Jeannette Park, after the ship "Jeannette," sent to the Arctic regions by the "New York Herald."

Cotton Exchange—Located in Hanover Square. This is a large building of yellow brick, with stone facings and it is estimated that it cost $1,000,000. Spot sales of more than five hundred thousand bales of cotton are made during the year. On this site, November 8th, 1725, the first newspaper was printed in New York, and called the "New York Gazette." Tablet: Cotton Exchange—On this site William Bradford, appointed public printer, April 10th, A. D., 1693, issued, November 8th, 1725, "The New York Gazette," the first newspaper printed in New York. Erected by the New York Historical Society, April 10th, A. D.,

1893, in commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the introduction of printing in New York.

East River—This follows the eastern boundary of the city and separates it from Long Island. Along its shores from Coenties Slip to Maiden Lane may be seen many interesting sights in connection with New York's great shipping industry.

First Presbyterian Church—Fifth ave. and 12th st. This church was founded in 1717 and was located in Wall Street. It was the first Presbyterian church in America and it was here that John Watts, the father of Presbyterianism, presided.

Fort Amsterdam—This site is now occupied by the new Custom House Building, and another portion occupied by the Cunard Building, 29 Broadway. Tablet: "The site of Fort Amsterdam, built in 1626. Within the fortifications was erected the first substantial church edifice on the Island of Manhattan. In 1787 the fort was demolished and the Government House built upon this site. This tablet is placed here by the Holland Society of New York, September, 1890."

Governor's Island—Is situated in the Bay, about one thousand yards from the Battery; it covers an area of over sixty-five acres and is used by the United States Government as a military station. Fort Columbus is located near the centre of the island and Castle William, a circular fort of sandstone, built in the year 1811, overlooks the Bay on the western side. From here the "sunset gun" is fired daily.

Grace Church—Broadway and 10th st. The first church building was located at Broadway and Rector st., the present one having been erected in 1845. Back of the church on Fourth ave. is the Grace Memorial Home, erected by Levi P. Morton in memory of his wife. Here young children are cared for during the hours their mothers are at work. Grace Chapel, on East 14th st., also belongs to this parish.

Gramercy Park—Located between Third and Fourth aves., 20th and 21st sts.; covers an area of about $1\frac{1}{2}$ acres, set aside by S. B. Ruggles as a place of recreation for residents of this neighborhood. It is not open to the general public. Fronting this park is the "Players' Club," and the former residence of the late Samuel J. Tilden. Tablet: Gramercy Park—Gramercy Park, founded by Samuel B. Ruggles, 1831, commemorated by this tablet imbedded in the Gramercy farm by John Ruggles Strong, 1875.

Hall of Fame—Located in the Bronx, on the Harlem River. During the year 1900 the New York University received a gift of $100,000 for establishing a Hall of Fame to commemorate the names of preeminent Americans. The Ambulatory, or stone colonnade half encircling the Memorial Library of the University was devoted for this purpose, and tablets are to be placed in it on which 150 names will be inscribed. Fifty of these names were selected in 1900 by a committee of 100 distinguished men, and five more every five years during the next century. Only 29 names received the required 51 votes from the committee in 1900 and the rest of the first 50 were selected in 1905. It can be reached by subway to Kingsbridge, and then a short walk across the Harlem River or by the Putnam Railroad, of the New York Central, from 155th st. and Eighth ave. to the University Heights Station. The Hall of Fame is situated on the New York University site, on University Heights. From it can be seen Washington Bridge, Highbridge, Manhattan on the south, the Hudson and the Palisades to the west, Kingsbridge, Fordham Heights and Yonkers to the north and views of the Bronx to the east. Just below lies the Harlem River.

Metropolitan Opera House—Broadway, between 39th and 40th sts. In September, 1892, the interior was destroyed by fire, and rebuilt during the following year. Tablet: Broadway, between Forty-third and Forty-fourth streets—General George Washington and General Israel Putnam met near this spot during the movement of the American Army, September 15th, 1776, the day before the Battle of Harlem.

Mercantile Library—Astor Place. Founded in 1820. This is the principal circulating library in the city; was first located at 49 Fulton street and afterward moved to Clinton Hall, corner Nassau and Beekman streets, where it remained until transferred to the Astor Place Opera House, which was renamed the new Clinton Hall. This building was demolished in 1890, and the present building erected on its site.

Millionaires' Row—The district on Fifth ave. from 49th st., containing many of the residences of well known millionaires: Fifth ave., 513—Mr. O. H. P. Belmont. Fifth ave., 579—Miss Helen M. Gould. Fifth ave., 634—Mr. D. O. Mills. Fifth ave., 636—Mr. John R. Drexel. Fifth ave., 640—Mr. Geo. Vanderbilt. Fifth ave., 660—Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt. Fifth ave., 680—Dr. Seward Webb. Morningside Park—Beginning a short distance from the northwest corner of Central Park at 110th st., and extends northward to 123d street; it contains about 32 acres.

National Academy of Design—Amsterdam ave. and 110th st. Founded in 1826, and is considered the foremost art institution in this country. Open to the public on Sundays, free.

New York Historical Society—Second ave. and 11th st. This building contains a large and valuable collection of historical curiosities. The society was organized in 1804 for the collection and preservation of everything relating to the natural, civil and ecclesiastical history of the United States in general and New York in particular.

Post Office (General)—Located at the Junction of Broadway and Park Row. Open all hours of the day and night, week days, and from 9 to 11 a. m. on Sundays. Tablet: Post Office Building—On the common of the City of New York, near where this building now stands, there stood, from 1766 to 1776, a liberty pole, erected to commemorate the repeal of the stamp act; it was repeatedly destroyed by the violence of the Tories, and as repeatedly replaced by the Sons of Liberty, who organized a constant watch and guard. In its defence the first martyr blood of the American Revolution was shed, on January 18th, 1770.—A. D., 1897, erected by the Mary

Washington Colonial Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Residence of Charles M. Schwab—Riverside Drive and 73d st. This is said to be the handsomest and costliest residence in this country; the material used in construction was imported from Germany and other foreign countries. The estimated cost of the building, furnishings and property is estimated at about eight millions. It is said that at the death of Mr. and Mrs. Schwab this property will revert to this city to be used as a museum.

St. Mark's Church—Located at Second ave. and Tenth st. One of the oldest churches in this city; its site was formerly a part of the farm of Petrus Stuyvesant, the last Dutch Governor of New Amsterdam, whose remains rest in a tomb under the edifice. The present church is the second, the first having been erected in 1826. It was from the graveyard surrounding this church the body of A. T. Stewart, the merchant prince, was stolen, over twenty years ago. Tablet, St. Mark's Church: In this vault lies buried Petrus Stuyvesant, late Captain General and Governor-in-Chief of Amsterdam, in New Netherland, now called New York and the Dutch West India Islands. Died in A. D., 1672. Aged 80.

West Washington Market—Located at the foot of West 12th st., but was formerly extending along West st., on the river side to the market. It is here that all early fruits and vegetables from Bermuda Islands are received, and it has been estimated that during the peach season from 50,000 to 100,000 baskets are received daily.

Windsor Arcade—571 Fifth ave. This was the site of the Windsor Hotel which was destroyed by fire March 17, 1899, at which about fifty lives were lost.

ART NOTES

Metropolitan Museum of Art—82d st. and Fifth ave. Free (except Monday and Friday). Hours: 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.; Saturday, 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.; Sunday, 1 to 5.30 p. m. Principal Accessions: Two pictures, the gift of Mr. George A. Hearn, "A Waterfall," by J. H. Twachtman, and "The Pipe Dance," by Ralph Albert Blakelock. The latter is a large landscape and shows a circle of Indians dancing hand-in-hand on a river bank, from which sturdy trees silhouette themselves against a sunset sky. Gold and a rich juicy brown are prevailing colors and the surface is of that Monticelli-like waxiness of which the painter was so fond. "The Indian Encampment," the work of the same artist, was given to the Museum by Mr. Hearn in 1906. Mr. George A. Hearn's gift of thirty-eight paintings and over $126,000, the income from which is to be used for the purchase of paintings "by persons now living, who are, or may be at the time of the purchase, citizens of the United States," was made in January, 1906. The additions to the collections out of the income from the Fund for 1908 are seven paintings, making a total of sixteen pictures which this important benefaction has provided in three years.

NEWYORKITIS

Long after Nat Goodwin is dead and gone there will be some one to quote him as saying: "There is just one place to live; when you are not in New York you only camp out." Such is the power of an epigram to immortalize a name!

Who shall say just what this magnet is that attracts and holds the sons and daughters of father Knickerbocker; that after an absence draws you back even as the scenes of your childhood lure you to the old familiar home. New York is least of all a city of homes. Home here is but a place to go to, to get ready to go some place else. It cannot be the lure of any particular neighborhood that attracts you. One street is about as good as another, provided it is convenient to a way of getting away from it, and getting back there when all the other places are closed. The streets themselves change like the pictures in a kaleidoscope. A month after you move out the entire block may disappear, and a skyscraper go up in its place, and the numbers of the houses be wiped off the map. It is not any special neighborhood that attracts you.

There is no attraction in what you see from your windows, for the last thing you think to do in New York is to look out of the window. As you drape your curtains so they remain undisturbed. Only in the tenements do householders look out of the window—and there they hang out to see what the neighbors are doing.

It is not the neighbors that attract you in New York, for here you have no neighbors. There is no one from whom to borrow a drawing of tea, or a dash of vanilla in an emergency; no one to call and inquire when you are sick; hardly any one to come to your funerals; no one to criticize your clothes-line; no one to care about your family skeleton, nor whether your windows are clean or not; no one to gossip about you; no one to care whether you are rich or poor; whether you are dead or alive as for that matter. It's not neighbors that attract.

What is the unknown quantity in the air that acts as a reception committee to greet you when you return after an absence? You know, yourself, how the very lamp-posts look glad you are back; and how the policeman who helps you across the street seems to know you've been away; and how Mercury glitters at you; and how the shopping district hustles along to the tune playing in your heart; and how the windows are all decorated in your honor; and how the violet vender spots you in a minute, and how the cabby remembers you, and how the subway looks like a festival; and how the very flagstones grow soft as velvet to your homesick soles; and in the evening—ah, there you have it—there you get the proof of how glad New York is that you are back—the lights and the lights and the lights, brighter than noonday, and like fairy land. So many places expecting you; all doors swinging wide with hospitality and you tip the waiter at once because he is glad to see you back. Talk about the old oaken bucket! Why, the sentiment doesn't compare.

And then you order what you want to eat. Of course there's no place like New York when it comes to ordering. Now at last you begin to get warm in your guessing!

It's the impersonal element that you like in New York. You can be poor and no one cares. You can buy a seat in the peanut gallery at the Grand Opera, and you can go to the art exhibitions, and recitals, and moving picture shows, and openings, and ride on the top of the omnibus, and go to the Turkish bath, and you can press buttons for messengers, and you can go to first nights, and you can get the best of everything from shoes to Huyler's, and you can spend your money for what you want without a carping conscience to coerce you. These are only a few!

SHORT TALKS

It is an established fact that for practical and becoming millinery, such as appeals to the smartly gowned American woman, New York milliners have no equal.

The new sailors of large, medium height flat crowns and rather wide brims, slightly mushroomed and made of all the new season's braids, will undoubtedly meet with favor a little later. The huge bow trimming across the back promises to have great vogue.

Flowered turbans, made entirely of violets, miniature roses and other small flowers, have struck the popular fancy.

Cordays and mushrooms in heavy Jap braids draped with foulards and similar materials, and printed with immense polka-dots, are smart for outing wear.

In dress hats, all of the finer qualities and weaves of straw braids are employed.

The extremely light Ramie straw braids, in widths as wide as possible to get, will be popular. What especially recommends this braid is its feather weight. There is nothing in the straw braid line so extremely light as this material.

One would hardly think of using patent leather for hat trimming, but such is the case, as shown on a red chip braid with huge black patent leather bow, edged with red silk, placed directly in front, the long loops reaching almost around the crown.

One of the new pokes is flat in front, trimmed with wide, black velvet ribbon with large bows directly across the front of the crown. A small cluster of cherries is gracefully posed on the drooping brim.

Whilst fruit and flowers have held their own in millinery, they must look to their laurels, for vegetables have now been introduced. There is nothing more effective for summer millinery than the many beautiful and delicately colored and tinted flowers and fruit, such as the natural looking cherries, small berries and grapes. But when it comes to using oranges, lemons and apples, large strawberries and vegetables, such as gigantic lima beans, carrots, radishes and cucumbers, it is certainly making a burlesque of millinery.

It goes without saying that trimmings of this character will be shown only by the more ordinary millinery shops.

The cheaper the hat the more decided and conspicuous the style. And it is well to note the higher class hats are of a different model entirely.

As a natural reaction from the long vogue in colors, the black hat will be the leader with high-class milliners.

A new feature in millinery is the employment of black velvet ribbon.

If one is asked, "What styles are to be worn this season?" the honest answer is, "All things—Middle Ages, the Louis, the Empire, the dress of three years ago, and the skimmed skirt of last winter."

The general rule for skirts is, they are fuller almost without exception. The increased fulness is in the top of the skirt, the lower portions still falling rather close, though not scant. The skirts are gathered or pleated into the belt, the skirt portion of the long waist, or the deep skirt yoke. Where gathered, the fulness extends only part way around.

Pleats are grouped front and back, or sides, or in regular large and rather shallow pleats all 'round.

In costumes of sheer fabrics, the skirts are regularly pleated into the belt, in the style in vogue some three years ago.

The street skirts clear the ground, one to two inches, or have a slight train. Afternoon and visiting costumes have the all-around skirt not so long as that of last season.

"A FOOL THERE WAS"—AT THE LIBERTY

The play is an intense and grippingly dramatic portrayal of a phase of life which is peculiar to no particular country, and is as old as time itself. It reverses the customary triangle—two men and a woman—and gathers its force from the struggle of two women for a man. The Hon. John Schuyler is a big man in New York life; a big man financially, socially and diplomatically. He has been ordered to Europe on an important diplomatic mission, and the opening of the play has its scene in his country home with his wife, his seven-year-old daughter, Muriel, a bosom friend, Tom, and his wife's sister, Jean. The second scene of the first act shows the deck of an ocean liner about to sail. Just before John Schuyler arrives, and before his wife and daughter come to see him off, a young man—Parmalee by name—shoots himself dead at the feet of a mysterious woman, who is a passenger on the outgoing liner. This woman is the Vampire of the piece; a tall, sinuous, fascinating creature, who has already brought ruin to two other foolish admirers, and only laughs when young Parmalee spatters his brains on the deck. As the ship is sailing, John Schuyler notices her, and it is apparent that he is more than ordinarily interested.

The European mission is to take only five weeks, but in the first scene of the second act the weeks have lengthened into months, and Schuyler's friends, his wife and little daughter, are uneasy over his prolonged absence. They find out eventually that he is living abroad with the fair passenger, the Vampire, who has found nothing but mirth in the death and misery of his three predecessors. Eventually, he returns, but not to his wife and child. He takes up his lodging in the town house, and his constant companion is still the fascinating creature whom we have first seen at the departure of the steamship. The president has asked him to resign his commission; he has been forced to resign from his clubs; his friends have cut him; his home ties, decency and self-respect have gone to the winds; he is ashamed of himself, full of remorse, but still under the thrall of the woman. To forget, he has recourse to drink, and when he is upbraided by his most intimate friend, he can only justify his downfall and his sodden condition by the statement that "When Destiny can't get a man any other way she sends a woman, and the woman gets him."

The wife, heart-broken, does not resort to divorce. She still loves her husband, and believes that she can save him. In this belief she is backed up by her friend, Tom, who loves her dearly, but who is the type of man who stifles his own love to promote the love and happiness of others. The last scene of the third act shows the library of Schuyler's town house, some months after his return to America; the mirrors are broken, dust is everywhere, the servants have left because of Scuyler's violent disposition, his valet has gone and his secretary is about to leave. Schuyler is a broken, weakened drunkard; a man who is trying his best to forget, but who cannot. In this scene the wife and daughter are introduced. They have come to get the husband and father. With the help of the friend, they have instilled enough confidence into his weakened mentality to make him agree to leave this shattered house and make a final attempt to pull himself up to what he had been. He packs his valise and is about to leave, when the woman—the Vampire—enters for the last time. She tells him that she loathes him—he tells her that he hates her, despises her. He pictures to what depths of degradation he has sunk because of her; her only reply is "Kiss me, my fool," and the last moment of the act sees him struggling between his desire to do what is right and his lust for this creature.

APPELLATE COURT HOUSE OF NEW YORK

The Court House of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court is situated on the northeast corner of Twenty-fifth street and Madison avenue. The cost, including the furnishings, was about $750,000, and was completed in the year 1900. The interior is rich in mural paintings, also marbles, and the exterior is decorated with sculptures. The caryatides, by T. S. Clarke, which support the cornice of the Madison avenue side, represent the Four Seasons; the group above, by Karl Bitter, represents Peace; on the pedestals of the balustrade are the statues of the Great Law-Givers: Alfred, Confucius, Justinian, Manu, Vaivasvata, Zoroaster, St. Louis, Mahomet, Solon, Lycurgus, Moses; at the entrance on Twenty-fifth street are two large seated statues, Force, the pedestal with this inscription thereon, "We must not use force till just laws are defied," also Wisdom, "Every law not based on wisdom is a menace to the state." These statues are the work of F. W. Rucstuhl; the bas-relief of the pediment, by C. H. Niehaus, represents the Triumph of Law over Anarchy; and above this, by C. D. French, is a group symbolizing Justice. On the window pediments are the reclining figures of Morning, Noon, Evening, Night, by M. M. Schwartzott. As you enter the main hall has a wainscoting and pilasters of Sienna marble, with bronze gold capitals. Paintings fill the frieze spaces, and the ceiling is modeled in gold of two shades. The Court Room is also decorated in the same manner. The bench, screen and dais are of dark oak, very handsomely carved. On the stained glass windows of the dome are inscribed the names of the following eminent jurists: Fish, Jay, Butler, Shaw, Webster, Ogden, Choate, Kent, Clinton, Livingston, Hamilton, Marshall, Legare, Story, Pinckney, Taney, Van Buren, O'Connor, Marcy, Spencer. The mural paintings of the two apartments are symbolical, as well as allegorical. The frieze on the north wall facing the entrance, by H. S. Mowbray, represents the Transmission of the Law. This consists of eight groups, as follows: Mosaic, Egyptian, Greek, Roman, Byzantine, Norman, Common Law, and Modern Law, each group illustrating the distinct period that had its influence on our own; each group is united by an allegorical winged figure to represent transmission from one age to another. To the left on the westerly wall the frieze, by W. L. Metcalf, represents Justice; between the entrance doors on the south wall the two lunettes, by C. Y. Young, represent Law and Equity; to the right, on the easterly wall, the frieze, by Robert Reid, represents Justice supported by the guardians of the Law, with sword and fasces. She gives Prosperity and Peace to the Arts and Sciences, holding the symbols of the Law, sword, book and scales; Education follows Peace, teaching the youth, the book being lighted by a lamp held by Religion; Drama follows Prosperity, and Music with harp; on the south wall the subjects are Poetry, Painting, Sculpture, Architecture and Fame. The Court Room is most interesting. The centre panel illustrates Wisdom attended by Learning, Experience, Humility, Love, also Faith, Patience, Doubt, Inspiration. It is intended that the figure of Wisdom personify spiritual wisdom, Love to carry out the sentiment of the figure of Wisdom. There are other panels representing The Power of Law, Justice of the Law, the seals of the City and State. On the wall behind the dais of the Justices the long frieze, by Kenyon Cox, represents the Reign of Law, and other interesting panels are to be enjoyed. Open daily to the public.

SHORT TALKS

The demand for Irish lace is remarkable this season in neckwear, and in particular the Dutch collar.

Lace yokes, sets of collars and cuffs, berthas, bretelles, and even the circular lace borders on table-covers and tray cloths are transformed into Dutch collars.

Another favored style in neckwear is the Irish lace rabat. This is in many new forms, sometimes entirely of lace, and again in combination with hand-wrought handkerchief linen on crêpe.

One of the newest features is the cotton crepe rabat, beautifully hand-embroidered and trimmed with Irish or Cluny lace.

These novelties are intended particularly for wear with the crêpe waists.

A feature of the fashions of the moment is that the collar and jabot do not necessarily match.

The separate waist made entirely of Irish lace will be worn by stylish dressers and will unquestionably be a feature in midsummer styles. They are of course very expensive.

At the present time the interest is centered in embroidered tailor-made linen shirts. These models are found in the high-class shops and are not so expensive at $5 when we take in count the quality of linen and the embroidery which is a perfect simulation of handwork, the designs quite elaborate, extending well over the front of the shirt in scattered designs, also in a running design down the center pleat and on the collar and cuff bands.

High ribbon and feather ruches that fasten tight about the throat are smart for street wear. They are either in the color of a suit or in a contrasting color that matches the hat.

Parasols are of many shapes, and of beautiful yet practical materials. Raffia is the newest fabric for the parasol. Handles are long, made necessary by the high crowns of the hats.

In braiding and embroidery there is an extensive use made of the "rat-tail," a tiny satin cord applied in the manner of soutache.

It was interesting to note a tailor-made garment from Paquin. The ornamentation consisted almost entirely of machine stitching, the stitch being sort of a chain pattern, which resembles the reverse of automatic machine work.

A similar ornamentation was also on cotton dresses. An example is given of white cotton crêpe from Chérut. The ornamentation consisted not only of military motifs and strappings outlined in this chain stitch, but also an elaborate Bulgarian design done in bright colorings, this on white making a brilliant show.

There is quite a revolution in hair-dressing. The latest styles do away entirely with the front pompadour. No more will uncomfortable rolls be required in order that the hair may be extended in front. Where the hair is worn puffed out a bit in front it is only the natural pompadour that is in vogue. The hair is parted either in the centre or a trifle to one side. Then the hair is puffed out over the ears. The back, a mass of puffs and short curls. The new hats require that the greater portion of the hair be massed rather low at the back. When the hair is too thin to puff out naturally at the sides a false piece is used, made of combings. This is sewed to a tape, which fits snugly around the head; then the hair is combed with it in a most natural manner.

A dainty French novelty shown in the shops is a pin cushion in the form of a doll. This doll is ten inches high. The wax face is beautifully tinted and the expression most bewitching.

The figure stands on a round, plush-covered base, but it is the stylish way in which the dolls are dressed and their attitudes that is so fetching; mushroom hats, parasols and Directoire gowns of satin complete a most up-to-date costume.

Thoughts of doubt and fear never accomplish anything, and never can. They always lead to failure. Purpose, energy, power to do, and all strong thoughts cease when doubt and fear creep in.—James Allen.

Goe not halfe-way to meete a coming sorrowe,
Butte thankful bee for blessings of to-day,
And pray that thou mayest blessed bee to-morrowe,
So shalt thou goe with joy upon thy way.

—Adolphus Goss.

WOMAN IN THE INDEX

You only have to go as far as the D's to find all the women indexed. There is one in the B's; three are in the C's; in the D's there is the doll woman; there is the dog woman; there is the doormat woman, domestic woman and devil woman.

A doll woman lost her husband the other day. You won't mind my mentioning the funeral. We all went. We thought he deserved this tribute of respect. He looked very peaceful in his last sleep. He seemed to be taking a needed rest. The doll woman's grief was big and we all felt sorry for her. He was so tired buying hats and gowns and beads for the doll. He thought he liked to do it, and he slaved patiently, but the doll was such a tax that he just naturally lay down and died. He loved to see the doll beautifully dressed. She dressed the doll in a different gown about six times a day, and sometimes she could hardly decide what the doll should wear. She had just had all the doll's things "made over, directoire," and he had seen and admired them all. Of course she wasn't any moral support: she never heard of a moral support. But she kept him hustling to pay the dressmakers and the milliner. He was too busy to know he was tired. You may have noticed him; a pale man, hanging on to a subway strap. As I said before, we all went to the funeral. It seemed decent to go, and he looked released.

The dog woman is another kind. You see her in street cars with a shaggy dog in her arms, or leading one along the street. The train men and hotel men recognize her by her dog basket and call her a dog woman. She never has children. She prefers a dog. It's all right. No harm done. She is just one kind.

The doormat woman makes more trouble probably than any other kind in the index. Every one knows what a doormat is for; to wipe feet on. Some women who are doormats don't like it; others are like a doormat with "Welcome" on it.

They are happiest when they are useful. This kind of a woman is a certain menace to the social betterment of the community. She is one cause of the great problem of intemperance and she is often to blame for sending husbands and sons to destruction. She won't like it much to see this here. There are some men who are doormat developers; wife-beaters without literally beating a woman. There is no specific offered here. This is just one kind of woman indexed in D. It's her own affair. There's no accounting for taste.

The domestic woman is the normal kind. The well-poised, common-sense, normal wife and mother. The kind your mother is. Then there is the devil woman. She doesn't exist in the world where you belong. She breaks up families and steals husbands, and creates considerable chaos and disorganization. This is no place for her here, only that she is indexed.

In the C's are the club woman, the woman of the cloister, and the charity woman. The Salvation Army lassie belongs under the last head; also the missionary and the nurse, for the same sentiment inspires all. The club woman is a development. Through her club she is learning to preside over large assemblies, and she isn't nearly done with her developing. When all the D's come into the club woman's class there will not be so many indiosyncracies apparent in doll women, dog women, and doormat women.

Indexed in the B's is the business woman. She too is a development. Once upon a time the church fair was her only enterprise. Professional or commercial, business was once a necessity, but now it is a diversion. HARRYOT HOLT DEY.

Idleness is a constant sin, and labor is a duty. Idleness is the devil's home for temptation, and for unprofitable, distracting musings; while labor profiteth others and ourselves.—Baxter.

THE FARMER'S WIFE

A subject of such a rural character as the one in hand does not properly belong to the urban district that is represented by DAILY ATTRACTIONS IN NEW YORK, but since that able contemporary, "The Outlook," devoted nearly half its issue of April 10th to the farm and the farmer, forgetting the patient silent partner, the farmer's wife, there is thus a reason if not an excuse for taking up her cause here.

The farmer's wife is not expecting to be noticed. She is used to being overlooked. Moses left her out of the Fourth Commandment: "Thou and thy son and thy daughter, thy man-servant and thy maid-servant, thy cattle and the stranger that is within thy gates"—and who, pray, is to prepare the dinner? No use to enlarge upon the situation. Any one who has stopped over night on the farm knows how it is. Moses knew.

There are but few triumphs that come the way of the farmer's wife. To be sure, she institutes races with the lark. The lark long ago surrendered to her the palm. Old Sol himself waits for her to rise before he perks up his golden head above the eastern horizon. She is one of the few people who appreciates his matutinal glories. He loves her for her energy. In the summer time he pours his wealth of sunlight in at her kitchen door, helps her with the garden and the washing, and approves of her in a thousand ways. Steady and reliable as he is, he is not more so than the farmer's wife. One of her diversions is the county fair, and still another is summer company. The former swells her heart with modest triumph as she sees the blue ribbon tied to her rolls of yellow butter. As for the summer company—it's nearing summer-company-time now.

The summer company swoops down upon her from town, bringing their trunks that stand on end and their city perfume and sachet powder, and uses her best room every day. She will be surprised this year when she sees their millinery and their Directoire gowns. The suits and trappings they bring from the city fill this modest woman with cordial awe. (She wears a sunbonnet herself. The wife that was left out of the Fourth Commandment wore a sunbonnet. Crowns are no more a symbol of nobility than are sunbonnets of servitude.) The Agricultural Department is stirred over the failure of the farm. The boys and girls run to the cities and the farm is abandoned. It's like a lot of dull men never to suspect the real cause of the decadence of the farm. But they'll find out sometime. They'll blunder into it. It isn't the soil, nor the seeds, nor the forests, nor the diseases of the stock, nor the markets, nor the middlemen. It's the farmer's wife. But her time is coming. You wait. Some day the Department will send bathtubs and electric lights and hired help, and there will be inspectors to see that the farmer's wife gets what is her due, even the same care that the stock in the barn gets. The Department will be glad to look out for the interests of this veritable cornerstone of the nation's prosperity, the farmer's wife, if we wait patiently and long enough; or else the farm will go down and out altogether; and then what shall we all do?

Once I knew a farmer's wife who is entitled to a line here. She was a versatile person. She could grease a wagon, or whitewash a wall, or drive a mower, or harness a horse, and be nurse, dairymaid, laundress, cook, seamstress or anything else. She was the mother of six. It was no trick at all for her to bake six loaves of bread, and churn six pounds of butter before breakfast, prepare breakfast for six boarders, bake six pies for dinner, wash and dress six children, "hitch up," all pile into the wagon and go to the village to get their photographs taken, and get back in time to get noon dinner. I don't know where she is now. I presume she is dead.

TAXACAB—Motor Cab Service—'Phone 2380 COLUMBUS

Telephone orders filled promptly day or night. Cabs are always in waiting at our various stands, or they may be hailed and engaged on the street. When the flag is displayed above the taximeter, it signifies that the cab is disengaged and can be hired.

REDUCED SUMMER RATES—EFFECTIVE JUNE FIRST—Tariff No. 1 (Red Indicator) Used Only.

First half-mile or fraction - - 30 cts.
Each quarter-mile thereafter - 10 cts.
Each six minutes waiting - - 10 cts.

This tariff applies to all vehicles and irrespective of the number of passengers carried except that for Hansons, Coupes, Broughams and Victorias the charge for waiting time is 10 cts. for each TEN minutes or at the rate of ONLY SIXTY CENTS PER HOUR.

EXTRAS—All Vehicles

For ordering a cab, each mile or fraction thereof, from station or stand to point ordered 20 cts.

Return charge when dismissed north of 155th Street or outside the Borough of Manhattan, for each mile or fraction to Times Square (minimum charge $1) - 20 cts.
Trunk - - - - - 20 cts.

All ferriage and bridge tolls, both going and returning, must be paid by the passenger. If the taximeter is out of order, fare will be charged at regular legal rates.

RATES SUBJECT TO CHANGE WITHOUT NOTICE.

INFORMATION FOR PASSENGERS

1. HOW THE TAXAMETER WORKS. When the flag is lowered 30 cents will appear under the word "Fare," and this pays for the use of the cab until service to that amount, either in driving or in waiting, has been rendered. The Indicator will register thereafter ten cents for each quarter mile, or each fraction of an hour waiting. This charge is for the exact distance traveled and the exact waiting time consumed, which are automatically measured by the taximeter and over which the driver has no control.

The "extra" charges called for by the service are registered by the driver and shown under the word "Extras."

2. THE AMOUNT TO BE PAID IS THE SUM OF THE AMOUNTS SHOWN UNDER "FARE" AND "EXTRAS." THERE ARE NO CHARGES EXCEPT THOSE INDICATED BY THE TAXAMETER.

The driver is charged with all amounts registered and is not permitted to make any reductions therefrom, but will, if required, give a receipt for the amount paid.

3. TO SECURE COMPLETE PROTECTION. observe (a) that the flag is lowered to Tariff 1 position at the beginning of the service and not before; (b) that the flag is maintained in that position during service; (c) that the flag is promptly brought to "Payment" position at the conclusion of the service and left there until the charge is settled.

4. IF THE CAB IS DISABLED, the service up to the disablement must be paid for.

5. A CAB REPORTING AT AN ADDRESS in response to an order is charged for from the time for which it was ordered.

6. A CAB ORDERED AND NOT USED must be paid for up to the time the driver is dismissed, including the charge for sending it.

7. THEATRE AND OTHER RETURNS. Waiting time and any necessary mileage will be charged for a vehicle held for a return call. Waiting time may be saved by dismissing the vehicle and placing a separate order for a vehicle for the return call, but the Company cannot guarantee to fill such return call unless it be given to and accepted by the starter at a station or stand. Under no conditions may a cab be held in waiting without charge.

8. IN CASE OF DISPUTE, passengers are requested to pay the full amount indicated and make claim to the Company, in writing, giving the hour, date, driver and cab number, number of passengers carried, distance travelled and waiting time consumed and wherein the charge is incorrect. Such claims will receive prompt and courteous attention.

9. THE ACCURACY OF THE TAXAMETER is insured by systematic inspection. Do not assume that a charge is incorrect without first computing all of the distance and all of the waiting time comprised in the service.

TOURING CARS, SIGHT-SEEING CARS, DOUBLE-DECK MOTOR BUSES, and Automobiles of every kind by the Hour, Day or Week—Rates on application.

SHORT TALKS

Veils are in all colors, shades and styles, suitable to every complexion.

To wear the veil properly it should be tant and trim about the hat, coming generally under the chin.

A few directions how to arrange the veil may be of benefit.

The veil is first adjusted to the brim of the hat, then drawn down over the face, and the lower edge pulled under the chin and to the back, where it is fastened under the hair by means of a pin, and the ends are then drawn up in the back to the brim, where they are tucked away in as small a compass as possible.

There are some hats which it is almost impossible to keep the veil in place around the brim. Araminta, who was bothered in this way, solved the difficulty, which is so clever it is well worth copying. All that is required is three tiny dress hooks. These she covered with sewing silk by buttonhole stitch, and then sewed one to the centre front and the others at each side of the outer brim. As the silk is the same color of the hat, they are invisible, and the upper edge of the veil easily slips on the hooks as it is being arranged.

The colored veil to match the hat will be quite as much worn as ever. These come in two styles, that of solid color and the color combined with black. Both are becoming, but the combination of color with black is newer.

The magpie veil, which is a combination of black and white, is a perennial favorite, because it is so becoming and it can be worn with a hat of any color.

Octagon net is also shown in plain and fancy styles for street wear. The mesh is quite large, and as the vogue of octagon meshes in lace and net for dresses is the fashion, it is certain this veiling will be a general favorite.

For motoring there are long chiffon veils with striped satin borders that come in a variety of light and medium shades and in plain color. A decided novelty is the double motor veil. This is a big square, that completely covers the hat, all the fulness being gathered down in the back at the nape of the neck and either tied or pinned securely at that point. This double veil is made of white or colored chiffon, with an outer covering of black octagon net.

Standing at the art counter in a dry goods shop, a woman was heard to remark: "She must just have some fancy work for the summer outing as she got so tired sitting in a rocking chair on the porch." The covering of a couch pillow is interesting work, and with the new embroidery material the work progresses like magic. This material is made of wood silk, simulating natural silk, having even a higher lustre than silk embroidery floss, and is put up in skeins. The beauty of this material is that it rapidly covers or fills in handwork, and is inexpensive as compared with embroidery silk.

Handsome pillow tops in novel stamped patterns on real linen embroidered with this material are exceptionally effective.

Another comparatively new material in pillow top designs is a mercerized braid called the "giant wave." This is used in a bold flower design, the varying width of the braid making effective loops imitating flower petals.

Just what everybody needs and nobody thought of making is the simple but cleverly made dust slip to put over gowns, wraps, suits or overcoats while hanging in the closet. These are made of fancy crepe cloth or ginghams and are found in the needlework department of the shops.

Pieces of felt pasted on the bottom of ornaments which are to stand on a polished surface prevent scratching. MADAME ROBERTA.

APPELLATE COURT HOUSE OF NEW YORK

The Court House of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court is situated on the northeast corner of Twenty-fifth street and Madison avenue. The cost, including the furnishings, was about $750,000, and was completed in the year 1900. The interior is rich in mural paintings, also marbles, and the exterior is decorated with sculptures. The caryatides, by T. S. Clarke, which support the cornice of the Madison avenue side, represent the Four Seasons; the group above, by Karl Bitter, represents Peace; on the pedestals of the balustrade are the statues of the Great Law-Givers: Alfred, Confucius, Justinian, Manu, Vaivasvata, Zoroaster, St. Louis, Mahomet, Solon, Lycurgus, Moses; at the entrance on Twenty-fifth street are two large seated statues. Force, the pedestal with this inscription thereon, "We must not use force till just laws are defied," also Wisdom, "Every law not based on wisdom is a menace to the state." These statues are the work of F. W. Rucstuhl; the bas-relief of the pediment, by C. H. Niehaus, represents the Triumph of Law over Anarchy; and above this, by C. D. French, is a group symbolizing Justice. On the window pediments are the reclining figures of Morning, Noon, Evening, Night, by M. M. Schwartzott. As you enter the main hall has a wainscoting and pilasters of Sienna marble, with bronze gold capitals. Paintings fill the frieze spaces, and the ceiling is modeled in gold of two shades. The Court Room is also decorated in the same manner. The bench, screen and dais are of dark oak, very handsomely carved. On the stained glass windows of the dome are inscribed the names of the following eminent jurists: Fish, Jay, Butler, Shaw, Webster, Ogden, Choate, Kent, Clinton, Livingston, Hamilton, Marshall, Legare, Story, Pinckney, Taney, Van Buren, O'Connor, Marcy, Spencer. The mural paintings of the two apartments are symbolical, as well as allegorical. The frieze on the north wall facing the entrance, by H. S. Mowbray, represents the Transmission of the Law. This consists of eight groups, as follows: Mosaic, Egyptian, Greek, Roman, Byzantine, Norman, Common Law, and Modern Law, each group illustrating the distinct period that had its influence on our own; each group is united by an allegorical winged figure to represent transmission from one age to another. To the left on the westerly wall the frieze, by W. L. Metcalf, represents Justice; between the entrance doors on the south wall the two lunettes, by C. Y. Young, represent Law and Equity; to the right, on the easterly wall, the frieze, by Robert Reid, represents Justice supported by the guardians of the Law, with sword and fasces. She gives Prosperity and Peace to the Arts and Sciences, holding the symbols of the Law, sword, book and scales; Education follows Peace, teaching the youth, the book being lighted by a lamp held by Religion; Drama follows Prosperity, and Music with harp; on the south wall the subjects are Poetry, Painting, Sculpture, Architecture and Fame. The Court Room is most interesting. The centre panel illustrates Wisdom attended by Learning, Experience, Humility, Love, also Faith, Patience, Doubt, Inspiration. It is intended that the figure of Wisdom personify spiritual wisdom, Love to carry out the sentiment of the figure of Wisdom. There are other panels representing The Power of Law, Justice of the Law, the seals of the City and State. On the wall behind the dais of the Justices the long frieze, by Kenyon Cox, represents the Reign of Law, and other interesting panels are to be enjoyed. Open daily to the public.

GRANT'S TOMB

Grant's Tomb is located on Riverside Drive and 123d st. This may be reached by Sixth ave. and Amsterdam ave. car to 123d st., then walk west. Hours, 10 to 5 daily, including Sunday. No admission fee. This monument was designed by John H. Duncan, and is constructed of white granite from Maine, with marble interior, and from its commanding site overlooking the Hudson is very imposing. The structure is 90 feet on the side and 72 feet in height, with circular cupola and Ionic columns 70 feet in diameter. The dome rises 150 feet from the ground, the apex of the monument about 280 feet above the river; from the plaza facing the south side steps 70 feet wide ascend to the portico, which has double lines of Doric columns before the entrance and massive bronze doors; above the portico two sculptured figures by J. Massey Rhind, emblematic of Peace and War. On a panel are inscribed these words: "Let us have peace." (This was the concluding sentence of General Grant's letter accepting the nomination for the Presidency, May 29, 1868.)

The interior is 76 feet between the walls. The four great piers of the rotunda carry arches and are about 50 feet from the floor. The gallery is circular, supported by the arches, 40 feet in diameter; the dome about 105 feet above the floor. Sculptured reliefs by J. Massey Rhind represent Youth, Military Life, Civil Life and Death. In the small rooms surrounding the rotunda are stands of battle flags. Through the circular opening in the floor the sarcophagus is seen in the crypt directly beneath the centre of the dome. It is of red porphyry from Montello, Wis., and is supported on a pedestal of granite from Quincy, Mass. Upon the lid is the name, Ulysses S. Grant. The companion sarcophagus, an exact counterpart, both in material and design, was provided, it being the expressed wish of General Grant that Mrs. Grant should lie by his side.

General Grant died July 23, 1885, at Mount McGregor, N. Y. The funeral was the grandest pageant ever seen. The remains lay in state in the City Hall and was then conveyed to the temporary tomb. The procession was eight miles long and it was estimated that over a million people lined the route.

There were 90,000 contributors, and the fund, with interest, amounted to $600,000, and was raised by the Grant Monument Association. The corner-stone was laid April 27, 1892, by President Harrison. Sealed in it were copies of the Declaration of Independence, Constitution of the United States and Articles of Confederation, a Bible, the "Memoirs" of General Grant, an American flag, badges of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Loyal Legion, and a number of medals struck in United States mints in commemoration of events in General Grant's life.

ART NOTES

Metropolitan Museum of Art—Fifth ave. and 82d st. Free (except Monday and Friday), hours: 10
a. m. to 5 p. m.; Saturday, 10 a. m.
to 10 p. m.; Sunday, 1 to 5.30 p.
m. Among the accessions of the Department of Paintings are the gifts of two important modern German pictures; the first of these, from Mr. Adolphus Busch, is "Oxen Going Through the Water," by Heinrich Zügel, which was one of the most popular pictures in the recent Exhibition of Contemporary German Art, and the other is "At Lake Garda," by Hans Thoma, given by Mr. Hugo Reisinger. A small painting by Sano di Pietro, a Madonna and Child, has been bought out of the Rogers Fund income. The Museum has also purchased three pictures by Joaquin Sorolla y Bastida; the works selected are,
"The Bath, Jávea," "The Swimmers," and the standing portrait of Señora de Sorolla. "The Bath" is a gay and sparkling delineation of three girls in the sunlit water.
"The Swimmers" shows two boys swimming side by side, seen from

SHORT TALKS

There was a time when the delight of riding horseback could only be enjoyed by the favored few, but a visit to Central Park any day in the week would convince one who held to the old idea that the exercise was, we might say, universal. The reason for this in a great measure is due to the fact that the riding habit can now be bought "ready to wear." And with this convenience is the difference in price, which is within the reach of those to whom the cost has to be considered. In material, style and finish, they compare most favorably with those made by a special tailor to order.

There are skirts of every description, including the old style, the safety skirt and the astride or divided skirt, and the coats are distinctly new, for even the shortest have skirts that cover a portion of the saddle. For this reason that portion of the lining which may touch the horse is covered with a lightweight rubber, so that it may be quickly sponged off, and so be as natty and neat as the rest of the habit.

The latest thing in the habit outdistances the astride skirt, for it is nothing more nor less than an extra long coat worn with a pair of breeches made of the same material. At first thought this is startling, but after seeing a woman with this habit both off and on the saddle the opinion will be modified. The long coat comes several inches below the high riding boot, so that scarcely more of the well-shod foot is to be seen than with the conventional riding habit. The coat-skirt is slit in the back, so that when on the horse one-half faces to the right and the other on the left side. The effect is the same as a skirt. The comfort and safety of such a habit is not to be gainsayed.

The safety skirt is a trifle more troublesome to arrange when getting on as well as off the horse. It is the style of skirt which is most favored by those who continue to use the side saddle.

Coats are shaped to the figure, but are easy fitting. The shirt is white linen or madras with long sleeves and starched cuffs.

The correct glove is a heavy one of mannish cut, in tan or white leather.

For the early spring weather a flat rim derby of black felt is preferred, but as soon as the warm days come the rough straw sailor and tricorne in either black or natural color will be worn.

The tan riding boot is the correct and comfortable one for summer.

Cloths for the spring habits are Oxford and medium grays, tans, black, and white and black shepherd's checks.

Linen, crash and khaki are the materials for the hot weather riding habit.

One of the newest crash coats is forty inches long, with an easy fitting back, and the front with a French seam running to the shoulder. It is a style that is becoming to most figures, and one that gives the trim, trig appearance so essential to the rider.

A convenient little invention shown in the shops is a ribbon roller to keep the ribbons in place whilst the garments are being laundered.

The rollers are flat pieces of sandalwood, with rounded edges, and with clamps at either end to hold the ends of the ribbon. One clamp is a straight little piece of gold plate, the other an initial. For instance, "P" stands for the petticoat ribbon, "D" for the drawers, etc., so that it is not possible to mix the ribbons up. These rollers come four in a set. Price, $2.

Barettes are wide and are ornamental as well as a support to the mass of hair at the back of the head, and is pinned in at the nape of the neck, filling in the space between it and the coil of hair.

SCHOOL TEACHERS

School teachers never make much of a stir, and so no one ever hears much about them, as is the case usually with the always good. The school teacher, patient committee of one, ready and waiting to receive your youngster at half-past eight! Fancy waiting at 8.30 A. M. to receive from sixty to a hundred youngsters. The machinery for the day is hardly started by that time, and fancy having to remain right with them till 4 P. M., and watch them wriggle and squirm, and see that they learn things out of books, when they don't want to. Fancy being a jailor whose business it is to prevent sixty well-intentioned youngsters who are not to blame for being on earth, from going out where the birds and the grass and the fresh air and the sunshine are holding a meeting, and calling loudly for the children to join them. Fancy your job on a pleasant day; then fancy the same job on a wet day, when they bring in mud and dampness, and when their clothes reek—there's no use to mince English—maybe you know and maybe you don't.

It's such a relief to get the children off to school in the early morning, to send them to a safe place where they are expected, and where they will not get run over, nor maimed, bruised nor beaten, even if they deserve it. Such a comfort to get them out of the house so that you can straighten up the furniture, hang things up, and finally have a few quiet minutes to yourself.

One of New York's teachers resigned the other day after teaching school for fifty-seven years. Fifty-seven years of character moulding! I wonder how I keep my hat on at the very idea of her! Fifty-seven years of teaching school—think of it! Eleven thousand four hundred days by actual count. Twenty-two thousand eight hundred times of responding to the call of the school bell—a reception committee to a horde of arrant young anarchists whose mothers bless their absence for the peace it brings.

Every now and again we hear about the teachers being paid too much, as last year, for example, in New York City. Fancy that for an idea! A few years ago there was a time in New York about not paying them enough, and all the dull politicians protested, naturally, till finally some one dug up the fact that the street cleaners and the elevator boys in the City Hall were paid more than the teachers.

School teachers acquire the habit of patience in their business, so it's no wonder if they are down-trodden. And now we have Boston fermenting over the fact that too many years of feminine influence and supervision is not good for boys. But so long as the wages of teachers is planned on the scale of feminine requirements the prospects for the continuation of the feminine influence in school will remain the same as now in Boston and elsewhere. As there is no glory, not much money and no future, the field of teaching will not be stampeded by the men.

And when you go to a teachers' convention there you see what school teaching does to women. Duty, duty, duty, does the same thing. No use to write it down here. The Nation is under a perpetual obligation to the school teachers, just the same as it is to the tired mothers who take care of the babies at night.

There should be "School Teachers' Day" just the same as there is "Labor Day." It should be National, and should be a day when Uncle Sam would hire the carriages, the best in the land, and drawn by the grandest horses, too, and attended by the militia and the brass band, the governor and his staff with swords and gauntlet gloves and gold lace, all the school teachers be borne through the city streets with pomp and ceremony befitting these foster-mothers and fathers of the Nation. This would be little enough. HARRYOT HOLT DEY

EDEN MUSEE

Much interest has always been displayed in inventions and inventors at the Eden Musee, and the management has gone to much expense in permitting the public to become familiar with them. Among these inventions that have been exhibited at the Musee in their earliest days have been the telephone, X-ray, liquid air, the phonograph and moving picture machines. During the past week an elaborate group has been placed on exhibition in the central hall entitled "Great Inventors and Their Inventions," and in this group stands Count Zeppelin, the inventor of the German airship. By his side is a correct model of his first airship. Another inventor in this group is Thomas A. Edison, explaining his first model of the phonograph. Other great inventors will shortly be added to this group. Among them will be Marconi, the wireless wizard, and various other men who have added much to the wealth and happiness of nations. In the winter garden new moving pictures are shown hourly during the afternoon and evening. Many elaborate pieces have been received from abroad and among them are appropriate scenes in various countries, humorous happenings, magical pictures or illusions. In addition, the wonderful fotofone presents talking pictures and scenes from operas and well known plays. One entire act of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is given. The manner in which the faces and lips of the speakers are synchronized makes the fotofone a great invention. Professor Kapussy and his new orchestra have new programs for their afternoon and evening concerts. Every member of this orchestra is an artist, and these concerts will prove a strong attraction for lovers of classical music.

MENNEN'S TOILET POWDER

Mennen's Borated Talcum Powder lays claim to being the most perfect powder on the market, both in materials and method of manufacture. It is the oldest of Talcum Powders put up for general use and has established itself on its merits in every quarter of the civilized world.

The woman who buys Mennen's for toilet use or any other purpose may rest assured that she is getting the purest and most perfect powder that chemical knowledge can originate or skill manufacture.

There is a difference in Mennen's and those who have once used it are quick to appreciate that this difference is a difference of superiority which is easily perceived in comparison with any other powder.

Some people may say: The same ingredients are open to everybody, why can't others get the same results and produce a perfect powder?

Ask the woman who is famous for her cake why Mrs. Brown working from the same recipe can't produce the same article. She has the same ingredients, the same directions for making and yet she can't make good cake. It is this knack, this touch of skill and genius which makes the difference between all original productions and imitations. It is this same genius which makes Mennen's original Talcum Powder superior to every other.

The Fashionable Check

6305 Circular Skirt.

THE gown that is worn over a separate guimpe retains all its favor and is one of the most practical and desirable that the wardrobe contains. This one combines a very new over blouse and skirt that are so arranged as to give the suggestion of the princesse idea while in reality the two are separate. One of the pretty checked silk materials with guimpe of tucked net and trimming of banding are the materials that make this particular gown, but the list of available ones is a long one. The model is just as well adapted to simple washing fabrics as it is to wool and to silk and, as the guimpe is separate, any material that suits the gown can be utilized for it. Were the blouse and skirt made from one of the pretty Scotch zephyrs with the trimming a simple braided design executed in soutache, or the new rat-tail cord, and the guimpe made of muslin, a dainty, simple summer gown would result, whereas the silk illustrated is adapted to far more formal occasions. The blouse is closed invisibly at the front and the skirt invisibly beneath the box plait. It can be made either in round or in walking length.

A pattern of the over blouse, No. 6317, sizes 32 to 40 inches bust, or of the skirt, No. 6305, sizes 22 to 30 inches waist, will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents for each. (If in haste send an additional two-cent stamp for letter postage which insures more prompt delivery.)

Daughters of Ohio in New York, final meeting for this season; program under the direction of Mrs. Gabrielle Stewart Mulliner. Waldorf-Astoria. Afternoon.

New memorial window now on exhibition at the Tiffany Studios, Madison ave. and 45th st., which is to be placed in the Metropolitan Temple, Seventh ave. and 14th st., as a memorial to the administration of Theodore Roosevelt. The dedication will take place the latter part of May. The subject of the window is "Equal Justice to All." The design shows a woodland scene, in the foreground of which stands a white-robed figure, the right hand supporting a standard, on which are set the emblematic scales of justice; in the left hand is a flaming torch, expressive of light and truth. Suspended from the shoulders is the golden key of knowledge. This will be the third memorial to be placed in the Metropolitan Temple during the pastorate of Dr. Hill; the first, a peace window in memory of Gen. Grant, who was for a number of years a member of the Metropolitan Temple; the second, a McKinley memorial organ, dedicated last December. This window will remain on exhibition until May 15. Open to the public.

EYES

Experience teaches us many difficult lessons—lessons we declare we never can learn. Science unfolds to us many surprising truths through the process of reasoning and discovery. All the wisdom we acquire is to the end of denying the testimony of the eyes. Of course there are some people who maintain that seeing is believing, and who deny everything not vouched for by the eyes. These people are called materialists. However, as they are merely “held up” in their development, preferring things as they seem, rather than as they are, it’s a mere question of time with them, and as to their arrested development, that is their own affair.

A blind woman stood for years at the foot of the stairs leading up to the elevated station at 18th street and Third avenue, selling pencils, and any one not too hurried in passing was served smilingly and gratefully with this convenient little article of merchandise in return for a nickel. She was a patient, peaceful, contented, happy-looking blind woman standing in her corner of the market-place through all kinds of weather day after day for years—it must have been years—and one day we talked about it.

“Do you think a little thing like blindness could make me unhappy?” she asked in evident surprise.

“Oh!” I said.

“I can see many things which others cannot see,” she added as a kind of rational self-defense, “things that make me very happy.”

“Just what are these things that you see?” I persisted with some determination.

“I have the love of God in my heart,” she responded, evasively, but with conviction.

“Oh!” I said again. “But would you mind telling me just what specific line of thought you take up to keep this idea always before you?”

“I enumerate my blessings,” she replied.

I came away. In the event of a statement such as that one, under all the circumstances, what was there left to do but to come away? The blind woman hasn’t held her little corner in the market-place for years. But with her spiritual eyes she is seeing pleasant things somewhere, and pointing them out to those who, having eyes, see not.

It must be very pleasant to be associated with some person who is constantly on the lookout for your good points to call your attention to them. Some of us haven’t been with any one like that for so long we have entirely lost sight of the best that is in us. If every family should elect one member of it to be the family appreciator, the one whose business it should be to inventory the good deeds, thoughts, traits and intentions of the whole family, why, every member of it would be redeemed in no time. Even impossible mothers-in-law and meddlesome relations who criticise and misunderstand you, would feel this reverse influence of having all their goodness listed. As long as the most that you look at isn’t so at all, it seems as if the thing to do is to look up the real things that are. The only real things are spiritual.

The smallest pickaninny on the plantation was conducting me through the fields one day down in Virginia, when he discovered the body of a chicken that had been missing for a day or two. He studied it critically for a moment before he pronounced his verdict:

Many of the eyes, good looking eyes, colored to match gowns, Directoire gowns at that, only look; and don’t see at all.

It’s good to see where you look. But only the eyes of the understanding can do that. So eyes are often better to look at than they are to see with.

HARRYOT HOLT DEY.

SHORT TALKS

Dutch collars of Irish lace are in as great demand as ever. It is remarkable how quick the new style in low-necked waists and dresses met with approval.

One of the latest novelties in neckwear is a tiny hand-tucked band of batiste or handkerchief linen, to which is attached a small bow, also of batiste. Some are hand-embroidered, inserted or appliquéd with lace, or with a lace stitch embroidery done on the fabric.

These collar bands are intended to be worn as a finish for the round collarless neck of both dresses and waists. The standing band, which is about three-quarters of an inch wide, covers the neck band of the shirtwaist.

To give the band a more softening effect, a fringe of lingerie or net can be added.

The hammered metal scarfs on net, known as "Egyptian," have been exceedingly popular during the winter, but will now be laid aside for the lighter and more gauzy and lacy styles as more appropriate for the warm weather.

In the high-class Fifth avenue shops who make a special feature of veils and scarfs, most beautiful ones are shown, elaborately embroidered in gold on plain white. The design is in flat rose effect, used on the finest quality of chiffon or crêpe de chine.

The plain white with gold embroidery, especially the gold and heavy silk fringe, is the style adopted by the most expensively dressed women for evening wear.

Princess lace face veils, which are an imitation of duchesse, are the vogue. These veils are effective when worn with certain types of millinery and expensive costumes.

There is a marked departure from the very high lustre, smooth-surfaced cloths which have had such a vogue for several seasons.

The materials favored by custom tailors are homespun and camel's hair in mélanges and two-toned diagonal weaves.

At a fashionable tea room several attractively dressed women were noted whose jackets were in contrast to their simple tailored dress.

Black and white shepherd checks in serges are worn by dressy, stylish women.

The changing forms in skirts perhaps is the most interesting point in the two-piece suit styles.

There is sufficient indication at the present of the return of pleated skirts to be worthy of attention.

The pleats, however, are coming in a new form, starting as they do from a low hip line, which, in the separate skirt, means of course some kind of a yoke. Their present appearance, is a straw showing which way the wind blows.

The fad of bronze leather for shoes and slippers has been developed in the hand-bag which can be found in various styles and sizes, ranging in price from $1.50 to $5.

Initials on the hand-bag are one of the requisites of fashion. They come in sizes of an inch or less to three inches, and are priced at 10 to 25 cents, according to size.

Rather novel is the striking combination of patent and other bright finished leather hand-bags. An intermingling of a bright red with a blue or black is a type in favor. In some, the bag is half of one color and half of another.

Very attractive are those of Irish lace made on metal frames with chain and handles attached.

This vanity accessory is suspended on a chain with a finger ring for convenience of carrying. Although only three inches, in the upper portion is a powder box and puff and inside the box cover a magnifying mirror. The lower portion when closed forms a butterfly; inside is a glass-stoppered vinaigrette surrounded by a receptacle for pearl-headed handy pins. It is made of filigree gilt, and ornamented with amethysts. Price, $3.

Important Information

HOW THE TAXAMETER WORKS

When the flag is lowered, 50 cents will appear under the word "Fare," and this pay for the use of the cab until service to that amount, either in driving or in waiting, has been rendered. The Indicator will register thereafter 10 cents for each quarter-mile or each fraction of an hour of waiting. This charge is for the exact distance traveled and the exact
waiting time consumed, which are automatically measured by the taxameter, and over which the driver has no control.

service are registered by the driver and

SUM OF THE AMOUNTS SHOWN UN-DER "FARE" AND "EXTRAS." THERE
ARE NO CHARGES EXCEPT THOSE
INDICATED BY THE TAXAMETER.

The driver is charged with all amounts registered, and is not permitted to make any reductions therefrom, but will, if required, give a receipt for the amount paid.

TO SECURE COMPLETE PROTEC-TION, observe (a) that the flag is lowered at the beginning of service and not before; (b) that the flag is maintained
in that position during service; (c) that

the flag is promptly brought to "Payment" position at the conclusion of the service, and left there until the charge is settled.

IF THE CAB IS DISABLED, the service up to the disablement must be paid
for.

A CAB REPORTING AT AN ADDRESS
in reponse to an order is charged for
from the time for which it was ordered.

A CAB ORDERED AND NOT USED
must be paid for up to the time the driver is dismissed, including the charge for sending it.

THEATRE AND OTHER RETURNS.
Waiting time and any necessary mileage
will be charged for a vehicle held for a return call. If the vehicle is dismissed
with orders to return, the driver will collect for the service already rendered, adding an extra charge of $1.00 (to be registered on the taxameter) for guaranteeing the return call. Under no conditions may a cab be held in waiting
without charge.

IN CASE OF DISPUTE, passengers are requested to pay the full amount indicated and make claim to the Company,
in writing, giving the hour, date, driver
and cab number, number of passengers
carried, distance traveled and waiting
time consumed, and wherein the charge is incorrect. Such claims will receive prompt and courteous attention.

THE ACCURACY OF THE TAXA-
METER is insured by systematic inspection. Do not assume that a charge is incorrect without first computing all of the distance and all of the waiting time

TO GET A CAB, telephone 2380 Columbus at any hour, day or night, and the nearest available vehicle will be promptly dispatched. Cabs are always in waiting at our various stands, or may be hailed and engaged on the street. When the flag is displayed above the taxa-meter, the cab is disengaged and can be hired.

COUPON BOOKS at a discount of 5
per cent, giving $10.00 worth of rides for $9.50, or $20.00 worth of rides for $19.00, are on sale at the Main Office and

Empire Kimono

6302 Empire Kimono, 32 to 40 bust.

THE kimono that is finished with a band, marking the Empire waist line, becomes a completely transformed garment, very graceful and generally becoming, something far less of a negligee than a kimono without such treatment. This one is absolutely simple and can be made either in the round length illustrated or with a slight train. It is tucked after a most becoming manner and means just the slightly open neck that is one of the features of the present season. Lawn, batiste, the various cotton crepes and other inexpensive printed washable fabrics are appropriate for the simpler kimonos, while for the dressy one foulard and flowered Oriental silks will be found desirable, with trimming bands of contrasting material or ribbon.

The kimono is made with fronts and backs and is tucked to the waist line at the back to yoke depth at the front. The Empire waist band is arranged over it and is included in the back seam, so being kept perfectly in place. The sleeves are made in one piece each but laid in tucks which meet at the center and provide becoming fullness. When the round length is desired the kimono can be cut off on indicated lines.

The pattern 6302 is cut in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inch bust measure and will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents. (If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage which insures more prompt delivery.)

THE DEAF

My neighbor, whose name is Lillie, cannot hear very well; in fact, she can hardly hear at all. But she is a first-nighter for all that. She is always there, and she seems to have as good a time as her escort, who is a dramatic critic and is obliged to go and listen whether he wants to or not. My little deaf neighbor is so amiable and reflects so much love that I am not sure but that spiritual ears are concealed about her person somewhere, for she never seems conscious of having missed anything. When the dramatic critic smiles, she smiles too, and she tells me that she enjoys the theatre immensely. She also says that although she is deaf, she believes she hears all that is good for her, and I concur with her in this opinion, assuring her that she escapes much that is merely time-wasting, as a great deal is said that is worth nothing at all; therefore she doesn't miss so much as she might infer. I don't know as it has ever been computed, like the distance to the sun, or the chance of summoning Mars, or of digging through to China to see what is inside the earth, but I suspect that on an average there are about a million or more of words to one idea. This is merely a rough guess; everybody talks nearly all the time. Of course no one wants to be deaf. Still there are compensations—no great loss without some small gain. It can't be so bad to be spared all the discordant street sounds that run many people out of town, putting them to no end of trouble with time tables, and coaxing their friends to visit them.

You can classify people by noticing what they hear. Thus, you may be deaf to discord; or you may be deaf to harmony; you may be deaf to appeals for aid; you may be deaf to the sound of every voice or every footstep but one. You can't in the least degree tell by the looks of ears whether they are good to hear with or not. They may have solitaire diamond earrings in them, and yet not hear a cry of distress. So it seems sometimes as if hearing must be of the Spirit. We train our sense of hearing to respond to certain sounds that concern us; or we grow so accustomed to certain sounds that we learn to turn a deaf ear to them. There is the cry of the needy, for example; although our hearts are not exactly hard, still the cry of the needy does not disturb us, to any great extent. Well-organized ears are trained to pleasanter sounds. But there is such a thing as over-training, and there is just the chance that we miss many of the best things as a result of too fine discrimination in hearing. The still small voice, for example—we may train beyond the chance of hearing that, and forget it finally so that we shouldn't recognize it even if we heard it.

SHORT TALKS

Shoemakers certainly deserve appreciation for the thought and time spent on the shoes and slippers shown this season.

The point gained is the effect of wearing a No. 3 shoe when in reality the foot calls for a No. 5. Now, how is this accomplished without crippling the poor woman like the Chinese? The matter is very simple. The vamp is quite short and more arch is given to the instep.

Ties as usual will be worn for street wear as soon as the weather permits. One of the newest has but one eyelet and the top is scarcely higher than an opera slipper. It brings out the shape of the instep with charming effect. This tie is shown in tan, suede and all the regulation leathers.

Another very pretty and dressy tie has two small gold buckles in place of the usual silk bows. The height is the same as the one-eyelet tie.

Buckles will be worn on both evening slippers and ties. For evening they are of rhinestone, silver and gold, are oval in shape, and measure about an inch and a half in diameter. A very pretty model is of patent leather with oval buckle of the leather, embroidered with steel beads. To prevent the buckle from catching on to the edge of the petticoat, it is sewed carefully into the slipper.

The white canvas tie will hold its own as first favorite to be worn with the white dress. It is not to be wondered at, as they are so cool and comfortable and easily kept clean.

Thin, plain stockings are considered the best taste by the women "who know." But the shops are showing the lace and openwork in most attractive patterns. Some are lace just above the ankle and the rest plain; others of the all-over openwork style.

It has been considered the best of taste for the stocking to match the shoe in color, but the effect is not bad where the stocking is of a lighter shade than the shoe or dress.

Again, in mid-summer, when the white tie is worn with the white stocking, a very pleasing effect is obtained by the stocking corresponding in color with the belt, parasol and other accessories of the dress.

For example, with a white serge suit and white canvas ties, green hose, parasol, etc., is quite fetching.

With the bronze shoe, now so fashionable, heliotrope looks exceedingly well.

A black costume with black patent or satin slipper, is given an effective touch when the stockings are red.

The edict has gone forth from the precincts of the exclusive dress-makers the Directoire gown has had its day. It was a success when made by an artist, and becoming only to small and light-weight women.

The new gowns are wider at the feet, and gathers, sometimes few, and again quite a fulness is seen around the waists of the skirts.

Sleeves of lace have replaced, to a large extent, the tucked net sleeves which have been so long worn. This is also true of yokes.

In hairdressing, there is a tendency on the part of the most smartly dressed women toward a simpler style. This does not mean a lessening of the quantity worn.

Puffs have largely given way to curls, and in instances the back hair is drawn from the neck to the crown of the head over a flat foundation, the front hair parted, and the whole held in place by a jeweled ribbon.

In Paris this last winter the jeweled and spangled ribbon was the vogue. It has now made its appearance in New York and is stylish and becoming to most faces.

The latest thing in sponges are made of horse-hair. They are shaped to comfortably fit the hand. It is claimed for these sponges they afford greater friction than an ordinary or rubber sponge, and that they are sanitarily prepared.

MADAME ROBERTA.

DAILY ATTRACTIONS IN NEW YORK

There is now on exhibition one wax group more famous than any other single group in the world. It represents the kings and queens of all nations. A large salon in what appears to be a royal palace is filled with these royal guests, apparently enjoying themselves as if they were ordinary mortals. Whenever one king or queen becomes more prominent in the public eye by reason of some happening, this figure is given temporarily an advantageous position. As soon as one king or queen dies, a wax representation of the successor is immediately installed. One of the figures that has stood the longest in this group is that of Abdul Hamid, the Sultan of Turkey. He has been moved forward and backward according to public interest in the queer happenings of Turkey, for which he has been so largely responsible. On account of the general interest in his fate, he still remains a member of the royal group, but is apparently shunned by the other kings and queens. A new figure of Mohammed V. is being prepared and will be added to this group within a few days. It will represent the new Sultan in full court costume. Many new moving pictures have been received from abroad. They include subjects of unusual interest. One picture shows the story of William Tell shooting the apple from his son's head. Another shows many victims of a peculiar form of nervousness. The wonderful Fotofone reproduces the music and actual scenes from a number of operas. Several pictures show scenes in foreign lands, numerous happenings and quaint illusions. The afternoon and evening concerts by Prof. Kapussy and his new orchestra have choice programmes and are attracting much attention.

FROM ONE TO FIVE PASSENGERS

HOW THE TAXAMETER WORKS

When the flag is lowered, 50 cents will appear under the word "Fare," and this
pays for the use of the cab until service
to that amount, either in driving or in waiting, has been rendered. The indicator will register thereafter 10 cents for each quarter-mile or each fraction of an hour of waiting. This charge is for the exact distance traveled and the exact
waiting time consumed, which are automatically measured by the taximeter, and over which the driver has no control.

SUM OF THE AMOUNTS SHOWN UN-
DER "FARE" AND "EXTRAS." THERE
ARE NO CHARGES EXCEPT THOSE
INDICATED BY THE TAXAMETER.

The driver is charged with all amounts registered, and is not permitted to make
quired, give a receipt for the amount paid.

TO SECURE COMPLETE PROTEC-TION, observe (a) that the flag is lowered at the beginning of service and not
before; (b) that the flag is maintained
in that position during service; (c) that

the flag is promptly brought to "Payment" position at the conclusion of the service, and left there until the charge is
settled.

IF THE CAB IS DISABLED, the service up to the disablement must be paid
for.

A CAB REPORTING AT AN ADDRESS
in response to an order is charged for
from the time for which it was ordered.

A CAB ORDERED AND NOT USED
must be paid for up to the time the driver
is dismissed, including the charge for sending it.

THEATRE AND OTHER RETURNS.
Waiting time and any necessary mileage
will be charged for a vehicle held for a return call. If the vehicle is dismissed
with orders to return, the driver will collect for the service already rendered,
adding an extra charge of $1.00 (to be registered on the taximeter) for guaranteeing the return call. Under no conditions may a cab be held in waiting
without charge.

IN CASE OF DISPUTE, passengers are requested to pay the full amount indicated and make claim to the Company,
in writing, giving the hour, date, driver
and cab number, number of passengers
carried, distance traveled and waiting
time consumed, and wherein the charge
is incorrect. Such claims will receive prompt and courteous attention.

METER is insured by systematic inspection. Do not assume that a charge is incorrect without first computing all of
the distance and all of the waiting time

TO GET A CAB, telephone 2380 Columbus at any hour, day or night, and the nearest available vehicle will be promptly dispatched. Cabs are always in waiting at our various stands, or may be hailed and engaged on the street. When
the flag is displayed above the taxa-
meter, the cab is disengaged and can be hired.

COUPON BOOKS at a discount of 5
per cent, giving $10.00 worth of rides
for $9.50, or $20.00 worth of rides for $19.00, are on sale at the Main Office and at cab stands.

CHARGE ACCOUNTS solicited with persons of established responsibility.

DID YOU KNOW IN THE YEAR

- 1659—Poor boxes were introduced at weddings; houses were rented for twenty-eight dollars per annum; the first public auctioneer was appointed, and one dollar and ten cents was the fee for the disposal of a lot; the "Prince Maurice" was the first shipwreck on this coast, of which there was an account; it occurred near Fire Island.
- 1660—It was punishable by law to call magistrates blockheads on account of an adverse decision; a man living near the Bowery disliked to ride through two miles of dense forest to reach his work, and offered to give away his property; a brick yard was established; before this time bricks had been imported from Holland, and were considered too expensive to be used except in the construction of chimneys and ovens.
- 1663—A blacksmith hung himself from a tree near Collect Pond; this was the first suicide recorded.
- 1664—New Amsterdam was captured by the English and its name changed to New York; under the direction of the Mayor, Aldermen and Sheriff, there was a reorganization of the municipal government.
- 1665—First Court of Admiralty was organized by Governor Nichols, convened and was held in the Stadthuys.
- 1670—New York's first Exchange was established at a bridge which crossed a ditch at Broad street, and is now known as Exchange Place; Staten Island was purchased for a handful of trinkets; a seal of the city was presented by the Duke of York.
- 1673—First mail between Boston and New York was established, letters being carried by a messenger, who made the trip once a month. A Dutch fleet recaptured the city, in the name of the States General of Holland, and then changed the name to New Orange. At this time the larger portion of the town extended from the high ridge of ground located at Broadway to the East River, which at that time was called Salt River. There was a great dock for vessels and three crescent-shaped forts were placed along the shore. A large number of the houses presented gable ends to the street.
- 1674—At this period only one Jew and one Spaniard held property. A treaty of peace having been signed by Holland, and England, the city was restored to the English.
- 1677—At this time the city contained about three hundred and fifty houses.
- 1679—Intense excitement; a bear was killed in an orchard near Maiden Lane.
- 1683—Under the royal government there was established the "Court Sessions of the Peace of the City of New York"; was first called the "Court of General Quarter Sessions."
- 1686—"The Dongan Charter" was granted by James the Second. This was the basis of all later charters obtained for this city. This decreed that New York City hereafter should comprise the entire Island of Manhattan. The value or selling price of the best houses was from three to five hundred dollars.
- 1689—The city was joyful on receiving the information of the accession of William and Mary to the throne. Fifty inhabitants formed themselves into a Committee of Safety to hold the province in rule until the new sovereign could establish a government. This movement inaugurated a bitter strife between the people who contended for the temporary control of Leisler and resulted in this way.
- 1691—Leisler was tried and executed by the first Assembly that met April 9, this year.

THE NEW IDEAL WOMAN

Dr. Lyman Abbott's book about ideal woman and motherhood has excited the ire of the suffragists. But that is nothing. The suffrage ire is as explosive as gun-powder. This excellent book is so far behind the times that the only criticism belonging to it is: "Too late! Too late!" But the editor of "The Outlook" makes such a good looking flag bearer that out of sheer respect and reverence for him and his opinions one hates to see his followers dropping away. Among his followers are several classes of women. Some follow because their parents followed; others follow because, having expressed an opinion, they are ashamed to acknowledge themselves mistaken; some follow for the sake of the society they are sure of, or like dead fish that float with the tide; others don't even know they are following—coming or going—it's all one to them. But even Dr. Abbott's vanguard is dropping away. The women of wealth are coming into the suffrage thought. Theatres are being hired by the season; button factories are turning out suffrage buttons to sew on their Directoire gowns, and stamp printing houses are making suffrage stamps to sell for one cent each. But—as I was saying—Dr. Abbott still carries the flag of conservatism whether any one wants him to or not, and on his banner is the picture of his ideal woman. It's no use. Her day is past.

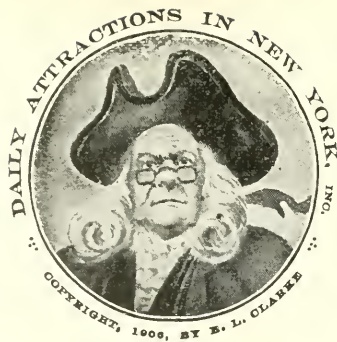

The woman who loves to stay at home to care for the children! The woman who wants to dust, and to sew on buttons, and to cook! And to cling! Now, really, you know as well as I do that she is a back number. It was always nice to know that she was at home waiting, waiting, waiting for a tardy man to come home to dinner; waiting to put the baby in short dresses; waiting later to put him in trousers; waiting for him to grow up; waiting—waiting for gray hairs, and finally they came, and she was old—and then what? Why, just one more coffin and let some one nail the cover down fast! None of that sort of thing nowadays! There is more thing, and that was to hop into her enjoyment in a little personal activity on her own account than in waiting, waiting, waiting. Oh, the waiting that women do!

The men are not staying at home any too much. What are automobiles for? Certainly not to stay at home in. There was a time when men had no toys with which to amuse themselves. Men mowed the lawn, and sat on the piazza, and listened to the music box. But that is too humdrum for now. It's golf and yachts and touring cars, and soon it will be airships. Indeed, it's high time the women took seriously this idea of keeping up with the men. I prophesy that the women will have the ballot by the time the men have the airships.

Consider for a moment how times and thought have changed. Until the bicycle came into fashion the fact that women had legs was a secret. We couldn't wear rainy-day skirts because they were not modest. The athletic woman has given right thinking a fine impetus. The club woman and the woman interested in charities and reforms have removed the age limitation, and gradually the new ideal woman has materialized. The young ones are older and the old ones are younger. I don't see what is to be done about it unless we simply adapt ourselves to the changed conditions. The old women who are young are just as good women to-day as the old women who were old a generation ago. Your grandchildren's grandmother with her high-heeled pumps, her snow-white pompadour and her ideas of citizenship, is just as good as your grandmother was with her lace cap, her black silk apron, her Congress gaiters, her knitting work and her ideas about the changes of the moon; even though your grandchildren are not allowed to say "grandma," and quite proper that they are not.

HARYOT HOLT DEY.

SHORT TALKS

The best dressed women have not accepted and will not accept the type of hats which Paris millinery extremists have tried to introduce. Not that the general public has refused to accept them, but it is plain that the women who have adopted such grotesque styles are not the class who give the style keynote to fashionable millinery.

Leghorn is very popular and is one of the favored hats for mid-summer. These are seen with the wide, soft brim and large crown. By the use of wires, the hat is manipulated into the modishly upturned brims. The brims are faced with black velvet or colored taffetas. With their trimmings of American beauty roses they remind one of the Gainsborough which had such a vogue a long time ago.

These garden hats as they are sometimes called are trimmed with black and colored velvet ribbons, paradise and ostrich plumes, wings and the effective combinations of shades in the appropriate and natural looking field flowers.

The demand for hats in hair and hemp braid has not been so great for many years.

Next in popularity is the wide-weave, heavy, but effective looking rough braids. These are particularly handsome in black and when the shape is the modified "basket," with trimmings of large paradise pompons or black ostrich, they are very smart and stylish.

Wings are the most popular trimming for street hats. The wings are very large and full, and those with a rather long, full quill at the top or pointed part of the wing give a smart look to the large street hats.

The employment of wings was noted on an enormous black Neapolitan, with the wide brim turned up sharply in front, on which was posed two huge black wings, straight across the front of the brim and crown.

Another style of hat which bodes to be exceedingly popular is a white chip of medium size, with rather narrow, upturned brim and a crown of medium size and height. This is

The use of lace over ribbon drappings, around the crowns, or on the drooping brims of the fine straws, such as hair and hemp, has been especially favored in recent importations of Paris hats in point Venice and Irish. The blonde and princess laces in ecru, also Chantilly in black and white, have been greatly favored.

New styles in lingerie hats are shown in a fashionable Fifth avenue shop. In shape, it was exactly like the silk shades used on candelabra. The top, which was perfectly flat, and the sloping sides were made entirely of the finest linen, hand-embroidered in dainty Marguerite flower effects and eyelet work, simulating real Maderia embroidery. Around the edge of the brim was a trimming of fine blonde lace, and midway on the crown was a draping of sapphire-blue velvet and bow of same on the left side. Pink roses around the edge of the brim, with the lace. The foundation was white horsehair.

Another novel hat shown in an exclusive shop on Fifth avenue is a large, dark green Neapolitan, with a crown between two and three inches high, the edge of which was encircled with lighter green sheaves of wheat and a band of medium sized shaded pink roses set irregularly with the wheat around the crown. Small green ostrich tips and pink roses were bunched at the front.

Novel silk and tinsel bands in small checks, gold and black alternating, are used for draping the brim around the base of the crowns on black shapes, with ostrich or aigrettes in bright colors.

To clean carpets, mix together in a bottle equal quantities of turpentine and ammonia. Put two tablespoonfuls into a quart of water, carefully brush the carpet, then sponge with the preparation; then rub dry with a clean cloth.

A Dainty Summer Gown

6326 Blouse with Dutch Collar.

Embroidery Pattern 397.

SKIRTS of linen, pique, repp and similar materials, with the blouse of thinner linen or batiste or lawn, will be much in vogue during the summer months. The blouse illustrated is a very dainty and charming one that is peculiarly well adapted to embroidery. In this instance it is of white but the work could be executed in color if preferred, and color on white will be much used this season. The high-waisted skirt is admirable for such use and can be made either in round or in walking length. If the long, close-fitting sleeves are not liked for the blouse those of three-quarter length gathered into bands can be substituted, and embroidery is by no means obligatory, although it adds greatly to the effect and is essentially smart. Cross-barred and embroidered muslins are being extensively used for blouses of the sort and require little trimming, and for the skirt any one of the seasonable materials that is heavy enough to be made after such style would be appropriate, the favorite shepherd's check, serge and other wool fabrics quite as well as the washable ones.

A pattern of the blouse, No. 6326, sizes 32 to 42 inches bust, or of the skirt, No. 6204, sizes 22 to 32 inches waist, or the embroidery pattern, No. 397, will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents for each. (If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.)

AUTOMOBILE TRIPS TO NEARBY POINTS

Long Island—To reach this point, where many attractive runs can be made, we offer the following gateways from Manhattan: Via the Brooklyn Bridge, Williamsburg Bridge, East 34th st. ferry to Long Island City, East 92d st. ferry to Astoria and East 99th st. ferry to College Point. The gateways in most popular use are via the ferries to Long Island City and Astoria. From the former the South Shore road may be reached via Jackson ave., Thompson ave. and the Hoffman boulevard to Hillside ave., turning south at the Place Monument to the Merrick or Shore road. From the Astoria ferry Flushing ave. runs directly into Broadway and the North Shore road. The Jericho turnpike is a good intermediate route to Mineola, Garden City, Jericho, Cold Spring Harbor and Huntington. Distances from Herald Square to some of the interesting points in Long Island are: Via Astoria and North Shore road—Flushing 10 miles, Roslyn 20 miles, Glen Cove 26 miles, Oyster Bay 32 miles, Huntington 37½ miles, Chateau des Beaux Arts on Huntington Bay 40 miles, Port Jefferson 65 miles and Greenport 111 miles. Via South Shore road—Jamaica 12 miles, Lynbrook 20 miles, Freeport 25 miles, Babylon 40 miles, Patchogue 59 miles, West Hampton 83 miles, Southampton 100 miles, Sag Harbor 111 miles, and Shelter Island 115 miles. A circuit of the island, crossing from Bridgehampton via Sag Harbor and Shelter Island to Greenport, makes a trip of about 230 miles.

Long Beach—Cross 34th st. ferry to Long Island City. Straight ahead from ferry; after passing Vernon st., turn obliquely to left into Jackson ave., which follow for five-eighths mile to Thompson ave. (Hoffman Boulevard), into which turn right, and follow across railroad and creek; two miles farther, cross railroad again to (3½) Locust Grove. Keep to right at crossroads along Hoffman Boulevard; cross railroad; three miles beyond, meet and then leave railroad; follow Boulevard to Fulton st. (9) Jamaica. Go along Fulton st. to Merrick road, into which turn right and follow it across railroad, past Springfield and several creeks to (16) Valley Stream. Straight ahead along road across creek, railroad and two more small streams (17½) Lynbrook. Straight ahead along Merrick road, across Mill River and railroad to Lincoln ave. (19) Rockville Center. Turn to right into Lincoln ave.; after crossing Powell's Creek take first right fork and next left; 1½ miles beyond, cross Hog Island Channel; continue near railroad over Long Beach Channel and Inner Beach Lead to (25) Long Beach. Posts giving direction and distance will be found all along the road.

Staten Island offers rare attractions for a short automobile outing. The roads are good macadam with easy grades and picturesque views. In a circuit of the island the travelling distance is thirty-three miles. The run from Manhattan may be varied by taking the ferry from the foot of Whitehall street to St. George, thence following the southern route via the Richmond and Amboy roads to Tottenville, returning via the Shore road, Fresh Kills road and Old Stone road to Fort Richmond, thence by ferry to Bergen Point and over the Hudson County Boulevard to Jersey City, Weehawken or Fort Lee. The distance of the round trip from Columbus Circle, returning via Jersey City or Weehawken, is about fifty miles.

He who was taught only by himself had a fool for a master.—Ben Johnson.

[Series C]

POINTS OF INTEREST

Aldrich Court—41 Broadway. This formed the site of the first habitation of white men on Manhattan Island; was also the site of the second residence of Washington. Tablet: "This tablet marks the site of the first habitation of white men on the Island of Manhattan. Adrian Block, Commander of the Tiger, erected here four houses or huts, November, 1613. He built the Restless, the first vessel made by Europeans in this country. The Restless was launched in the spring of 1614. This tablet is placed here by the Holland Society of New York, September, 1890."

Apthorpe Mansion—Formerly located at the corner of Ninth (or Columbus) ave. and 91st st. It was where George Washington remained during his evacuation of New York, and after it was occupied by Lord Howe.

Astor House—Broadway, Barclay and Vesey streets. One of the oldest hotels in New York City, founded by John Jacob Astor, and is noted as having been the headquarters of some of the most prominent men of the age. The property on which this hotel is located is said to be more valuable per square foot than any other of equal dimensions on the Island of Manhattan.

Barge Office—In Battery Park. This was originally the landing place of cabin passengers from ocean steamers, and was for a time used as an emigrant station. Now occupied by customs inspectors.

Block House—Located in Central Park. Built by the Americans, but later improved and occupied by the English during the Revolution.

Boreel Building—115 B'way. This site was formerly occupied by the residence of Lieutenant-Governor James DeLancey; after his death it was turned into a public house, known under a number of names, the most famous being "Burns' Coffee House." It was here the non-importation act was signed, also Washington's inaugural ball was held in the so-called "great room." During the year 1793 the building was torn down and a "City Hotel" was erected by a number of New York merchants. Tablet: "The site of the old historical DeLancey House, afterward the 'City Hotel.' The tavern located here had various proprietors, by whose names it was successively called, being, among others, known as 'The Province Arms,' 'The City Arms,' and 'Burns' Coffee House or Tavern.' It was here that the celebrated non-importation agreement in opposition to the 'Stamp Act' was signed October 31, 1765. Erected by the Holland Society of New York, March, 1890."

Bowery—Located from Chatham Square to junction of Third and Fourth avenues. In the early Dutch days this was a lane running along the farms or "Bow-weries," on the northern outskirts of the city; from this the name was taken. On and near this thoroughfare the notorious dives of Owen Gagen and Harry Hill were located.

Bread Line—Originated by Fleischmann, the celebrated baker, now deceased, who nightly, between the hours of 11 to 12, gives to hundreds of homeless men of this city the surplus breads. This custom, which was started during the life of the philanthropist, is still carried on.

Bridge of Sighs—Connects the Tombs Prison with the Criminal Court Building at Centre and Franklin streets, and derives its name from the fact that prisoners undergoing trial for crimes are taken over this bridge from the Tombs to the Criminal Court Building. On particular occasions when some especially notorious

Church of the Messiah—Park ave. and 34th st. This site once formed the estate of Robert Murray, the "Quaker Merchant of the Revolution," and was called "Incenberg," and became historic through the diplomacy of Mrs. Murray in detaining the British officers, Clinton, Howe and Cornwallis, while Putnam and his troops, on their retreat to Harlem, guided by Aaron Burr, passed within a mile of the house.

Coenties Slip—Between Pearl street and the river, above Broad street, and received its name in honor of an influential Dutch shoemaker, whose shop once occupied a corner in this locality; here also stood the old Dutch City Hall, and is now called Jeannette Park, after the ship "Jeannette," sent to the Arctic regions by the "New York Herald."

Cotton Exchange—Located in Hanover Square. This is a large building of yellow brick, with stone facings and it is estimated that it cost $1,000,000. Spot sales of more than five hundred thousand bales of cotton are made during the year. On this site, November 8th, 1725, the first newspaper was printed in New York, and called the "New York Gazette." Tablet: Cotton Exchange—On this site William Bradford, appointed public printer, April 10th, A. D., 1693, issued, November 8th, 1725, "The New York Gazette," the first newspaper printed in New York. Erected by the New York Historical Society, April 10th, A. D.,

1893, in commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the introduction of printing in New York.

Within the fortifications was erected the first substantial church edifice on the Island of Manhattan. In 1787 the fort was demolished and the Government House built upon this site. This tablet is placed here by the Holland Society of New York, September, 1890."

Governor's Island—Is situated in the Bay, about one thousand yards from the Battery; it covers an area of over sixty-five acres and is used by the United States Government as a military station. Fort Columbus is located near the centre of the island and Castle William, a circular fort of sandstone, built in the year 1811, overlooks the Bay on the western side. From here the "sunset gun" is fired daily.

Grace Church—Broadway and 10th st. The first church building was located at Broadway and Rector st., the present one having been erected in 1845. Back of the church on Fourth ave. is the Gramercy Park—Located between Third and Fourth aves., 20th and 21st sts.; covers an area of about 1½ acres, set aside by S. B. Ruggles as a place of recreation for residents of this neighborhood. It is not open to the general public. Fronting this park is the "Players' Club," and the former residence of the late Samuel J. Tilden. Tablet: Gramercy Park—Gramercy Park, founded by Samuel B. Ruggles, 1831, commemorated by this tablet imbedded in the Gramercy farm by John Ruggles Strong, 1875.

Hall of Fame—Located in the Bronx, on the Harlem River. During the year 1900 the New York University received a gift of $100,000 for establishing a Hall of Fame to commemorate the names of preeminent Americans. The Ambulatory, or stone colonade half encircling the Memorial Library of the University was devoted for this purpose, and tablets are to be placed in it on which 150 names will be inscribed. Fifty of these names were selected in 1900 by a committee of 100 distinguished men, and five more every five years during the next century. Only 29 names received the required 51 votes from the committee in 1900 and the rest of the first 50 were selected in 1905. It can be reached by subway to Kingsbridge, and then a short walk across the Harlem River or by the Putnam Railroad, of the New York Central, from 155th st. and Eighth ave. to the University Heights Station. The Hall of Fame is situated on the New York University site, on University Heights. From it can be seen Washington Bridge, Highbridge, Manhattan on the south, the Hudson and the Palisades to the west, Kingsbridge, Fordham Heights and Yonkers to the north and views of the Bronx to the east. Just below lies the Harlem River.

Washington Colonial Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Residence of Charles M. Schwab—Riverside Drive and 73d st. This is said to be the handsomest and costliest residence in this country; the material used in construction was imported from Germany and other foreign countries. It is said that at the death of Mr. and Mrs. Schwab this property will revert to this city to be used as a museum.

St. Mark's Church—Located at Second ave. and Tenth st. One of the oldest churches in this city; its site was formerly a part of the farm of Petrus Stuyvesant, the last Dutch Governor of New Amsterdam, whose remains rest in a tomb under the edifice. Stewart, the merchant prince, was stolen, over twenty years ago. Tablet, St. Mark's Church: In this vault lies buried Petrus Stuyvesant, late Captain General and Governor-in-Chief of Amsterdam, in New Netherland, now called New York and the Dutch West India Islands. Died in A. D., 1672. Aged 80.

West Washington Market—Located at the foot of West 12th st., but was formerly extending along West st., on the river side to the market. It is here that all early fruits and vegetables from Bermuda Islands are received, and it has been estimated that during the peach season from 50,000 to 100,000 baskets are received daily.

Windsor Arcade—571 Fifth ave. This was the site of the Windsor Hotel which was destroyed by fire March 17, 1899, at which about fifty lives were lost.

SHORT TALKS

Seldom has there been such an attractive array of parasols as are found in the shops this season. The perishable, be-frilled chiffon styles that served no practical purpose and were extremely costly are no more seen. Their place has been taken by a variety of good styles that combine in a delightful way usefulness with beauty.

Among the simpler and least expensive are some of dotted silk mull, with colored flowers. These are made up over a thin colored silk lining, with an inch-wide hem of the same color. They are just the thing for country use, and make excellent cotillion favors.

The handkerchief parasol is covered with a Persian figured silk mull handkerchief or one of silk with the Persian border. The upper handkerchief retains its original form, while the under one is cleverly laid on to cover the lower portion of the ribs.

One of the most stunning of the new parasols is certainly of Japanese origin. It is embroidered in dull Oriental colors on a white ground, the design of conventional Japanese flowers, scattered over the white ground, while in the centre of each panel is a tiny jinrikisha, with occupant and runner.

Raffia is the newest material for the parasol. This is a dried grass from Madagascar, which has become very popular in Paris for not only parasols, but belts and bags. For parasols it is woven in quite a smooth effect, the ends of the grass sometimes being used as a fringe; others are finished with a one-inch hem.

The woman who carries a raffia parasol will want a belt and bag to match.

The bags are of decidedly new shapes and most of them ornamented with fringes; in shape, they are round, square and oblong. Some are intended to carry in the hand and others to be stuck in the belt.

Looking out my window, my attention is arrested by a maid on the roof of an apartment house opposite. She is hanging on the line automobile coats of fur, muffs, stoles, boas and everything in the fur line of rugs, etc. As I look, I wonder how she can do anything so foolish. She should know that this is the season when mater moth is flying around to find a cozy place to deposit her eggs. What more convenient than these furs? Pretty soon the maid will come and gather up the furs; they will be put away in a closet and the housewife will go away, feeling she at least has done her duty. In the fall when she returns she is horrified to find there is not an article that is not riddled, as the eggs so carefully deposited by mater moth hatched out in due time and the little moths had a feast. You naturally ask, How can we prevent this? In the first place, the closet must be scrubbed with hot water and soap, walls wiped down till there is not a particle of dust. The trunks or boxes must be cleaned in the same manner. Woolen dresses, coats, and overcoats must be brushed carefully and the tiniest spot removed. Now lay the article on the bed, fold and lay in newspaper, put in the trunk, cover with newspapers and naphthaline crystals, which can be purchased at the drug store. Rugs should be put away in the same manner. I can assure you if these directions are followed when you return in the fall every article will be found as you left it. As to valuable furs, I would recommend their being sent to a first class furrier, where they are cared for and insured against loss or damage by moth, fire or theft; and take pleasure in mentioning the old established house of C. G. Gunther's Sons, who for three generations have been known for their beautiful furs in quality and style, and whose cold storage for the care of all furs, fur-lined garments and rugs is equalled by none in the City of New York. MADAME ROBERTA.

MRS. She sang recently with the Boston "Handel-Hayden Society" in the "Messiah" and the Chicago "Apollo" in "Elijah."

BOOKS

Nearly all the good things about books have been said. "Every book is in an intimate sense a circular letter," says Robert Louis Stevenson, "to the friends of him who writes it. They alone take his meaning; they find private messages, assurances of love, and expressions of gratitude dropped for them in every corner. The public is but a generous patron who defrays the postage."

"When I consider what books have done for the world, and what they are doing," says James Freeman Clarke, "how they keep up our hope, awakening new courage and faith, soothe pain, give an ideal life to those whose hours are cold and hard, bind together distant ages and foreign lands, create new worlds of beauty, bring down Truth from heaven; I give eternal blessings for this gift, and thank God for books."

Anna Warner says: "A good book, whether a novel or not, is one that leaves you farther on than when you took it up. If, when you drop it, it drops you down in the same old spot, with no finer outlook, no cleared vision, no stimulated desires for that which is better and higher, it is in no sense a good book."

A book is a popular means of expression nowadays so that almost every one you meet has written one. The rest of us are trying to make up our minds what kind of a book we shall write. Whether it shall be about real lords and ladies in whose presence carpenters and various everyday folk are mere worms of the dust; or whether it shall be in dialect with platitudes worked up into phonetic spelling; or whether it shall be the story of our own lives, showing up some persons we could mention who have wandered into it to our discomfort; or whether it shall be in the colonial period, or the "gad-zooks" period; or yet a purpose novel, airing our reform ideas, showing things as they rudely are, so that the grown-ups must read it behind closed doors, and then hide it behind the rows of books on the shelves—a youth-corrupting, ideal-demolishing book that will later be dramatized.

So it turns out that the most of the books we write are never written at all, but are just dream books. Ah, the books we write every day in our dreams! What an output if they should all appear in book covers!

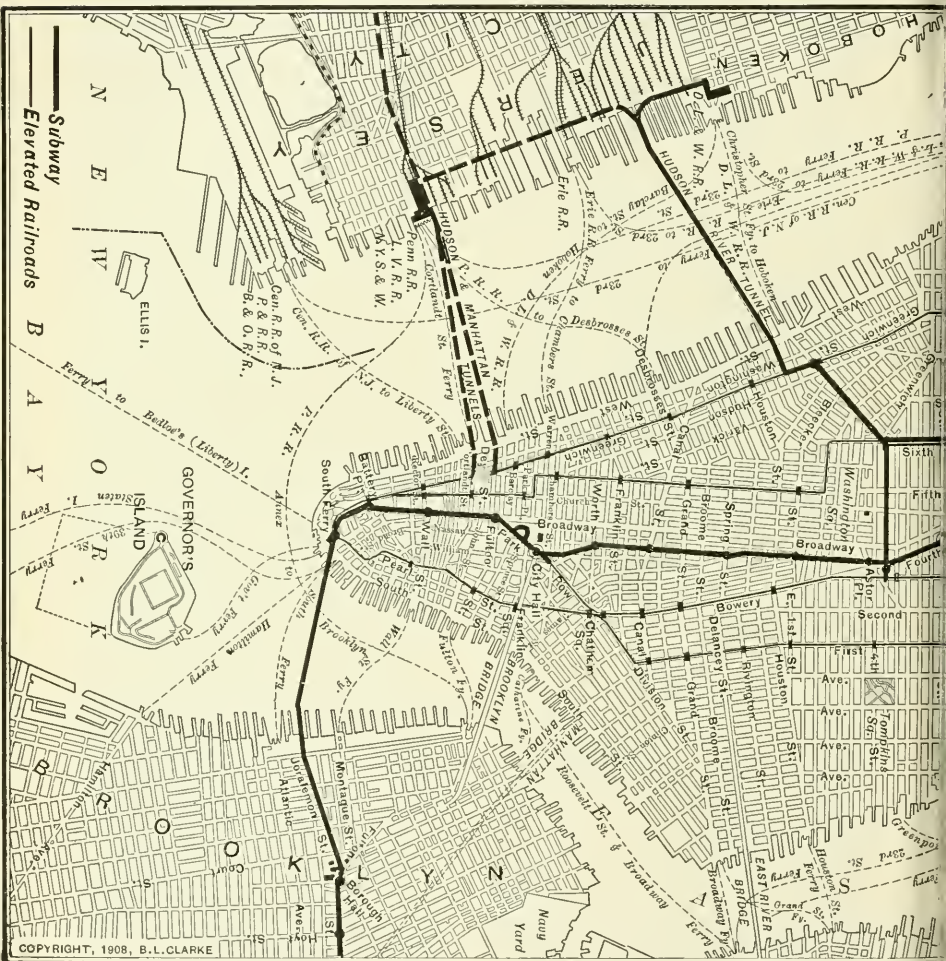

Hardly one of us but has written a dream book some time or another. They are so easy to write, and unquestionably they are the best books, for they belong to the realm of the ideal. Every time you are alone by yourself you can write on this book. In the night when you cannot sleep, what a boon to insomnia! No pen and paper needed, no ink, no midnight oil, no stenographer; no writer's cramp, no brain fog, no pain even under your shoulder blade, nor a crick in your neck. But the words crowd in fast and furious to express your ideas, and both words and ideas pressing in upon one another's heels. The repartee is swift and buoyant and vital, the padding brilliant, the scenery clever, and nothing is dull or difficult. These are the only books in which there are no mistakes, no errors in proof-reading that stand out in phosphorescent letters on the wall in the night time; they are beautifully illustrated by the best artists who always understand your story. Your dream novel, your one book that leaves no bad impression, that is appreciated by all the critics, has satisfactory notices, goes into innumerable editions, the royalties of which put you on Easy Street where you live happy ever after. Every time when you are alone by yourself you write on this book, and you are never lonely. And sometimes you dip into your own heart and write; lay it bare with such intensity that fame would come thundering down about your ears in no time if your book ever went to press. But your secret is the price of fame and you die undiscovered. HARRYOT HOLT DEY.

SEVEN-GORED SKIRT 6298.

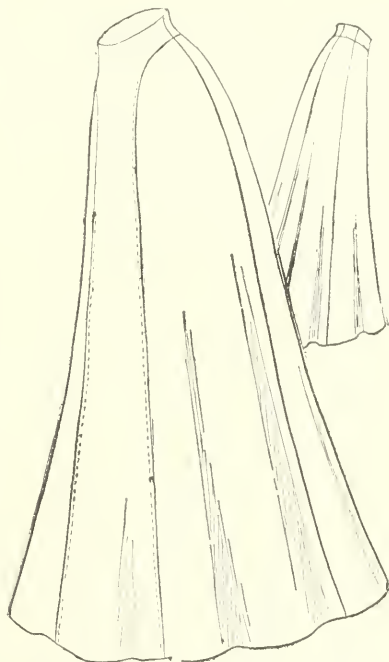

Every variation of the plain gored skirt is in style just now and this one is shaped to give a panel and girdle effect while it is exceedingly simple. It is adapted to all seasonable materials heavy enough to be made in so simple a style, and the list includes linen and pongee as well as wool fabrics, while among the latter are checks and stripes and novelties galore in addition to the familiar serges, chevots, cloths and the like. The lines are all of the best and, as the skirt can be made either in walking or in round length, it is adapted both to the simpler costume of runabout wear and to the gown designed for visiting and occasions of the sort. In the illustration mulberry colored French serge is finished with stitching in tailor style.

The pattern 6298 is cut in sizes for a 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32-inch waist measure and will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents. (If in haste, send an additional two-cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.)

The blouse, finished with a Dutch collar, is one of the pronounced favorites of the season, and it has innumerable advantages. It is delightfully pleasant to wear, it is very generally becoming, and it is greatly utilized for pongee and other washable silks as well as for muslins of all sorts, linen and the like. This one is adapted to every seasonable material and both to the gown and to the odd waist. In the illustration it is made of light weight linen and the collar and cuffs are simply scalloped and embroidered with little dots. But more embroidery could be used on the collar and cuffs if liked, and the sleeves allow a choice of full or three-quarter length. Made from very thin, sheer material, such as the cotton marquisette and the like, it becomes an exceedingly dainty blouse while made from linen or poplin it becomes a sturdy one, and it is equally smart put to both uses.

The pattern 6316 is cut in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42-inch bust measure, and will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents. (If in haste, send an additional two-cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.)

ART NOTES

Metropolitan Museum of Art—82d st. and Fifth ave. Free (except Monday and Friday, when a fee of 25 cents is charged). Hours: 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.; Saturday, 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.; Sunday, 1 to 5.30 p. m. Recent accessions: An Italian Triptych of the Fifteenth Century. This triptych, recently acquired in Italy, is of interest for its unusual arrangement. That it was used as a reliquary may be seen by the twelve small coffers at the base originally covered by glass. The iconography and arrangement are curious, the three panels being divided by means of patterns stamped in the gold background, into no less than sixteen scenes. The subjects are as follows: Left panel: (1) Flight into Egypt, (2) Christ Among the Doctors, (3) The Last Supper, (4) The Agony in the Garden.

THE END OF THE WORLD

The end of the world—the horror of it used to keep us awake nights when we were small. There was no use in denying the inevitable. Gabriel's trump was likely to sound at any moment, whereupon things were due to happen. There would be an earthquake, the sun would go black, the moon turn to blood, the heavens would fall, the stars scatter, buildings totter, mountains take fire, there would be thunder and lightning, the clouds would rain sparks and hailstones, and the dead would escape from the graveyards and parade around in their shrouds, and we—well, where would we be? What would become of us in the midst of all these unusual proceedings? The end of the world was orthodox and literal, the same as the golden city with its gates of pearl and streets of jasper. The end of the world as we knew it, was a kind of a little Nemo dream in the childhood of a good many of us, a kind of a spectacular climax with red fire which we would be sorry to miss, but which frightened us to death when we considered it. But we gathered confidence as the years came and went and came and nothing happened, and as we grew older we gradually forgot about this black beast of childhood. Since then we have learned that it is mostly the unexpected that happens.

Some of us have lived to see the end of the world come. We have seen the sun turn black, and a dark, heavy curtain dropped between us and the future, shutting out the sunshine and the days; and then later as we have staggered to our feet, groping blindly, we have realized that the end of the world is an individual affair, just come to one of us, and that the world is going on just the same; finally we pull together what there is left to us of forces and interests, and try to belong to its emptiness. But it's not the same world. It's another world, but it has to do. It's all there is left, the best we have, and it's inevitable, but it's different.

with the loss of some one we needed, and it comes to us with disappointment and disillusion. An idol totters from its pedestal where we humanly placed it—as if we had a right to "other Gods before Me"—and again it's not the same world, but it's the best we have, and we have no alternative but to accept such as it offers and go on. But it's different. The world is very different after the end of it comes to us for the first time. After it comes to us the second time it doesn't matter so much, and finally we get to where the world doesn't exist at all. The material world has passed away, merged into the spiritual understanding. Now at last we can discriminate. We can tell the real on sight, and we know the unreal at a glance. ONLY THAT WHICH CHANGETH NOT IS REAL! We almost begin to understand what our end of the world was for—what it meant.

The dream of our childhood came true. Desolation came and announced that it had come to stay. What were earthquakes, moons of blood, mountains of flame, and hailstones of fire, compared to what really came to us with our end of the world! All those fearful Nemo dreams of the past were but puny nightmares.

Heaven followed the end of the world, though (the Sunday School teacher said so), and that was certainly a compensation. The world passed away and the gates of the city opened beyond. The foundation of the walls of the city was garnished with precious stones, sapphire, emerald, topaz and amethyst were only a few; the foundation was of jasper and the gates were of pearl. We must be very good in order to go there. We expected to work out all our Sunday School lessons there.

Now, the same as then, the Kingdom of Heaven follows the end of the world. But the Kingdom of Heaven is within you, right here and now—after your end of the world!

A FEW FERRY TRIPS

A trip on the ferry from the foot of West 23rd st. across to Jersey, taking the Annex to Fulton st., Brooklyn, and return, gives one a pleasant sail of a couple of hours and a view of the "skyscrapers," the Battery, Statue of Liberty and Brooklyn Bridge, at a small cost.

Another trip may be made from foot of East 42nd st., down the East River to Broadway, Brooklyn, taking boat from there to foot of Roosevelt st., Manhattan, at adjoining slip, and return.

Still another trip may be taken by taking the ferry at foot of Franklin st., North River, to Weehawken, thence by trolley to Fourteenth st., Hoboken, changing there to the Washington st. car for Hoboken ferry, across to the foot of West 23rd st., Christopher or Barclay st., New York.

A ferry trip that almost circumnavigates Manhattan Island can be made by taking boat at foot of Fulton st., East River, across to Brooklyn. Take Annex (slip next to Fulton ferry) and go to Jersey City; take Pennsylvania ferry to West 23rd st. At 23rd st. take car to 42d st. Take ferry at foot of West 42nd st. for Weehawken. Take trolley from Weehawken to Fort Lee, where another car must be taken to Edgewater, at which point take ferry to 130th st., Manhattan. Take a trolley across town to East 99th st., walk to the river from the car and take ferry, which will carry you through Hell Gate and into the Sound to College Point. From College Point take trolley to Long Island City and to Astoria. Take ferry to East 92nd st. From here take Second ave. trolley to East 42nd st. ferry, down the East River to Broadway, Brooklyn. Take boat at adjoining slip to Roosevelt st., Manhattan, and you are back almost to the starting point.

It is generally the idle who complain they cannot find time to do that which they fancy they wish.—Lubbock.

TROLLEY TRIPS

From New York to Mount Vernon one may take any one of three routes—one direct from 129th st. and Third ave., at the Harlem River Bridge, by way of Webster ave.; a second on the West Farms and Williamsbridge car from the same point, changing to Webster ave. car at Williamsbridge; the third from the Bronx Borough side of the Harlem River at Central Bridge, take the Sixth ave. "L" to 155th st. and Eighth ave. (end of line) and walk over the viaduct and bridge. This third car (from Central Bridge) goes up Jerome ave. From Mount Vernon—Yonkers, Hastings, Tuckahoe, Pelham, New Rochelle, East Chester, Larchmont, Larchmont Manor, Mamaroneck, Rye, Rye Beach, White Plains, Tarrytown, Portchester may be reached.

Take the Fordham line at 128th st. and Third ave., north to Third and Tremont aves., transfer east to Tremont ave. line to Unionport. For Throgg's Neck and Fort Schuyler, from which an excellent view of Long Island Sound can be obtained, transfer again in Westchester Village. Returning, take Tremont ave. line to West Farms, transfer to West Farms line, south-bound, or Tremont ave. line to Webster ave.; transfer to Mt. Vernon line, to 128th st. and Third ave.

Fordham or Mt. Vernon line at 128th st. and Third ave., to Tremont ave., transfer to western division of Tremont ave. line on Burnside, Cedar and Sedgwick aves. to High Bridge. University Heights (Hall of Fame). Returning via Sedgwick ave. to Jerome ave. line to "L" station at 155th st. and Eighth ave., or continuing east to 161st st. and Third ave., then transfer south on Third ave. to starting point. By walking across High Bridge to Amsterdam ave., south-bound Amsterdam, Sixth or Third ave. car can be taken to Manhattan.

A debt of honor is usually not.—The Silent Partner.

SHORT TALKS

The separate waist continues to be a favorite, despite the costume and little dress. It will be a difficult matter to find a substitute for so comfortable, becoming and useful a garment. Ask yourself the question, What are you to wear with a two-piece tailored suit if not the shirt waist? Paris as we know adopted the separate waist just as it has more recently the short skirt, and it is from there our best styles in lingerie and silk waists are imported.

There is no garment more suited to warm weather than the white washable separate waist, whether it be in tailored or more elaborate style. It is so dainty and cool looking that the woman to whom freshness is a requisite will flatly refuse to give them up. There are so many occasions when nothing is quite so appropriate to wear as the white linen waist. They are so trim and tidy that nothing will take their place for travelling.

The shops are evidently of this opinion, for there was never a greater array of the separate waist.

There are the elaborate net and lace, light weight satin finished silks, the practical taffeta silks and ponges, white lingerie waists in all styles and prices, and tailored styles in madras and linen without number.

The colored net waist is shown in all the fashionable colors as well as in black and white.

The net waist is fashionable worn with the cloth coat and skirt of the same color. It is much cooler than a waist of the same material and the stylish effect of the one-color scheme is preserved throughout the toilet.

As regards the length of the sleeve, the long, close-fitting was the chosen model from the beginning of the season for those ranging from $10 to $25.

The frilled front waist is still in great favor. The effectiveness is well acknowledged. A properly laundered frill front waist conveys the strictly tailored idea, yet is relieved from the unbecoming severity of the plain tucked waist. Where the frill is not attached to the blouse itself a separate frill is often worn with these tailored waists.

The use of cream lace on white shirt waists is a noticeable feature of the season. Several different shades of cream are worn, from butter to a deep tan.

A very smart waist seen in a Fifth avenue shop is laid in inch tucks, set an inch apart, each tuck edged with a half-inch heavy Irish lace, dyed a deep cream white; crocheted link buttons fasten the front pleat in a novel manner.

Crêpes, spotted in colors, are better liked than the all-white crêpe.

A call on Araminta this morning found her busy with her "Pass on," which, explained, is that Araminta conceived the idea of dissecting a magazine so it could be enjoyed by one who was sick and whose hands and arms are tired with the weight of a book. She carefully cuts out a short story, makes a cover just the size of the page, and for the cover she finds a pretty colored blotter is the best, combining the quality of light weight and flexibility. She places the leaves and back together, then punches three holes, which are tied with ribbon. She was busy with the beautiful story of the "Red City," which appeared in serial form in the "Century" of last year, by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell. She makes a book of each number of the magazine and carries out the idea of sending an installment so it will reach the sick one every Monday morning, as she sweetly says, so they will have something to look forward to. The words "Pass on," which are pasted on the back, mean exactly that it is to be passed on after reading. Other matter is arranged the same way and sent to one who would appreciate it.

MADAME ROBERTA.

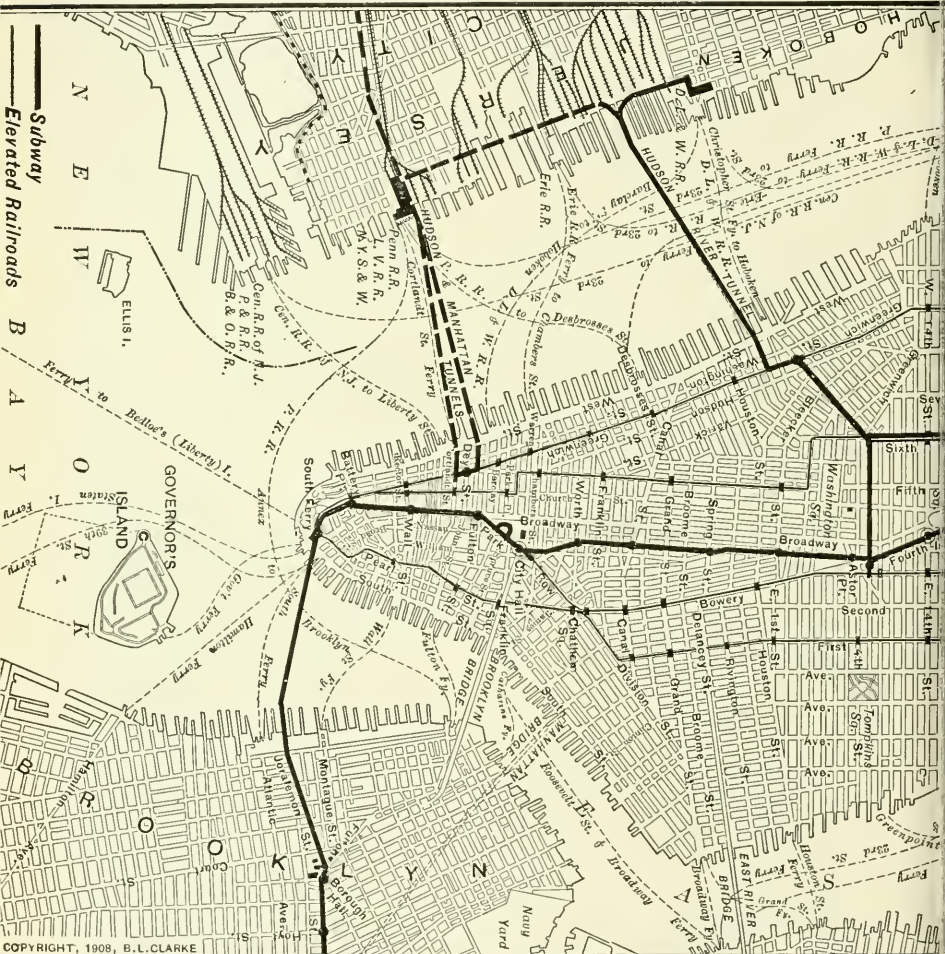

What a man knows should find its expression in what he does. The value of superior knowledge is chiefly in that it leads to a performing manhood.—Bovee.

THE CUSTOM HOUSE OF NEW YORK

The new Custom House, situated at the foot of Broadway, on Bowling Green, is one of the largest and most beautiful custom houses in the world. The architect was Cass Gilbert, and the estimated cost is about $4,500,000. This massive structure is of Maine granite with an Ionic portico, sustained by fluted pillars of granite reached by a broad flight of steps, the building being seven stories in height. The interior is one large rotunda, covered by a dome supported on eight massive columns of Italian marble, whose Corinthian capitals were carved in Italy, from which look the head of Mercury, ancient god of commerce. In the keystones of the window arches are carved heads, typical of the types of mankind—Caucasian, oak branches; Latin and Celt, grapes; Eskimo, fur hood; Hindu, lotus leaves; Mongol, poppy; African, pine cones.

On the sixth floor, extending across the Bowling Green facade, are twelve statues carved from Tennessee marble, and represent seafaring powers, both ancient and modern, which have had commerce with all parts of the world. The subjects are: England (Charles Graby), Britannia, with hand on steering wheel and bearing a shield with the image of St. George; France (Charles Graby) wears the liberty cap and holds a statue to indicate pre-eminence in the fine arts, the Frenchman's challenge to the world is proclaimed by a crowing cock; Germany (Albert Jaegers) is an idealization of Germania, her cuirass is the royal eagle, her shield bears the name Kiel; Denmark (Johannes Gelert) represents a woman Viking carrying a boarding pike, supplemented by ropes and tackle; Portugal (Louis St. Gaudens), Prince Henry the Navigator clad in mediaeval armor; Holland (Louis St. Gaudens), Admiral van Tromp represented with characteristic plumed, broad-brimmed hat, boots and long sword; Spain (F. M. Tonetti), Isabella the Catholic is represented wearing the royal crown and robes on which are embroidered the castles and lions of Castile and Arragon and the Collar of the Golden Fleece; her right hand rests on a globe, the left on sculptured arms, with the little Santa Maria of the fleet of Columbus; Venice (F. M. Tonetti), this statue is represented by the Doge Mariano Falieri in a magnificently embroidered robe and holding the prow of a gondola; Genoa (Augustus Lukeman), Columbus the Great Discoverer is clad in armor with two-handed sword; crouching at his feet is an open-jawed dragon, typifying the great triumph of Columbus over superstition, bigotry and ignorance; Phoenicia (F. M. Ruchstuhl), ancient oared galley; Rome (F. E. Elwell) is represented by a soldier of the Empire bearing the mace and crushing a barbarian captive to his knees; Greece (F. E. Elwell), this statue is exemplified by Pallas-Athene with shield and cuirass.

On pedestals are sculptured marble groups, each being allegorical, representing the four continents by Daniel Chester French, each being personified as a woman showing the development of the racial type; America, seated on a stone covered with barbaric inscriptions, holds in one hand the lighted torch of progress; the other signifies labor being extended protectingly above a figure; an Indian peers over her shoulder, the eagle by her side; on her knees rest sheaves of grain; Europe, seated on a throne carved with the emblems of achievement, the open book of the past, the globe the sphere of empire, the ships' prows for exploration; Africa is seated between a lion and a sphinx, reclining against an Egyptian pillar, her attitude being one of hopelessness; Asia, holding the lotus flower, and in her lap is a figure of the Buddha; beneath her feet are skulls of the victims of oppression; with eyes closed and passive countenance, she is heedless of the prayers of the kneeling Hindu, Chinese coolie, whose arms are bound, and the suppliant woman bound by injustice of the ages; a tiger glares into her face and behind her shines the cross of the Christian religion.

There is a cartouche by Karl Bitter on the Bowling Green front, displaying the shield of the United States supported by two female figures and surmounted by an American eagle with outstretched wings, the sheathed sword typifying power and security of peace, the bundle of reeds the strength of the States united.

In the reception room of the Collectors Office a tablet will be found on which reads this inscription: "On this site Fort Amsterdam was erected in 1626. Government House was built in 1790 for President Washington. Here

SEMI- PRINCESSE GOWN 6301

Just such gowns as this one will be extensively worn throughout the warm weather season. They will be made with the sleeves to match the chemisette, giving a guimpe effect as in this instance, and with sleeves of the material, and both styles will be equally correct. This model gives the modified Empire waist line that is generally becoming and is tucked over the hips in a way to suggest the outline of the figure, without being tight. It is graceful and becoming yet simple withal and will be found adapted to almost the entire range of seasonable materials. Poulard with trimming of banding and chemisette and sleeves of tuck net are the materials illustrated, but there are many cotton and silk and cotton materials that are exceedingly beautiful this year, all of which make up attractively by the design, while it also makes a good model for net, crepe Ninon, marquissette and all materials of the sort.

The pattern 6301 is cut in sizes for a 32, 34 36, 38 and 40-inch bust measure and will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents.

Important Information

HOW THE TAXAMETER WORKS

When the flag is lowered, 50 cents will appear under the word "Fare," and this
pays for the use of the cab until service
to that amount, either in driving or in waiting, has been rendered. The indicator will register thereafter 10 cents for each quarter-mile or each fraction of an hour of waiting. This charge is for the exact distance traveled and the exact
waiting time consumed, which are automatically measured by the taxameter, and
over which the driver has no control.

SUM OF THE AMOUNTS SHOWN UN-
DER "FARE" AND "EXTRAS." THERE
ARE NO CHARGES EXCEPT THOSE
INDICATED BY THE TAXAMETER.

The driver is charged with all amounts
registered, and is not permitted to make
quired, give a receipt for the amount paid.

TO SECURE COMPLETE PROTEC-TION, observe (a) that the flag is lowered at the beginning of service and not
before; (b) that the flag is maintained
in that position during service; (c) that

the flag is promptly brought to "Payment" position at the conclusion of the service, and left there until the charge is
settled.

IF THE CAB IS DISABLED, the service up to the disablement must be paid
for.

A CAB REPORTING AT AN ADDRESS
in reponse to an order is charged for
from the time for which it was ordered.

A CAB ORDERED AND NOT USED
must be paid for up to the time the driver
is dismissed, including the charge for sending it.

THEATRE AND OTHER RETURNS.
Waiting time and any necessary mileage
will be charged for a vehicle held for a return call. If the vehicle is dismissed
with orders to return, the driver will collect for the service already rendered,
adding an extra charge of $1.00 (to be registered on the taxameter) for guaranteeing the return call. Under no conditions may a cab be held in waiting
without charge.

IN CASE OF DISPUTE, passengers are requested to pay the full amount indicated and make claim to the Company,
in writing, giving the hour, date, driver
and cab number, number of passengers
carried, distance traveled and waiting
time consumed, and wherein the charge
is incorrect. Such claims will receive prompt and courteous attention.

THE ACCURACY OF THE TAXA-
METER is insured by systematic inspection. Do not assume that a charge is incorrect without first computing all of
the distance and all of the waiting time

TO GET A CAB, telephone 2380 Columbus at any hour, day or night, and the nearest available vehicle will be promptly dispatched. Cabs are always in waiting at our various stands, or may be hailed and engaged on the street. When
the flag is displayed above the taxa-
meter, the cab is disengaged and can be

Pearl Street—Received its name on account of the pearl shells found along its path; is the oldest street in the city. There are three tablets of interest located at No. 73 Pearl st., the site of the first Dutch house of entertainment on the Island of Manhattan. Later the site of the old "Stadt Huys" or City Hall. This tablet was placed here by the Holland Society of New York, September, 1890. No. 81 Pearl st.: On this site William Bradford, appointed public printer April 10, A. D. 1693; established the first printing press in the colony of New York. Erected by the Historical Society

April 10, A. D. 1893, in commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the introduction of printing in New York. No. 88 Pearl st.: Destroyed 1835, in conflagration of December 16, 17. Six hundred and fifty buildings containing merchandise were consumed in one night; loss, $20,000,000. Rebuilt, 1836. Again destroyed by fire, 1853.

Seward Monument—Located at the southwest corner of Madison Square. Erected in 1876. and designed by Randolph Rogers.

Sheltering Arms—504 West 129th st. This institution is for the care of homeless children for whom no provision is made by many other of our societies.

Stewart Mansion—Located at the northwest corner of Fifth ave., at 34th st.; was the former home of the late A. T. Stewart and was erected at a cost of $2,000,000; at one time the headquarters of the Manhattan Club, and now occupied by the Knickerbocker Trust Company.

Times Building—B'way, Seventh ave. and 42d st. This is sometimes called "Flatiron" building No. 2, as it is one of the tallest buildings above 34th st. It is here that "The New York Times" has its home.

Union Theological Seminary—Located between 69th and 70th sts. on Park ave. Founded in 1836 and was removed from University Place to present site in 1884.

Wall Street—At lower Broadway, opposite to Trinity Church. The street is about half a mile long and derives its name from the fact that the city wall followed its course in the old Dutch days. In 1709 a slave market was in progress at the foot of this street and slaves were brought to this city in large numbers. It was here that Washington landed in 1789 on his way to take oath of office as first President of the United States in 1789.

ART NOTES

Lenox Library—71st st. and Fifth ave. During June and July in the lower hall of the Library will be given over to an exhibition of Engravings after paintings by Raphael. These prints form part of the collection formed by the late Dr. Wilhelm Engelmann, many being signed proofs. These line engravings range from the sixteenth to the nineteenth century, from the work of the Master F. G. to that of C. F. Müller, the ill-fated author of the famous plate after the Sistine Madonna. Of the older engravers, Marc Antonio Raimondi, Gottzius and Hollar are particularly well represented. Raimondi's "Massacre of the Innocents" in both versions, with and without the "Chicot" (pine tree). Printing in tints from wood blacks, in imitation of wash drawings.

THE CHURCH IN THE FORT

THE MARBLE COLLEGIATE CHURCH, Fifth Avenue and Twentieth Street, originally The Church in the Fort, was organized by the Dutch with Rev. Jonas Michaelius as its first ordained minister, 281 years ago, and is the oldest church in America. The first permanent edifice was erected in 1633 on the site now known as 39 Pearl Street.

The present building was dedicated in 1854 and is known to-day throughout the land for its hospitality to strangers within its gates.

Rev. Fred J. Barny, Missionary to Arabia, will preach Sunday, June 13th, at 11 a. m., and at 8 p. m. Rev. Alfred E. Myers will preach.

DOGS

All persons who are interested in dogs have received a severe scoring of late from my colleagues of the press. One of New York's distinguished medical authorities on mental and nervous diseases gives to this predilection on the part of women for dogs a high-sounding name, much too highfalutin for here. The disease manifests itself in tormenting ideas about the sufferings of dogs and flowers, to the exclusion of the more rational sympathy for the woes and grievances of human beings. Now, the ink bottle making this page is here to take the part of the dogs and the women who like them. Why, bless your soul, there are plenty of women who don't even like a dog. There are women with so much enmity in their systems that a doctor who knows his business, prescribes a dog, thinking that a dog might arouse an idea that would develop compassion or some other kindred sentiment of kindness. Instead of rounding up with a good scolding the women who like dogs, the better way would be to take off your hat to the dog. Why hate to see a dog hugged? But there are some people who are so mean that they hate to see even a baby hugged. There are plenty people that, however they see a thing done, some other way is the way they would like better to see it.

The maternal spark glows in the hearts of all normal women. Childless women fasten their affections upon a dog. They play dolls with them. A dog is pretty good society at that. He never gossips, never is disloyal to a friend, and—why, some one has made the comparison: "mean as a dog" and "low as a dog"; a dog is neither low nor mean; a dog is faithful and true, and after every one you know has deserted, you are always sure of one friend. However despised you may be by your own kind, your dog is still faithful, honest and true, never disloyal even in thought, and believes in you even when you have lost faith in yourself.

Caring for a dog is very different from caring for a baby. For example, when you put your dog in his dog-basket for the night, you can go to sleep without first slipping the croup medicine under your pillow. You don't have to get up in the cold to heat bottles of milk, and you don't have to walk the floor with the dog. When you go driving you can take the dog along, knowing what kind of behavior to count on. Would the baby sit up on the carriage seat beside you, and behave himself? Anybody who knows anything about a baby, knows how many ideas he has, and how soon he learns to run things, what a monopolist he is, and what he does when things do not suit him. The baby might go once. On all future occasions it would be the dog who would be invited. You tie a bow on the dog's collar—a bow that harmonizes with your costume—and he is dressed and ready. By the time you get the baby dressed to go, you are about ready to remain at home yourself. Four people are none too many to get the baby ready, and we don't all have retinues of retainers at hand.

When the baby gets hungry, maybe you know how he behaves. When your dog is ever so hungry, he sits up on his hind legs and begs, and every one admires him for his amiable sagacity. Few persons, even the kind-hearted, critical ones, admire the baby when he is suddenly attacked by the pangs of hunger.

"I am here to state," says the ink bottle from which these words do flow, "that I feel it my duty to commend the taste of the women who prefer dogs, and also I wish to call the attention of the gentle reader to their keen perspicacity. Suppose they took their nursery out by a leash. Who would photograph them for publication? Who wouldn't run and still keep on running? The people who revile women for liking dogs, are ill-natured persons who would jeer still louder if the women made as much fuss over a baby show as they do over a dog show."

SHORT TALKS

Every week distinct novelties in bags are shown in the shops.

The squaw bag, which had such a vogue here during the winter, has brought about the extensive use of fringe on bags of all sorts.

We mention a soft suède bag in khaki brown with a silk fringe bound in with the leather along the frame. The fringe exactly the length of the bag, and entirely covers it.

Other suède bags have short fringe, about two and a half inches in depth, knotted into the bottom and sides.

A winter fashion sufficiently attractive to insure it a long life is the use of cord handles on suède bags. The cords are long, in double strands, and either twisted round or braided flat. They are knotted to form a handle of ordinary length.

These bags with the soft cords are a most graceful adjunct to the toilette.

The very latest of this type in shape is oblong, with rounded corners. The novel feature of this bag is the two bars, suède-covered, set about two inches from the top on either side, and fastened to the flaps or sides with gold rivets. A small gold plate for the monogram is set below the bar on one side.

Jet is very cleverly introduced in some of the new bags. One very smart style has the frame of gold half an inch wide, in which are set cut squares of jet. The bag of brown suède.

Rather large bags of bordered tussahs are new and striking. They are made from squares of the silk, and mounted flat on frames exactly as are the leather bags. Cord handles in tussah shade. This bag is in the natural pongee color, with a three-inch border in black and dull blue, or black and brick red.

Bags and purses of gold and silver tricot are seen in better grades. The latest of these shows the zig-zag pattern worked out in alternate stripings of gold and silver, in exact imitation of the costly purses of aluminum and gold, which have never before been imitated.

Small coin purses of cloth of gold are very handsome.

The newest in gold card-case and purse combined is small, but very completely fitted. It is oblong in shape, about two and a half by four inches. Inside there is a spring guard on one side for holding the cards, and on the other compartments for change, a tiny powder puff and powder, and a mirror. They are in dull gold finish, with or without chasings.

Machine-made bead bags are larger than they were last season, and show the influence of the squaw bag in the finish of bead fringe, two inches deep. In black and white, with gold and silver beads, they are quite effective.

A small, dressy bag of novel type is of heavy silk crochet, drawn through with baby ribbon in a matching shade, and mounted on the regulation metal frame. These are only in small sizes, and in brown and gray exclusively.

For wear with colored linen frocks are bags of the dress linen, heavily braided or embroidered, and mounted on metal frames, exactly as are the leather bags.

Bags of heavy Irish crochet to be worn with lingerie dresses are found only in the high grade shops which are noted for their distinctive styles in lingerie blouses and dresses.

A new bracelet bag is four inches long, of fine suède, and suspended from a metal bracelet by fine inch straps of the leather.

In footwear the marked novelty is the use of the black suède boot with white dresses. The high-button boot of black suède will be the style affected this summer with the white dress by the smartly dressed woman.

The latest development in millinery is the vogue of black, which is rapidly becoming a craze.

POINTS OF INTEREST

American S. P. C. A.—The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, incorporated April 10, 1866, and is supported by voluntary contributions; located at 50 Madison ave., corner 26th st. This society maintains a uniformed force of officers with police power for the enforcement of the humane laws, and has special ambulances and life-saving apparatus for the rescue and transportation of disabled animals.

It is under the supervision of the Department of Public Charities. Established 1826. The city morgue is located on the grounds of this institution, which is open day and night.

Bryant Park—On Sixth ave., between 40th and 42d sts., was named for William Cullen Bryant, and occupies the site of the old Crystal Palace, which was destroyed by fire in 1858, and in which was held the first world's fair in the United States.

Consolidated Stock Exchange—Organized in 1875, under the title of the New York Mining Stock Exchange, and merged with the American Mining Stock Exchange, the National Petroleum, the Miscellaneous Security Board and the New York Petroleum Exchange and Stock Board. Located at 36 Beaver st. Open to visitors from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Grand Central Station—42d st. and Park ave., used exclusively by the two railroads which gives actual entrance into the heart of the city. It has been estimated that over five hundred trains arrive and depart daily from this station.

Herald Square—35th st., Broadway and Sixth ave. Here is to be found the statue of William E. Dodge; the home of the daily newspaper, "The New York Herald," and a large number of department stores.

Kip's Bay—Foot of 36th st., East River. It was named in honor of Hendrick Kip, and it was here that the British landed in 1776 when making their first attack on the army under command of Washington.

Lenox Library—Located on Fifth ave., between 70th and 71st sts.; was founded by James Lenox, a noted collector of literary and art treasures; was opened to the public in January, 1877, and was incorporated in 1870. The cost was about $1,000,000, which was borne by the founder.

Liberty Island—Also known as Bedloe's Island, located in the Bay off the Battery. Previous to 1860 was used as a place of execution, and at one time contained a fortification named Fort Wood; the star-shaped walls form the outlying boundaries for the pedestal of the Statue of Liberty, which is also called "Liberty Enlightening the World." This statue was designed by Bartholdi, a French sculptor, in 1879, and was completed and presented to the United States as a token of esteem by the French nation in 1883. The pedestal cost over $250,000, which was raised by public subscription. Height from base to torch, 151 feet. There are 154 steps in the statue from the pedestal to the head, and the ladder leading up through the extended right arm to the torch has 54 rounds. Round trips are made every half hour from Battery Pier, near the Aquarium, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. Fare, 25 cents.

O. Mills as a hotel for men of moderate means; located at 160 Bleecker st. Clean and more than comfortable rooms are to be had for 20 cents a night. They are nicely fitted, containing iron bedstead, hair mattress, clean linen, which is changed daily, chairs, locker and electric light. A large store room in the basement is arranged for baggage where the guests have easy access to it at all times. There are also reading rooms (restaurant), and plunge bath, all without extra charge.

Pearl Street—Received its name on account of the pearl shells found along its path; is the oldest street in the city. There are three tablets of interest located at No. 73 Pearl st., the site of the first Dutch house of entertainment on the Island of Manhattan. Later the site of the old "Stadt Huys" or City Hall. This tablet was placed here by the Holland Society of New York, September, 1890. No. 81 Pearl st.: On this site William Bradford, appointed public printer April 10, A. D. 1693; established the first printing press in the colony of New York. Erected by the Historical Society April 10, A. D. 1893, in commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the introduction of printing in New York. No. 88 Pearl st.: Destroyed 1835, in conflagration of December 16, 17. Six hundred and fifty buildings containing merchandise were consumed in one night; loss, $20,000,000. Rebuilt, 1836. Again destroyed by fire, 1853.

Phong, Fat & Co.—Just across Fifth ave. from the "Flatiron" Building, at 6 West 22d st., is probably the most unique store in the city. It is unique particularly for its wares. It is also unique in that strangers in the city are welcome to look around to their heart's content, even though they do not purchase, and admire the thousands of beautiful as well as useful pieces which bear witness of the wonderful skill of the Oriental craftsman. Courteous clerks are here to supply the visitor with any information that they may desire concerning these beautiful wares. Every man, woman and child will find many things of interest in the wonderful display of moderately priced fine hand-made chinaware, brasses, bronzes, hand-carved ivories and sandal-wood, embroidered waist, dress and robe patterns in silk, linen and cotton crepe, things made of bamboo, silverware novelties, antiques and thousands of other things that are well worth more than a passing glance and which cannot be appreciated without seeing them.

Stewart Mansion—Located at the northwest corner of Fifth ave., at 34th st.; was the former home of the late A. T. Stewart and was erected at a cost of $2,000,000; at one time the headquarters of the Manhattan Club, and now occupied by the Knickerbocker Trust Company.

Times Building—B'way, Seventh ave. and 42d st. This is sometimes called "Flatiron" building No. 2, as it is one of the tallest buildings above 34th st. It is here that "The New York Times" has its home.

Union Theological Seminary—Located between 69th and 70th sts., on Park ave. Founded in 1836 and was removed from University Place to present site in 1884.

Wall Street—At lower Broadway, opposite to Trinity Church. The street is about half a mile long and derives its name from the fact that the city wall followed its course in the old Dutch days. In 1709 a slave market was in progress at the foot of this street and slaves were brought to this city in large numbers. It was here that Washington landed in 1789 on his way to take oath of office as first President of the United States in 1789.

senger. If the taxameter is out of order, fare will be charged at regular legal rates.

HOW THE TAXAMETER WORKS

When the flag is lowered, 50 cents will appear under the word "Fare," and this
pays for the use of the cab until service
to that amount, either in driving or in waiting, has been rendered. The indicator will register thereafter 10 cents for each quarter-mile or each fraction of an hour of waiting. This charge is for the exact distance traveled and the exact
waiting time consumed, which are automatically measured by the taxameter, and
over which the driver has no control.

SUM OF THE AMOUNTS SHOWN UN-
DER "FARE" AND "EXTRAS." THERE
ARE NO CHARGES EXCEPT THOSE
INDICATED BY THE TAXAMETER.

The driver is charged with all amounts registered, and is not permitted to make
quired, give a receipt for the amount paid.

TO SECURE COMPLETE PROTEC-TION, observe (a) that the flag is lowered at the beginning of service and not
before; (b) that the flag is maintained
in that position during service; (c) that

the flag is promptly brought to "Payment" position at the conclusion of the service, and left there until the charge is
settled.

IF THE CAB IS DISABLED, the service up to the disablement must be paid
for.

A CAB REPORTING AT AN ADDRESS
in response to an order is charged for
from the time for which it was ordered.

A CAB ORDERED AND NOT USED
must be paid for up to the time the driver
is dismissed, including the charge for sending it.

THEATRE AND OTHER RETURNS.
Waiting time and any necessary mileage
will be charged for a vehicle held for a return call. If the vehicle is dismissed
with orders to return, the driver will collect for the service already rendered,
adding an extra charge of $1.00 (to be registered on the taxameter) for guaranteeing the return call. Under no conditions may a cab be held in waiting
without charge.

IN CASE OF DISPUTE, passengers are requested to pay the full amount indicated and make claim to the Company,
in writing, giving the hour, date, driver
and cab number, number of passengers
carried, distance traveled and waiting
time consumed, and wherein the charge
is incorrect. Such claims will receive prompt and courteous attention.

METER is insured by systematic inspection. Do not assume that a charge is incorrect without first computing all of
the distance and all of the waiting time

TO GET A CAB, telephone 2380 Columbus at any hour, day or night, and the nearest available vehicle will be promptly dispatched. Cabs are always in waiting at our various stands, or may be hailed and engaged on the street. When
the flag is displayed above the taxa-
meter, the cab is disengaged and can be hired.

SHORT TALKS

Every woman of fashion could tell you the immense amount of money expended in false hair, which the elaborate prevailing fashion in hair-dressing requires.

Tho' the coiffure is still very large and heavy, the tendency is toward more natural lines.

Penetrating the inmost recesses of a fashionable "hair parlors," we noted an adjustable chignon which showed the hair-dressing almost complete before it was adjusted to the head. When this coiffure is combined with the outside pompadour for the front, and the rat across the back, the head is covered as with a wig.

Adjustable fringes and temple curls are now worn.

Many new fashion features are noted in bathing suits, both Directoire and Empire styles being worn.

Satin is the new material selected, but mohair suits will be worn by the masses. Black and navy blue are the leaders in bathing suits and fancy materials are the exception. In fact, quite as much attention is given to detail in cut and trimming as to dresses.

Practically every woman wears a corset with her bathing suit, thus preserving a natty appearance. As steel through the effect of salt water will rust and discolor the corset, it is well for the one who takes her "daily dip in the briny" to lay in several pairs.

Many suits are in what is known as two-piece style, waist and skirt in one, worn either with knickerbockers to match or with black silk tights.

Irish lace is freely used as a trimming for bathing suits. Collars, cuffs and yokes are made of the lace.

Among the varied styles shown in the shops was a taffeta suit in gray, trimmed with pale blue. This model has the square Dutch neck and very short sleeves. The pleated body is attached to the gored skirt with belt trimming.

An extreme novelty is the one of Directoire cut. The material is taffeta in a bold check of black and white, the two intermingling to form a third check of gray. The trimmings of emerald green. The cap the same as the silk.

Another is a princess suit of novelty satin, showing a combination of check and stripe. This suit is completed with a parasol to match, to be carried while on the beach. This is certainly one of the latest extravagances.

A model which will have its admirers is the panel princess Empire suit in a large plaid. The quaint bonnet of matching silk to be worn on the beach would make the wearer irresistible.

There is a new scarf head-dress for bathing purposes which is rather interesting. These silk scarfs are not adjusted in the manner of the old-fashioned handkerchief, but are wrapped about the head in Oriental and in classic style. The hair is covered with the silk rubber cap and the scarf is bound around the forehead and tied in a coquettish knot just at one side, back of the ear. These are in bright and becoming colors, such as scarlet, blue, green and bright rose color.

Another extravagance in the bathing costume is the use of silk stockings. These are invariably worn and bathing shoes are the exception rather than the rule.

The woman who has devoted so much time and thought to the cut and style of her bathing suit would do well to take equal care to her silk stockings. The stocking should be artistically shaped that it may give the proper roundness to the calf and smallness to the ankle. The foot, properly shaped, lessens the size of the foot, and the hem should be elastic so when held taut it will give easily to the side garters. The stocking must be a perfect black and not turn a greenish black, as is often the case. All these excellent qualities are found in the world-famed "Onyx," of which Lord & Taylor, Broadway and 20th st., are the distributors.

BORES

It is not the fashion at present to be kind to bores. Even when a bore is well-intentioned, his intention is no credential, and he cannot belong. His only chance is through discovering himself to be the thing he really is, and reforming. This treatment tends toward the extermination of bores. To tell a bore what a bore he is—is unquestionably a kindness, and the present generation hands out the fact with courage and frankness. All this is with the Golden Rule to the contrary, notwithstanding. There has been a tradition about everybody's being kind to everybody, and also tolerant, and the only redress was escape. You could run away from a bore, or avoid him, or send him on a fruitless errand to get rid of him. You could send him traveling. You could buy him a ticket for somewhere, and see him off, and he never suspect your motive. But the treatment bores receive nowadays has had the effect of making them a little keener, and sometimes they wake up and understand.

If you are a bore you are not treated so courteously as the bore of a generation back. If you don't know that you belong to the Gimlet Club, some one tells you. No one listens to the same story but once. Even family affairs are not the interesting and congenial topics they once were, and this is one reason why there are not so many family reunions as there used to be, since family affairs are invariably unpleasant. We have learned to write pleasant news in letters, since every one has trouble enough without getting them in the mails, prepaid.

Think of our grandmothers—pious old dears—how they gave those huge family reunions when people-in-law came together and visited, and liked each other, and no one admitted being bored. Even a narrative of trials and troubles was considered interesting, and the interest increased with repetition.

It's safe to say it is no longer the fashion to tell your troubles. Of course you can have troubles if you want them; that's your own affair; but you mustn't expect any one to give you their time and attention while you arrange them in narrative form. You can have a surgical operation and be reduced to fragments, but surgery as a topic has gone out of fashion, and you are expected to keep the details to yourself. When your neighbor says: "How do you do?" it's not because he really wants to know how badly you feel. It is merely his form of salutation. Your lawyer is about the only person you have a right to bore with your troubles, and his advice costs money. The minister is obliged to listen, poor man, but he gets a vacation from business once a year. It isn't spiritual affairs that wear him out; it's the material affairs of his congregation, and his effort to have his flock see the spiritual side of it, when they won't, that wears him out.

Books and plays that bore you receive your perfectly frank condemnation, and the time has gone by when you can hand out a bromide and think it will be accepted as a bait for intelligent conversation, or as a substitute for an idea. Some one is sure to detect you.

A bore—according to Webster—is one who wearies by repetition or dullness. Bores are selfish persons who without apology intrude upon unselfish ones, steal their time, and tax their patience; and have no appreciation of the rights of others. The other day the butcher cut his thumb, and tied a rag around it. After explaining about the accident in response to several dozen sympathetic inquiries, he then took to brandishing his meat-axe in threatening silence. Bores may sometimes be identified by interrogation points. The tendency of society at present is toward the extermination of bores.

A SERMONETTE

The difference between a benefit and a blunder is obvious. The blunder doesn't get you anything. A considerable amount of perfectly good force is exhausted every day in effort which has no benefit attached to it.

"What will it get me?" No question goes more directly to the root of the idea than this one: "What will it get me?" It is rather crude English at that, but it is familiar as a commonplace colloquialism, and needs no interpretation. The most of us are in pursuit of something which is generally summed up in the word happiness. If perchance we get off the scent of the object of our pursuit a small signboard marked: "What will it get me?" will sometimes put us right again. For example: What does an unkind word get me? What does being grouchy get me? What does it get me when I show my cloven foot? What does it get me when I exhaust myself in criticism of my enemy or my friend? Gossip—what does gossip get me? Censure—what does censure get me? Temper—what does temper get me? Complaining—what does complaining get me? Narratives of woes and troubles and disappointments—what do they get me? The answer is the same in each case. They get me nothing. Then there is resentment. There is nothing like resentment to eat and bore and gnaw into the very heart of things, and what does resentment get me? Even regret gets you nothing. Introspection and retrospection are not especially active in bringing about results that are benefits. What does even thinking unpleasant thoughts get me? Here you have it finally: The thought is back of the word and the action, so in order to guard against useless, time-wasting effort in the wrong direction, there should stand a sentinel at the door of thought to keep out the wrong thoughts—a wise, alert porter with discrimination and tact, and he will be kept busy.

A sentinel competent to fill this position must be able to tell kindness from hatred, to tell revenge from charity, to tell deceit from honesty, and to know how to discard the one and admit the other. There are some kinds of work that we cannot hire, that we must do ourselves, and this porter's position is one of this kind. The porter who stands at the door of your thought must be an experienced hand. He will find that the only time when he can snatch a bit of rest is when you are asleep. No Union hours for him, and he must not fall asleep at his post. It is at once apparent that this is a work you must do for yourself. It is because you are an indifferent porter at the door of your thought, because you fall asleep or because your attention is directed elsewhere, that so many thoughts that get you nothing in the way of profit get by. When one undesirable thought slips in, a dozen take advantage of the chance to slip in with it, and the first thing you know, your mental organism is full up, crowded to the doors, standing room only, with discordant thoughts, that wrangle and torment, that make wrinkles in your face, and ruin a perfectly good looking visage, making it a public bulletin of worries to be read by every one but yourself.

It is a pretty good, logical, rational line of procedure to investigate yourself when you are on fire with thoughts of hatred, jealousy, resentment and revenge; to ask yourself: "What does it get me?" It is a simple business proposition. Happiness is what we are all looking for, but on account of inefficiency in the office of porter, there is no return for our effort. There is so much other work to be done, it hardly seems practicable that we can also do the porter's work. But it's work we cannot hire done. No one can turn out the undesirable thoughts but the owner. Why, there are some thoughts that have lived there so long they think they own the place. Poisonous thoughts are very difficult to evict. They are the thoughts that are back of all our mistakes.

Space is up and this is only half of it!

SHORT TALKS

During the last year the vogue of ostrich trimmings on all styles of millinery seems to have reached the climax, but advanced information assures us that all records will be broken this fall and winter.

Willow goods will continue to have the precedence over everything in the ostrich line. The purchasing of cheap feathers is poor economy, particularly in willow plumes, and the only safety is in purchasing from a reliable milliner or shop. Willow plumes on account of their construction are naturally very fragile, and the flues will often fall off, even on the finest grade of goods.

As a rule, a woman knows very little about the ostrich plumes she is buying and will no doubt appreciate a few hints which will prove of benefit.

The black feathers and the fine white plumes come from the male bird; the second quality of white and the gray plumes come from the female. The very best plumes are taken from the wings and the smaller ones from the tail. The smaller feathers which come from both wings and tail are used in the making of boas and stoles. The harvesting of feathers from the bird is called plucking. This applies, however, only to the smaller feathers. The larger ones are cut with shears. The remaining quill is pulled out after it has dried. For the benefit of a member of the Audubon Society who may read this, we are pleased to tell them the operation is painless to the bird.

Something new is the bunch of peculiarly fragrant roots for scenting garments in closets, drawers, etc., in place of lavender and sachet powder.

Ivory can be whitened with a solution of peroxide of hydrogen.

In the marriage notices of a bride's trousseau we oftentimes read somewhat like this: "Among her most valuable gifts was the hand-woven sheets, tablecloths, etc., and the wedding gown trimmed with the Irish lace worn by her great-grandmother, worth its weight in gold."

There is not a woman and, we are safe in saying, not a few men but appreciate this hand-woven linen. A visit to the beautiful store of William Coulson & Sons, 150 Fifth avenue, would convince them that hand-weaving is not a lost art. The interest will be increased by the knowledge that their factory for the hand-weaving of table damask, sheetings and towellings was in operation early in the year 1759, and were the first to secure the order for England's royal family in 1812. It is worthy of note that the weavers are the grand-sons and great-grand-sons of the original weavers and are as proud of their inheritance as are those of a title. Another point which speaks well of this "nobility" is, they cannot be lured from their looms by the manufactories where wages are considerable higher. The Irish laces are made by their own staff and special artists. Coats, waists and gowns are made to order. Of the coats, there was one so beautiful in design we know its duplicate cannot be found. These laces possess a quality most desirable. They do not shrink in the wash nor lose their artistic cut. The next articles which demanded our attention were the scarfs and berthas of Limeric lace. So delicate, so filmy, one thought of a cobweb on which Jack Frost had gently breathed. What exquisite delight it is to the woman who has the privilege and the pleasure to supply her linen closet with sheets with their three-inch hems double woven. Damask tablecloths with artistic designs, bureau covers, afternoon tea, table centers, D'Oyles, etc., and if desired monograms, initials, can be woven. The summer traveller will be well paid by a visit to the works of William Coulson & Sons, Belfast, Ireland. And the "stranger within our gates" should not leave the city without accepting the hospitable invitation of this firm to inspect these goods at the New York house, 150 Fifth avenue.

DAILY ATTRACTIONS IN NEW YORK

BOOKS YOU WILL WANT TO READ

The Inner Shrine.—Every once in a while a novel gets published which everybody reads and discusses. A book that calls forth all kinds of pronouncements and opinions. Such a book is "The Inner Shrine," the anonymous novel with such interesting cosmopolitan characters which the Harpers have recently published. A Frenchman's lie, involving the honor of the heroine, is fully able to keep the course of true love from running smoothly. The story of the young duel-made widow, and the interesting widower who finally, in spite of the Frenchman's lie, weds her, is full of dramatic situations, and written with skill and insight which betoken an author who has mastered the technique of the novelist, and is not lacking in an intimate acquaintance with life on both sides of the Atlantic. Rich in character study, "The Inner Shrine" is (entirely apart from the interesting question of its authorship) perhaps the most successful novel of the year.

The Glory of the Conquered.—In presenting us with such a rare story as "The Glory of the Conquered" (F. A. Stokes Co.), Miss Susan Glaspell has contrived to make the love of a man and his wife more intensely interesting than the vast majority of ordinary romances that end with wedding bells either present or imminent. This is a story of a tender love and a great devotion. When a famous scientist finds himself becoming blind, his young wife abandons her artistic career, and unselfishly prepares herself to become eyes for him, that he may continue his work through her. Bitter disappointment, nay, even the valley of the shadow of death, cannot overcome a love such as this, but at last to the wife, through her work as a sculptor, the glory of accomplishment comes. Miss Glaspell has portrayed it all with much earnestness, and evident real affection for her characters. "The Glory of the Conquered" is not flawless—what first book ever was?—but it is very refreshing reading after a long course of ordinary novels.

By Right of Conquest.—Arthur Hornblow, who so successfully novelized "The Lion and the Mouse," has achieved a good result in handling a decidedly delicate theme in his new story, "By Right of Conquest." The heroine is a beautiful girl of wealth, education, refinement; the man a common laborer, a hard drinker, whose life has nothing of nobility in it. The girl is a saloon passenger on an ocean steamer—the man a stoker. The ship is wrecked, and these two are the sole survivors, doomed for a certain term to tolerate each other's company on a desert island. Having gotten his characters into this delicate situation, Mr. Hornblow shows considerable skill in so conducting matters as to be thoroughly interesting without catering to a "yellow journal" taste. It is an absorbing question, whether the gentle, high-minded girl or the earthly-minded stoker shall exert the stronger influence on the other. The denouement of the story is entirely unexpected, and not at all disappointing. "By Right of Conquest" is published by G. W. Dillingham.

The Music Master.—Thousands of those who saw David Warfield in "The Music Master" are reading the novelized version, and living over again the wholesome sensations of tears and laughter which that excellent artist's playing called forth.

The New York Historical Society possesses some valuable pictures, while there are some interesting portraits of former mayors of New York to be seen at the City Hall. All Taxicabs are four-cylinder Darracq landaulettes, seating four people comfortably; and are painted bright red with green panels on the door.

There is only one tariff, no extra charge being made whether one or four passengers are being carried, either by day or night. As fares are plainly indicated on the Taximeter, the public cannot be overcharged by unscrupulous drivers.

NEW YORK TAXICAB COMPANY COUPON BOOKS

For the convenience of our patrons, we issue books containing coupons in denominations of one dollar, fifty cents and ten cents, which will be accepted for fares. Ten dollar and Twenty dollar Coupon Books can be had at the office of the Company, or at the hotels, club and restaurants at which stations are maintained.

These books are sold at a discount of 5 per cent.

The inconvenience of carrying money or making change will be avoided by purchasing one of the books.

INFORMATION FOR PASSENGERS

The TAXIMETER automatically indicates the fare for the use of the cab.

When the red flag is in an upright position, the cab is "for hire," when in a horizontal position the cab is engaged.

Passengers are warned, when engaging a cab, to see that the flag is in the upright position.

PHONE 7400 COLUMBUS

Before starting, the driver will put the flag down when the Taximeter instrument will register 50 cents. This will pay for the use of the cab until service to that amount, either in driving or waiting, has been rendered. The Indicator will thereafter register an additional 10 cents for each quarter of a mile, or for each 4 minutes of waiting.

In case of accident, punctured tire, etc., causing delay, the driver will immediately press down the lever, causing the words "not recording" to appear on the dial. The Taximeter immediately stops registering any fare until the repair is completed and the cab starts off again. Should the passenger not care to wait until the repair is made, he should pay the driver the amount recorded on the taximeter.

All discourtesy, bad language, or rudeness on the part of the employees of the Company should be reported at once to the officials of the Company, the driver's number being given.

Drivers must carry any small pieces of baggage on the outside of cab when requested to do so.

Kindly remember you can have a red Taxicab at your door in a few minutes by calling up 7400 Columbus. We have stands throughout the city and can reach you quickly.

THE OLD AGE HANDICAP

Once upon a time the finger of shame was pointed at persons who denied their age, and it was regarded as an illustration of weakness and vanity. But not now, not now! It is good business management to shave age by about ten or even twenty years, or just as many years as your reflection will admit. Of course there will always be old kill-joys with memories who will turn informer and tell, produce the evidence, comparative detail, and prove it. Because they have money in the bank, or a policy that comes due next fall, they can afford to malign you from their firm footing on the isle of safety. But family records in the Bible have been called in, and the date of birth woven into the samples has been carefully picked out two or three times, and the shades matched so you never could tell. And each time when the years catch up with the sampler, it has to be picked out again. This proves that we have no right to set for ourselves age limitations. Anything that changes all the while has no reality in it, and therefore does not exist at all; so why mention it?

We are confronted by first one problem and then another. We straightened the slavery question as well as we could, and we have given our women higher education, and expect soon to give them the ballot. Now we have the old age handicap. That is the name of it—THE OLD AGE HANDICAP. It is now recognized. A man cannot support his family because he has gray hair, and no one will employ him. The Principal of a New York public school is retired at seventy-six. It takes too long to dismiss his school. So he has to go. But we are taking notice, the rest of us. When we teach school in the future no one shall know when we are even a century old, and we will let some younger teacher dismiss the school. When some one asks us how old we are in the future we shall retort promptly, and whatever we say, the inquirer will know that it is none of his business. Watch us!

Last week a New York daily paper printed gratis advertisements for "Situations Wanted" for all men past fifty. So you see the problem of the old age handicap has been taken up in earnest. Surely we cannot expect to drop back on our children at fifty years of age. But no one wants us. We have not been using the proper weapons. Let us dye our gray hairs, and let us keep away from the park benches, and let us maintain stoutly that we are forty. Who can reckon time honestly, when we have it from the classics that "we live in deeds not years"? Why, some of us are a thousand, and some of us are not of age. There you have it!

It certainly is a new problem, this one of fighting time. Certain persons we know have done it, but our idea has always been that they were weak and vain. But it is a serious matter now. Not a moment is to be lost. If you have not already shaved your age by five years, do it at once. There is not a moment to lose. If you have done so by five years, change it to ten, or even twenty. Do not hesitate a moment. Your age is nobody's business, anyway. Wear a bright neck-tie, and stand up like a soldier. Express yourself briskly even if your ideas are on the bias, better bias ideas than none at all. Teach the children to call you something besides grandpa. You can't afford to be called grandpa. Your age and your manner and your gait and the color of your hair are your business assets. The young fellows are coming on, a hundred thousand strong, and they will crowd you off the boards, so it's up to you to be as firm as Gibraltar. Don't let your shoulders stoop even a little bit. The fight is on. Don't let them classify you with the old fellows who are handicapped because they are fifty. The fact of the matter is, a man just begins to know something when he is fifty, and his success consists in forgetting his age. The world is awake to the problem now, but it's a good deal better to solve your own and ignore the handicap. HARVOT HOLT DEY.

SHORT TALKS

To one who has never had occasion to wear mourning, they would say there is never any change. But such is not the case. There are changes of styles in mourning millinery just as varied as in colors. These changes may be minor ones, but they are important.

Outside of first mourning, or mourning for the widow, there is quite a little more leeway in styles and customs than there has been for many years.

One thing is of the greatest importance and, in fact, is of more value even than the style, i. e., the quality of the material. These should be of the very finest and the dye should be perfect. When several materials are used, the blacks should match perfectly, as there are almost as many shades in black as in blues, greens or any color.

It is only when several pieces of crêpe are placed side by side that the great difference in the black is seen. It is well to remember this, and when ordering the hat and veil to secure sufficient for the waist.

For a young widow, extreme simplicity is the rule. The veil may be draped on the hat severely plain, with no bows or rosettes of the crêpe. It is good form to lighten the mourning after eighteen months, but the shortest time limit for the wearing is two years.

There is a diversity of opinion regarding the wearing of crêpe. Some of the leaders of fashion hold that crêpe should only be worn by a widow. Others that the daughters should wear the same.

For a daughter, a crêpe veil is worn over the hat like a chiffon veil.

Married daughters wear a veil over a small bonnet with a veil over the face for three months. After six months the crêpe is discarded, and a mesh veil with crêpe edge is worn.

The same mourning is now worn for a child as for a grown son or daughter.

In second mourning, dull silks, satins and felt are used for hats, and there must not be the slightest sheen or lustre to these materials.

For the hat trimmings, dull jet cabochons and dull silk flowers are preferred, but aigrettes are permissible.

White is becoming more commonly used in second mourning, as well as purple. When either color is used, however, it is in the smallest possible quantity. White is also seen in millinery, such as one white gardenia posed upon the all black hat.

The materials most used for veils, hats, waists and gowns are nun's veiling, crêpe de chine, chiffon, dull silk, broadcloth, serge and mohair. Great care should be taken in the purchase of these goods that the best dyes are selected, in order that they may keep from becoming shabby, as shabby black is very unsightly.

The draping of the veil on the hat should be simple in effect, and yet should have the fashionable touches which it only can receive at the hands of a skilled milliner who makes a specialty of mourning millinery.

For summer, all white is worn.

Araminta, whose lingerie waists are the quintessence of daintiness and simplicity, has given the refined touch to the collar.

She purchased several pieces of "footing" in black and white and had them pin-pleated. When the strips are soiled they are ripped out and basted together. After being laundered, they are sent to be re-pleated. The combining of both black and white is very chic.

Paper slippers and rose petals have taken the place of rice at fashionable weddings. The silver slippers—to replace the old shoes—are half an inch long and are made of silver paper. The rose petals are the real thing—thousands of petals stripped from pink roses. The slippers and rose petals are heaped in great bowls in the hall. When the bride and bridegroom leave the house they are enveloped in a shower of the little slippers and rose petals, instead of being cannonaded with coarse rice.

POINTS OF INTEREST

American S. P. C. A.—The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, incorporated April 10, 1866, and is supported by voluntary contributions; located at 50 Madison ave., corner 26th st. This society maintains a uniformed force of officers with police power for the enforcement of the humane laws, and has special ambulances and life-saving apparatus for the rescue and transportation of disabled animals.

Bible House—Erected in 1852 by the American Bible Society, located on Fourth ave., between 8th and 9th sts. Cost over $300,000. There are over five hundred people employed here daily in printing the Bible in many different languages.

Bellevue Hospital—Located from First ave. to East River, between 26th and 28th sts., and is the largest and best known hospital in the city. It is under the supervision of the Department of Public Charities. Established 1826. The city morgue is located on the grounds of this institution, which is open day and night.

Bryant Park—On Sixth ave., between 40th and 42d sts., was named for William Cullen Bryant, and occupies the site of the old Crystal Palace, which was destroyed by fire in 1858, and in which was held the first world's fair in the United States.

Consolidated Stock Exchange—Organized in 1875, under the title of the New York Mining Stock Exchange, and merged with the American Mining Stock Exchange, the National Petroleum, the Miscellaneous Security Board and the New York Petroleum Exchange and Stock Board. Located at 36 Beaver st. Open to visitors from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Grand Central Station—42d st. and Park ave., used exclusively by the two railroads which gives actual entrance into the heart of the city. It has been estimated that over five hundred trains arrive and depart daily from this station.

Herald Square—35th st., Broadway and Sixth ave. Here is to be found the statue of William E. Dodge; the home of the daily newspaper, "The New York Herald," and a large number of department stores.

Kip's Bay—Foot of 36th st., East River. It was named in honor of Hendrick Kip, and it was here that the British landed in 1776 when making their first attack on the army under command of Washington.

Lenox Library—Located on Fifth ave., between 70th and 71st sts.; was founded by James Lenox, a noted collector of literary and art treasures; was opened to the public in January, 1877, and was incorporated in 1870. The cost was about $1,000,000, which was borne by the founder.

Liberty Island—Also known as Bedloe's Island, located in the Bay off the Battery. Previous to 1860 was used as a place of execution, and at one time contained a fortification named Fort Wood; the star-shaped walls form the outlying boundaries for the pedestal of the Statue of Liberty, which is also called "Liberty Enlightening the World." This statue was designed by Bartholdi, a French sculptor, in 1879, and was completed and presented to the United States as a token of esteem by the French nation in 1883. The pedestal cost over $250,000, which was raised by public subscription. Height from base to torch, 151 feet. There are 154 steps in the statue from the pedestal to the head, and the ladder leading up through the extended right arm to the torch has 54 rounds. Round trips are made every half hour from Battery Pier, near the Aquarium, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. Fare, 25 cents.

Mills Hotel No. 1—Erected by D.

O. Mills as a hotel for men of moderate means; located at 160 Bleecker st. Clean and more than comfortable rooms are to be had for 20 cents a night. They are nicely fitted, containing iron bedstead, hair mattress, clean linen, which is changed daily, chairs, locker and electric light. A large store room in the basement is arranged for baggage where the guests have easy access to it at all times. There are also reading rooms (restaurant), and plunge bath, all without extra charge.

Pearl Street—Received its name on account of the pearl shells found along its path; is the oldest street in the city. There are three tablets of interest located at No. 73 Pearl st., the site of the first Dutch house of entertainment on the Island of Manhattan. Later the site of the old "Stadt Huys" or City Hall. This tablet was placed here by the Holland Society of New York, September, 1890. No. 81 Pearl st.: On this site William Bradford, appointed public printer April 10, A. D. 1693; established the first printing press in the colony of New York. Erected by the Historical Society April 10, A. D. 1893, in commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the introduction of printing in New York. No. 88 Pearl st.: Destroyed 1835, in conflagration of December 16, 17. Six hundred and fifty buildings containing merchandise were consumed in one night; loss, $20,000,000. Rebuilt, 1836. Again destroyed by fire, 1853.

Phong, Fat & Company, Oriental-

ists—6 West 22d st., across from the "Flatiron" Building. Here are displayed specimens of the wonderfully artistic wares from the other side of the world, especially those of China and Japan. The remarkable patience and skill of the artisans of these countries have produced many pieces of rare beauty and noteworthy for their extremely difficult execution. The marked attention given to the most minute detail is evidenced in the hand-carved Ivory, Silver and Sandal-wood; the quaint Oriental beauty and design of the pieces of Jewelry and fine China Wares have a charm that satisfies the taste of lovers of the unusual; the art needle-work also comes in for a share of the admiration which it deserves and is especially noticeable in the exquisite Kimonos, Table Linens, Mandarin Coats, Waists and Dresses, Pillow Tops and Pictures. Every day is visiting day. If you have a few minutes to spare, stop in and see these interesting pieces.

Stewart Mansion—Located at the northwest corner of Fifth ave., at 34th st.; was the former home of the late A. T. Stewart and was erected at a cost of $2,000,000; at one time the headquarters of the Manhattan Club, and now occupied by the Knickerbocker Trust Company.

Times Building—B'way, Seventh ave. and 42d st. This is sometimes called "Flatiron" building No. 2, as it is one of the tallest buildings above 34th st. It is here that "The New York Times" has its home.

Union Theological Seminary—Located between 69th and 70th sts. on Park ave. Founded in 1836 and was removed from University Place to present site in 1884.

Wall Street—At lower Broadway, opposite to Trinity Church. The street is about half a mile long and derives its name from the fact that the city wall followed its course in the old Dutch days. In 1709 a slave market was in progress at the foot of this street and slaves were brought to this city in large numbers. It was here that Washington landed in 1789 on his way to take oath of office as first President of the United States in 1789.

SHORT TALKS

Among the novelties for the summer which has met with great success is the reversible cape or wrap. These reversible wraps or, as they are sometimes called, "two-in-one," are in the military cape and draped classic style. They are made in combinations of material, as well as two colors of one material. They are exactly alike on both sides and can be reversed. Thus the wearer possesses in the one garment a wrap suitable for both day and evening wear.

Last year Paris introduced the use of moiré silk for outer wraps, but the ottoman silk and satin coat met with such great favor in New York by the general public that the moiré coat was only found in the exclusive shops, but without doubt it will be the prevailing material this fall. The preference will be for the black moiré though beautiful colored ones are shown to be worn with a costume of the same tone. These moiré coats are in the long-waisted effect. Some have the skirt fulness set on in flat pleats. They are trimmed with braid embroideries and braid ornaments. The idea is that they are more like a costume wrap than a separate garment. The length favored is forty-two to fifty inches.

The moiré silk used is what is known as the antique, with the wide and indefinite water marking, rather than the moiré française in which the pattern appears in more definite stripes.

Among the novelty designs in tailored waists are hand-embroidered effects; many new patterns are shown. They are not inexpensive, as but few are priced at $5, and those not desirable.

Among the new models in these waists are those showing the side lap front fastening, instead of the center pleat. The edge of the overlapping side is finished with button-hole stitch in scallops, and there is, in addition, a more or less elaborate design of hand-embroidery extending up and down the front. The embroidery patterns bear no resemblance to the geometrical and floral designs so long in use. It is just this feature which gives the style value.

In the more expensive linen shirt waists in tailored style are new models; that with the tucked and pleated bosom effects with hand-embroidered collar and cuffs, the collar a high turn-over. The cuffs in link style. This touch of embroidery adds much to the individuality of the waist.

During the last twelve months petticoats were relegated to oblivion, but with the return of the pleated dress skirt they will again be in high favor. With the new skirt, petticoats require to be cut somewhat differently from the old styles. While snug fitting hips are as necessary as ever, the new skirts will have considerable flare from the knees down, and the petticoats must conform to this style. Before long the extremely narrow petticoat will be a thing of the past.

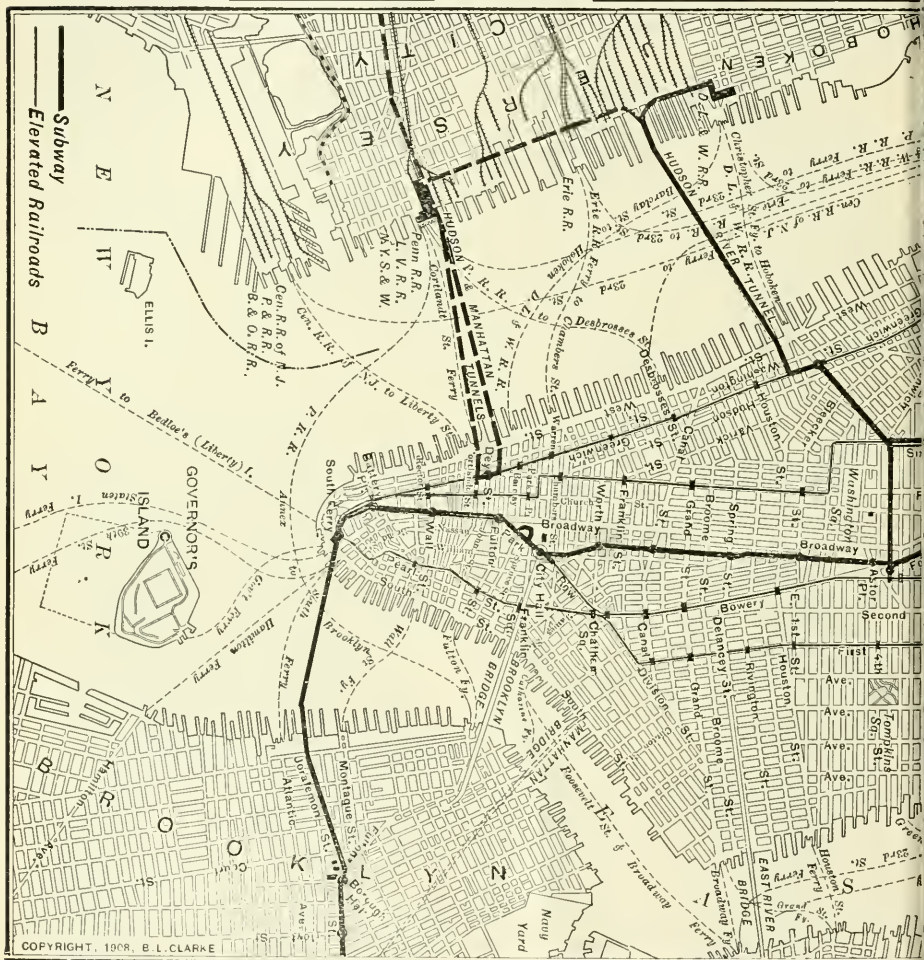

The complexion must have as much care in summer as in winter. When in the country during the hot weather there is no one but has suffered with sunburn. The sleeves, rolled up for freer action whilst playing golf or rowing on a beautiful lake, invites Old Sol to kiss the pretty face and arms, but when the exercise is over and the skin burns as if in a furnace, the woman "who knows" will dust generously the tender skin with Mennen's Borated Talcum Toilet Powder and immediately the intense heat begins to subside. She knows the value of this cooling powder and after the bath will sprinkle the body with this powder, which has the scent of fresh-cut violets. And to assure you it contains no poisonous ingredients, each box bears the guarantee of the Gerhard Mennen Chemical Company under the Pure Food and Drug Act. The traveller on the ocean steamer, to the mountains and valleys would do well to take heed to the "woman who knows" and see that a goodly supply is in their luggage.

EDEN MUSEE

The Eden Musee of New York City is one of the coolest and most interesting places of amusement in the great city. For many years special efforts have been made to keep the interior cool, and this year the management has exceeded its previous efforts. Every nook and corridor of the large building is swept by purified air and artificial breezes. In the Winter Garden palms and other decorations have been arranged so there is always the rustling of leaves and the appearance of a roof garden. To step from the hot street into the Musee is like a trip to the seashore, and during the past week of torrid weather hundreds of persons have visited the Musee mainly to keep cool. Nearly every day rearrangement of wax groups takes place and new figures and groups are added to the already large collection. In the Winter Garden, moving pictures are shown hourly, afternoons and evenings, and visitors can see as many different pictures as they desire. No amusement place in the world has so many high class pictures as shown at the Musee. Every week new pictures are received from abroad and the latest and best efforts in this great enterprise can be seen at the Musee. The wonderful fotofone introduces new selections from operas and well known plays. Professor Kapussy and his Royal Blue Hungarian Orchestra render afternoon and evening concerts of such unusual excellence that the Musee has become a great musical centre.

You must look into people as well as at them.—Chesterfield.

MODERN BELLS

Bells have changed a good deal in their character and popularity since the time when Poe put them into verse in a way that almost admitted him to the Hall of Fame. Marriage bells have gone out entirely, and funeral bells are a bit too solemn for this active age. Fire bells still stir us some, but are not so melodramatic as they used to be. Few churches have bells, and those who still affect them try to be as unobjectionable as they can, out of deference to the neighbors who like to sleep late, and are not diffident about entering complaints. In villages where the trees are big and the churches many, the Sunday bells are uncompromisingly loud, and all talk together, although every one is hurrying to get there, and the bells are not needed at all as far as reminders are concerned.

The telephone bell—all this preamble simply leads up to the telephone bell—and any poet who can do justice to the telephone can be railroaded into the Hall of Fame by a patient and long-suffering public, and no votes against his eligibility. There was a time once when you could get privacy on demand, but not now. There was a time after the children were grown and you were not sleeping with one eye open, when you could enjoy a night's uninterrupted rest, but not now. There was a time when you could snatch a few minutes for your devotion, that is, to say your prayers, but not now. There was a time when you could run away to a secluded spot in the country, where no mail could reach you, nor telegrams, but not now. There was a time when you could lock your cares behind you when you closed your office door, but not now. The whole world, social, political and financial, lives right at your elbow, and can intrude upon you at any time. Can you enjoy your dinner without interruption? I leave it to you. Of course there is always the prerogative of being a liar, and telling some one over your own 'phone that you are out of town.

But, really, there must be some redress, and in abject helplessness it is only natural to fling out wildly. Thus we lose that fine sense of honor which we worship in heroes. The telephone is merely another test, the same as prosperity and liquor. It taxes our patience, and proves to ourselves, if not to everybody else. The telephone is as great an agent in the cause of wrongdoing as—as—well, as the bicycle was, or as joy-riding is. You can be married by telephone, or your wife can be stolen by telephone, and as for the rest of the things that are possible since it came to dwell within the hallowed walls of home, the least said here, the better. And now we are to have the wireless telephone, and escape will be cut off entirely, that is, escape from the things we try to run away from. Even in mid-ocean you may be followed by the news.

There is as yet no established ethical code for the telephone. You can use your neighbors, and you can have your friends call you up on your neighbor's 'phone, and your neighbor being a kindly, courteous person, forbears to tell you what a nuisance you really are. If you are on a party line you can listen when your neighbor is talking, thus gaining a fairly definite knowledge of his private affairs. Gossip comes to you without your inviting it, and without your going after it, and time wasted at the telephone is not counted.

In modern living, we are slaves to bells. They ring before we are up in the morning. People want things or they fetch things or they wish to sell things. They ring at the front door and they ring at the back door, and there is no escape from the bells. They haven't gone into nursery rhymes yet like the good old bells of St. Ives, nor like Ding Dong Bell, those dear old classics, the mere mention of which has a quieting effect. And how these modern bells do interrupt!

MRS. M. E. COLLIN, Redhook, N. Y.

"Not long ago, it was sconsidered as 'unprofessional,' for ministers as for doctors or lawyers to advertise, unless, of course, in the form of indirect free advertising of the news columns, always eagerly availed of. Why any such code of ethics should ever have been promulgated, is a mystery. No valid reason can be conceived why a lawyer should not advertise the fact that he is in practice, and ready for business; or a doctor, that his advice is at the service of patients, or a minister, that he has a message to deliver to lost souls seeking salvation."—Albany Argus.

ROOF GARDEN AND BELVEDERE OF HOTEL ASTOR

The enlarged Roof Garden of the Hotel Astor was opened by Mr. Wm. C. Muschenheim early in June.

The Roof Garden is primarily for the use of the Guests of the Hotel and their friends. Those who are not Residents of the Hotel will not be admitted unless they have secured a Season Ticket from the Hotel Management.

This beautiful aerial park, which was heretofore the largest in the world, has been almost doubled in area since the close of last season, and now covers twenty-eight city lots. The remodeled Garden, made possible by an extensive addition to the Hotel, was opened in June. Amid its artistic beauties, its terraces of gorgeous flowers and trailing verdure, its giant palms and murmuring fountains, upon which myriad lights gleam with subdued lustre through the undulating foliage, one may listen to sweet music, wafted on the perfumed, balmy breezes of the summer night.

Under the garden lies the city with its vast buildings, its miles of streets and squares, brilliant almost as noonday. Of this panorama, stretching away on either side of jewelled Broadway, the Roof Garden commands a sweeping view. To the west the Hudson River flows majestically, and far in the distance are the world-famed Palisades illumined in the moonlight. Nowhere does the picture of the great city present itself so picturesquely or with such grandeur as from this charming spot; it is an ideal Vision Beautiful.

One of the new features is the great Belvedere at the extreme westerly end, which will be used as a Restaurant de Luxe. In front of this Belvedere, on the 45th street side, will be a Rose Garden, and on the 44th street side a Palm Garden, reserved exclusively for diners. This Belvedere extends from 44th to 45th streets. It will be found a veritable Paradise.

By passing through these Gardens and over the superstructures, it will be possible to make a complete circuit of the roof, a distance of one-fifth of a mile, and this long, varied and interesting promenade will be one of the chief pleasures to be enjoyed.

Three orchestras, instead of two as formerly, will furnish the music. Where before three elevators carried visitors up and down, there will be eight.

In the future the Roof Garden will be used not only in summer, but will be open to guests as a permanent solarium which they may visit at any time. For the children it will be a great pleasure and recreation ground—when the summer season comes to an end, and during the long autumn (really the most delightful season), the Roof Garden will often be used for exhibitions, etc., etc., and even in midwinter, festivals will take place in the Belvedere. The Belvedere will also be used in conjunction with the wonderful new ballroom on the ground floor, now nearly completed, and which, together with the two new concert rooms (to be known as the Rose Room and the Laurel Room) and a conservatory, will cover more than twenty-five thousand square feet. Fifty boxes, in two tiers, and two galleries run along the side of this Grand Banquet Hall. A large stage has also been built in. From this large auditorium four immense express elevators run directly to the Belvedere and Roof Garden.

THE CHURCH IN THE FORT

THE MARBLE COLLEGIATE CHURCH, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, originally The Church in the Fort, was organized by the Dutch with Rev. Jonas Michaelius as its first ordained minister, 281 years ago, and is the oldest church in America. The first permanent edifice was erected in 1633 on the site now known as 39 Pearl Street.

The present building was dedicated in 1854 and is known to-day throughout the land for its hospitality to strangers within its gates.

The Rev. John S. Allen, D.D., Pastor for Strangers, will preach Sunday, July 18th, at 11 a. m., "Surprised Saints;" at 8 p. m., "The Parable of the Wedding."

EVERYBODY CORDIALLY INVITED

A PASTOR FOR STRANGERS IN NEW YORK

REV. JOHN S. ALLEN, D.D.

Father Knickerbocker takes pleasure in presenting to his circle of readers our mutual friend, Rev. John S. Allen, D.D., Pastor for Strangers in New York, and associate pastor in the Marble Collegiate Church, Fifth ave. and 29th st. Dr. Allen was the first to see the value of DAILY ATTRACTIONS as a means for bringing the church services to the attention of a special class of visitors in New York. The historic "Marble Church," as it is familiarly called, holds a unique place in our great cosmopolitan city. The world-wide reputation of Dr. Burrell as a preacher has made this church a popular rendezvous for visitors in New York. It has come to be to New York what Dr. Parker's church was to London—"The City Temple."

Here strangers may be seen at every service, who have come from the remotest corners of the earth. At a recent service strangers from Winnipeg, Manitoba, and from Adelaide, New South Wales, worshipped with others who came from Honolulu, Sandwich Islands and Haarlem in Old Holland. At one summer service, visitors made themselves known, who came from twenty different states of the Union and eight foreign countries. It is practically a new congregation at each service, for many are in the city only a short time, but, owing to the attendance of strangers from such distant parts, it is called the "Pentecostal Congregation of America." The Collegiate Church is the historic "Meeting House" of this city and the oldest institution in America. As such, it enjoys a monopoly of things First. The first colonists, who settled here in 1614, five years after the first landing of Hendrik Hudson, held the first religious services on this island. To the story of this church belongs also the first New York pastor, Jonas Michaelius, the first Elder, Peter Minuit, who was also the first director general of the colony, "A wholly incorruptible man." The first church bell captured by the Dutch in 1635 from the Spaniards in Porto Rico. This bell rang its call to worship from the belfry of the "Church in the Loft." The first stone building in New York was the church built within the ramparts of Fort Manhattas and was called the "Church in the Fort." The first church organ used in this country was the gift of Governor Burnett to this church. The first school in America was the school of this church, with Adam Rolantsen as the first school teacher. This school started in 1633 is still conducted as the Collegiate School at West End ave. and 77th st., and is the oldest educational institution in this country. This church was also the first to provide a Pastor for Strangers. A minister who could give his entire time to the large number of strangers who find their way each Sunday to the Marble Church on Fifth ave. Dr. Allen is always at the church to welcome strangers, and is at their service in any way that he can minister to their needs. He is often asked to look after young people who come alone and for the first time to the city. He assists many discouraged seekers in finding a situation, visits strangers in hospitals and elsewhere. He is often called to celebrate marriages in hotels and in the church parlor. The historic Marble Church has for many years been a popular place for those matrimonially inclined. This church is also known far and wide for the excellence of its music. The choir includes singers of national reputation. Mr. Richard T. Percy has been the organist and conductor for twelve years, and Dr. Carl E. Dufft, the great oratorio singer, has been the basso of this choir for the past fifteen years. The Marble Church is open every day in the year, and a minister is always present. The regular morning and evening services are held every Sunday, without interruption, summer or winter.

SHORT TALKS

The very large mesh veils, a woven square or a dot about half an inch in diameter, held together by the finest of threads, is the vogue at the present time. Seldom is a veiling fad of such pronounced type so generally adopted by all classes. The thinner and finer the weave the better. Colors and black are used, the black always on the black and white hats, and the color used only where it matches the hat shade or its trimming. Blues and hyacinth shades are the usual colors.

Another veil frequently seen is the hand-run chantilly. This is rather startling in effect, and certainly makes the wearer a noticeable figure, particularly since it is worn pinned in at the nape of the neck. It is seen only in white or cream.

The irregular meshed nets are superseding regular meshes in popular favor.

Auto veils of changeable chiffon and grenadine are new and smart.

Some of the latest novelties in veilings brought over from Paris have extremely large, square blocks—larger even than anything which has as yet been shown in veilings. The mesh, in diamond-shape, is at least half an inch in size. They are as far removed from the small ring and pin dot effects as anything could possibly be.

The all-black hat remains a fashionable favorite, and beautiful black hats trimmed with huge white aigrettes are still counted the smartest headwear at all swell functions.

White flowers of crêpe and of dotted swiss are new and stylish. These are used on black hats. Frequently one notes these garlands of white flowers with a few of the blossoms shading a very little into a delicate brown tan, which relieves the dead whiteness of the garland.

Wired lace bows are seen in increasing number. These are very similar to a fashion that was quite the vogue in New York last year.

On the handsomest hats the bows are of real Venise.

Whilst the peach basket hat and other grotesque shapes are only seen on those who delight in the "ready-to-wear styles," yet there is more novelty in the millinery than in the costumes.

As the season advances very smart new types are shown. White wings, and white birds of many wings give an artistic note to the black hat. A clever new fancy used on the smart side-turned hat is a pair of small mercury wings in white, set flat on the turned side, and a similar pair set flat against the crown on the opposite side.

Another new trimming for this side-turned hat are two frilled bows, similar to the cockade on a coachman's hat, one set on the up-turned brim and the other on the opposite side, on the crown.

An absolutely new dress model was seen which could not help attracting attention. It was a combination of voile and taffeta in a rather light navy blue shade.

The dress was the new Moyen Age princess, rather closely fitted, and defining the bust and waist lines quite plainly. The body portion, which reached to well below the hips, was of the taffeta, and attached to this, laid in fine pleats, was a skirt of shadow check voile. The voile skirt was left open at the left front, and when the wearer walked it slightly disclosed the taffeta petticoat, which was finished with a three-inch pleating of the voile, stitched down flat on both edges.

The lower part of the taffeta body was finished with fine, heavy cords, taffeta covered, as thick as the little finger. Down the front and back of the waist was one of these cords, and five came from under the arms, spread slightly, and tapered to nothing. A series of these cords shaped the elbow sleeves.

It is said that if a little borax is put in the water it will remove fruit stains from the hands.

NEW YORK TAXICAB COMPANY

COUPON BOOKS

For the convenience of our patrons, we issue books containing coupons in denominations of one dollar, fifty cents and ten cents, which will be accepted for fares. Ten dollar and Twenty dollar Coupon Books can be had at the office of the Company, or at the hotels, club and restaurants at which stations are maintained.

These books are sold at a discount of 5 per cent.

The inconvenience of carrying money or making change will be avoided by purchasing one of the books.

INFORMATION FOR PASSENGERS

The TAXIMETER automatically indicates the fare for the use of the cab.

When the red flag is in an upright position, the cab is "for hire," when in a horizontal position the cab is engaged.

Passengers are warned, when engaging a cab, to see that the flag is in the upright position.

PHONE 7400 COLUMBUS

Before starting, the driver will put the flag down when the Taximeter instrument will register 50 cents. This will pay for the use of the cab until service to that amount, either in driving or waiting, has been rendered. The Indicator will thereafter register an additional 10 cents for each quarter of a mile, or for each 4 minutes of waiting.

In case of accident, punctured tire, etc., causing delay, the driver will immediately press down the lever, causing the words "not recording" to appear on the dial. The Taximeter immediately stops registering any fare until the repair is completed and the cab starts off again. Should the passenger not care to wait until the repair is made, he should pay the driver the amount recorded on the taximeter.

All discourtesy, bad language, or rudeness on the part of the employees of the Company should be reported at once to the officials of the Company, the driver's number being given.

Drivers must carry any small pieces of baggage on the outside of cab when requested to do so.

Kindly remember you can have a red Taxicab at your door in a few minutes by calling up 7400 Columbus. We have stands throughout the city and can reach you quickly.

BE SURE AND CALL

Have you seen our Busses? Just the thing for theatre parties. Each Buss carries eight persons. Rates: $6 per hour, or $10 for a theatre party if within a radius of three miles, and $2 for each additional mile. An extra charge of $6 if supper call is made.

THE AIR

When my neighbor's airship sailed over the top of the house the other day it gave me a distinct turn. And yet it had a natural and almost familiar look, and not at all as if it were my first airship. The air is put to so many practical uses of late. For a long time it was only used to breathe, and there was even a prejudice against it in its pure state, so that it was shut out at night because it was dark and damp. Since we have become so sanitary, and believe in breathing it in its purest state, some of us sleep with our heads out of doors, and many of us are not afraid to sit in a draught of air provided it is quite fresh.

There are many things to think about in connection with air. Col. Ingersoll used to say in comment upon the meanness and selfishness of the human race, that if it were possible to bottle air that there would be plenty of people gasping for breath because they couldn't get it to breathe. Colonel Ingersoll's sayings are never repeated in the present tense. That is to say, we never say "Colonel Ingersoll says." We say "Colonel Ingersoll said." This is because he is not one of the immortals. But he said a few stirring things. Possibly we shall be able to bottle air after a while, and then we shall see just who will bottle it.

Air has been a splendid place to build castles in. Many of us have built them in the air and nowhere else. But they have been good places to live in even when our plans did not materialize. Our thoughts could live there, and there were no material worries about rent and house cleaning or mortgages or the hundred other details that make material houses such a delusion and a snare. We could have the kind of furniture we wanted, and have it better than any one else's, real lace curtains with monograms, tapestries on the walls, and mahogany antiques all over the place and a story connected with each one. And have the art editor send for pictures, and request us to permit him as a special favor to adorn the pages of his satin paper magazine with a story about it. Ah, yes, we can get there with our castles in the air when we live in—in a place not at all resembling our ideas.

As soon as we are perfect in aerial navigation we shall discover the North Pole, and thus put an end to all this conjecture and uncertainty regarding it and what is going on up there. We may not pry successfully into the affairs of Mars, but we can at least have an airship station or landing on our housetops and that will be interesting and different. We can possibly speed without arrest, and when we have collisions we shall all perish together, and suddenly like Darius Green who was the first aerial navigator and a rank failure, although he had the idea.

My new-thought friend tells me that the air is full of thoughts and that it is essential that the thoughts we project shall be harmonious or else they come back at us and do us more harm than they do anybody else. My Christian Science friend tells me that God is in the air all about us. The most of us have had a vague idea that "God is everywhere," but there has been nothing definite about it as a fact. The pulpit and the Sunday School teacher have always carried the idea that God is up in heaven, somewhere in the sky, a good ways off. It's an impressive idea that God—the Omnipotent, Omniscient, Omnipresent—is right at hand, in the air all about us. Few of us have received the idea that God is in the air all about us. There has been a mistake somewhere.

HARRYOT HOLT DEY.

Never give up: for the wisest is boldest,
 Knowing that Providence mingles the cup;
 And of all maxims, the best, as the oldest,
 Is the stern watchword of "Never give up!" —Holmes.

No one can gainsay the importance of the automobile outfit. For there is hardly a city of any size but has its quota of residents who own automobiles. Therefore a few hints regarding the garb for motor wear will be of interest.

The balloon silk coat is the latest thing this season. From the name, it might be thought this is a voluminous garment, but this is entirely wrong.

The coat takes its name from the silk of which it is made, being exactly the same material as that used for balloons. The charm of these coats is their lightness, for the largest size weighs only nine ounces. They are made in both the gray and Shantung colors, and in a variety of shapes and styles.

Another coat which is exceedingly smart is made in mannish styles of English wax cloth. This gets its name from the fact that the yarn of which it is woven is waxed beforehand, which makes it storm-proof. Grease can easily be removed by the use of warm water and soap.

The motor hood of a light weight waterproof silk is sufficiently large to be slipped over any hat. It comes well down in the back and around the neck, so that the wearer's hair and throat are well protected from wind and dust. They are easily and quickly removed, so that on stepping from the car the hat blooms forth in all its freshness.

The automobile hat and veil is then worn to match the trimmings on the coat. The latest fad is lining the pongee coat with simple patterned foulards in bright shades of rose, green and blue.

For town wear and short motor trips most women prefer to wear a hat that is ultra smart, and the new mushrooms that come so well down on the head would seem specially designed for this purpose. Trimmings are low, and the fashionable spotted net veil is quite sufficient protection. Then, if a longer trip is contemplated, the silk hood can be drawn over the same style of hat.

What woman is there who cannot recall when on their summer outing the rainy days—when you opened your eyes in the morning and looked out the window at the rain—the kind of rain that soaks into the grass, the bark of the trees, the leaves one sodden mass of discomfort? There is nothing else to do in the afternoon but take a nap. As you are about to lie down you wonder what you will throw over you that is warm and not heavy. Araminta has solved this difficulty and tells us how to make a covering at very little expense.

Everybody knows how uncomfortable it is to have a cover too short. If you pull it up over the shoulders the feet are out, and vice versa. To obviate this, Araminta tells us to buy not less than four yards of outing flannel, tear in half, and sew up the seam. Line with cheese cloth, bind all around with ribbon. Araminta suggests pink as to color, as it has been proven it will not fade in the wash.

LONG SUFFERING WOMAN!

It's a long suffering feminine populace which has its private business constantly interfered with. Just as if it were not enough to have had a President brandish a big stick to emphasize his ideas on race suicide! As if it were not enough to have a law against the wearing of hat-pins over in Germany! But now comes the Pope to forbid the wearing of the Directoire gown! These interferences are very wearing. Howbeit, as a fashion, children have not come in, nor yet have Directoire gowns gone out. The spirit of feminine independence has not been engendered for nothing. Why tell your mother how to do things?

The story of the man who deliberately divorced his wife because she persisted in reducing her weight so that she could wear the Directoire gown, has been cabled 'round the world, along with the sympathetic expressions of justice from the Bench, backed up and O. K.-ed by the Pope. What a dull creature is man! His idea was that when poor, misguided womankind learned of the fate of the woman who reduced her weight by thirty pounds so that she might lend her proportions to the Directoire gown, that there would be a direct turning aside from the folly of feminine ways. Dull man! Not since the Directoire gown with all its accompanying ramifications came into fashion has there been such definite and encouraging news regarding the possibilities of reducing the too ample feminine anatomy. Not since has there been such thoughtful expressions on the faces of all feminine readers as went the rounds when the news of the successful reduction process of that woman who was divorced in disgrace—was made public. In the thoughts of women who are daily carrying around an extravagance of avoirdupois, and who had almost given up in despair, there was born a new hope. Here was a woman who had reduced and proved it.

There are so many different problems possessing women for their own, but there is no problem that is so rampant at present as the fat woman's problem, as with covetous eyes she drinks in the details of the Directoire gown. Here at last is something that money will not buy. Even women afflicted with fatty degeneration of the spirit are figuring on the problem. Women who sink into every chair they come to, women who have never before acknowledged to their weight any more than to their age, have been obliged to show their hand. Women who have always been willing to pay the price of happiness in exchange for symmetrical outlines no longer have the collateral with which to trade. Fashion has been so kindly disposed toward her for the past few years that her few extra pounds have been disposed of amicably. But that time has gone by and now there is no compromise. Unless a woman is as thin as a thread, there is no use to try for the Directoire gown. Thus many women are busy. The reducing process is not an easy one.

The psychologist tells me that to worry because you are fat results in additional weight. Likewise to worry because you are thin diminishes your weight. A tranquil spirit therefore becomes the means of perfecting the outlines, just as it is also the means of demonstrating temperance and moderation in all things. Thus the physical body reflects the spirit, and harmony of thought is revealed in perfection of outline.

Psychology is as difficult as "reducing."

Families, parties and individuals who make this Poughkeepsie trip may remain on board, if they desire, and if provided with one of the small balconied parlors, may enjoy all the restful quiet of a refined summer hotel, and at the same time the thrill of swift passage through the water. The high standard of the Day Line service is well known, and the busy man who sends his family on this trip may rest assured that they are well cared for and safe from any of the annoyances or roughness which sometimes mar short excursions. The music is an especial feature. As every landscape needs just the fleck of water to complete the picture, so here the long panorama of beauty as seen from the steamer is completed with the little stretch of water in the foreground. Adding together these attractions, and staging them all on one of the cleanest boats afloat any one can be assured that the result will be a perfect summer day's outing.

POINTS OF INTEREST

Aldrich Court—41 Broadway. This formed the site of the first habitation of white men on Manhattan Island; was also the site of the second residence of Washington. Tablet: "This tablet marks the site of the first habitation of white men on the Island of Manhattan. Adrian Block, Commander of the Tiger, erected here four houses or huts, November, 1613. He built the Restless, the first vessel made by Europeans in this country. The Restless was launched in the spring of 1614. This tablet is placed here by the Holland Society of New York, September, 1890."

Apthorpe Mansion—Formerly located at the corner of Ninth (or Columbus) ave. and 91st st. It was here where George Washington remained during his evacuation of New York, and after it was occupied by Lord Howe.

Astor House—Broadway, Barclay and Vesey streets. One of the oldest hotels in New York City, founded by John Jacob Astor, and is noted as having been the headquarters of some of the most prominent men of the age. The property on which this hotel is located is said to be more valuable per square foot than any other of equal dimensions on the Island of Manhattan.

Barge Office—In Battery Park. This was originally the landing place of cabin passengers from ocean steamers, and was for a time used as an emigrant station. Now occupied by customs inspectors.

Block House—Located in Central Park. Built by the Americans, but later improved and occupied by the English during the Revolution.

Boreel Building—115 B'way. This site was formerly occupied by the residence of Lieutenant-Governor James DeLancey; after his death it was turned into a public house, known under a number of names, the most famous being "Burns' Coffee House." It was here the non-importation act was signed, also Washington's inaugural ball was held in the so-called "great room." During the year 1793 the building was torn down and a "City Hotel" was erected by a number of New York merchants. Tablet: "The site of the old historical DeLancey House, afterward the 'City Hotel.' The tavern located here had various proprietors, by whose names it was successively called, being, among others, known as 'The Province Arms,' 'The City Arms,' and 'Burns' Coffee House or Tavern.' It was here that the celebrated non-importation agreement in opposition to the 'Stamp Act' was signed October 31, 1765. Erected by the Holland Society of New York, March, 1890."

Bowery—Located from Chatham Square to junction of Third and Fourth avenues. In the early Dutch days this was a lane running along the farms or "Bowweries," on the northern outskirts of the city; from this the name was taken. On and near this thoroughfare the notorious dives of Owen Gagen and Harry Hill were located.

Bread Line—Originated by Fleischmann, Broadway and 11th st., the celebrated baker, now deceased, who nightly, between the hours of 11 to 12, gives to hundreds of homeless men of this city the surplus breads. This custom, which was started during the life of the philanthropist, is still carried on.

Bridge of Sighs—Connects the Tombs Prison with the Criminal Court Building at Centre and Franklin streets, and derives its name from the fact that prisoners undergoing trial for crimes are taken over this bridge from the Tombs to the Criminal Court Building. On particular occasions when some especially notorious case is being tried the street is crowded with curious people watching for the going of the prisoner to and fro.

Carnegie Hall—57th st. and Seventh ave. Founded by Mr. Andrew Carnegie. Cost over $1,250,000. Formal opening on May 5th, 1891. One of the finest edifices in the world for concerts, lectures, conventions, etc.

Church of the Messiah—Park ave. and 34th st. This site once formed the estate of Robert Murray, the "Quaker Merchant of the Revolution," and was called "Incledonberg," and became historic through the diplomacy of Mrs. Murray in detaining the British officers, Clinton, Howe and Cornwallis, while Putnam and his troops, on their retreat to Harlem, guided by Aaron Burr, passed within a mile of the house.

Coenties Slip—Between Pearl street and the river, above Broad street, and received its name in honor of an influential Dutch shoemaker, whose shop once occupied a corner in this locality; here also stood the old Dutch City Hall, and is now called Jeannette Park, after the ship "Jeannette," sent to the Arctic regions by the "New York Herald."

Cotton Exchange—Located in Hanover Square. This is a large building of yellow brick, with stone facings and it is estimated that it cost $1,000,000. Spot sales of more than five hundred thousand bales of cotton are made during the year. On this site, November 8th, 1725, the first newspaper was printed in New York, and called the "New York Gazette." Tablet: Cotton Exchange—On this site William Bradford, appointed public printer, April 10th, A. D., 1693, issued, November 8th, 1725, "The New York Gazette," the first newspaper printed in New York. Erected by the New York Historical Society, April 10th, A. D.,

1893, in commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the introduction of printing in New York.

East River—This follows the eastern boundary of the city and separates it from Long Island. Along its shores from Coenties Slip to Maiden Lane may be seen many interesting sights in connection with New York's great shipping industry.

First Presbyterian Church—Fifth ave. and 12th st. This church was founded in 1717 and was located in Wall Street. It was the first Presbyterian church in America and it was here that John Watts, the father of Presbyterianism, presided.

Fort Amsterdam—This site is now occupied by the new Custom House Building, and another portion occupied by the Cunard Building, 29 Broadway. Tablet: "The site of Fort Amsterdam, built in 1626. Within the fortifications was erected the first substantial church edifice on the Island of Manhattan. In 1787 the fort was demolished and the Government House built upon this site. This tablet is placed here by the Holland Society of New York, September, 1890."

Governor's Island—Is situated in the Bay, about one thousand yards from the Battery; it covers an area of over sixty-five acres and is used by the United States Government as a military station. Fort Columbus is located near the centre of the island and Castle William, a circular fort of sandstone, built in the year 1811, overlooks the Bay on the western side. From here the "sunset gun" is fired daily.

Grace Church—Broadway and 10th st. The first church building was located at Broadway and Rector st., the present one having been erected in 1845. Back of the church on Fourth ave. is the

Grace Memorial Home, erected by Levi P. Morton in memory of his wife. Here young children are cared for during the hours their mothers are at work. Grace Chapel, on East 14th st., also belongs to this parish.

Gramercy Park—Located between Third and Fourth aves., 20th and 21st sts.; covers an area of about 1½ acres, set aside by S. B. Ruggles as a place of recreation for residents of this neighborhood. It is not open to the general public. Fronting this park is the "Players' Club," and the former residence of the late Samuel J. Tilden. Tablet: Gramercy Park—Gramercy Park, founded by Samuel B. Ruggles, 1831, commemorated by this tablet imbedded in the Gramercy farm by John Ruggles Strong, 1875.

Hall of Fame—Located in the Bronx, on the Harlem River. During the year 1900 the New York University received a gift of $100,000 for establishing a Hall of Fame to commemorate the names of preeminent Americans. The Ambulatory, or stone colonade half encircling the Memorial Library of the University was devoted for this purpose, and tablets are to be placed in it on which 150 names will be inscribed. Fifty of these names were selected in 1900 by a committee of 100 distinguished men, and five more every five years during the next century. Only 29 names received the required 51 votes from the committee in 1900 and the rest of the first 50 were selected in 1905. It can be reached by subway to Kingsbridge, and then a short walk across the Harlem River or by the Putnam Railroad, of the New York Central, from 155th st. and Eighth ave. to the University Heights Station. The Hall of Fame is situated on the New York University site, on University Heights. From it can be seen Washington Bridge, Highbridge, Manhattan on the south, the Hudson and the Palisades to the west, Kingsbridge, Fordham Heights and Yonkers to the north and views of the Bronx to the east. Just below lies the Harlem River.

Metropolitan Opera House—Broadway, between 39th and 40th sts. In September, 1892, the interior was destroyed by fire, and rebuilt during the following year. Tablet: Broadway, between Forty-third and Forty-fourth streets—General George Washington and General Israel Putnam met near this spot during the movement of the American Army, September 15th, 1776, the day before the Battle of Harlem.

Mercantile Library—Astor Place. Founded in 1820. This is the principal circulating library in the city; was first located at 49 Fulton street and afterward moved to Clinton Hall, corner Nassau and Beekman streets, where it remained until transferred to the Astor Place Opera House, which was renamed the new Clinton Hall. This building was demolished in 1890, and the present building erected on its site.

Millionaires' Row—The district on Fifth ave. from 49th st., containing many of the residences of well known millionaires: Fifth ave., 513—Mr. O. H. P. Belmont. Fifth ave., 579—Miss Helen M. Gould. Fifth ave., 634—Mr. D. O. Mills. Fifth ave., 636—Mr. John R. Drexel. Fifth ave., 640—Mr. Geo. Vanderbilt. Fifth ave., 660—Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt. Fifth ave., 680—Dr. Seward Webb. Fifth ave., 681—Mr. Levi P. Morton. Fifth ave., 689—Mr. Wm. Rockefeller. Fifth ave., 834—Mr. Frank Gould. Fifth ave., 840—Mr. Jno. Jacob Astor. Fifth ave., 842—Mrs. Wm. Astor. Mizner. 22 East 72d st.—Mr. R. W. Goelet. Fifth ave. and 76th st.—Mr. W. A. Clarke. Fifth ave. and 90th st.—Mr. Andrew Carnegie. 219 Madison ave. Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan.

Morningside Park—Beginning a short distance from the northwest corner of Central Park at 110th st., and extends northward to 123d street; it contains about 32 acres.

National Academy of Design—Amsterdam ave. and 110th st. Founded in 1826, and is considered the foremost art institution in this country. Open to the public on Sundays, free.

New York Historical Society—Second ave. and 11th st. This building contains a large and valuable collection of historical curiosities. The society was organized in 1804 for the collection and preservation of everything relating to the natural, civil and ecclesiastical history of the United States in general and New York in particular.

Phong, Fat & Company, Orientalists—6 West 22nd st., just across from the "Flatiron" Building, a veritable gallery of art treasures from the Far East, particularly China and Japan. The rare Oriental beauty, design and color combinations and the perfection of each detail show the patience, skill and quaint taste in the execution which is possible only in the Oriental craftsman. Some pieces have consumed months in the making and every piece has a charm that appeals to the lovers of things "different from the ordinary"; each one is for sale, and is priced extremely low if its intrinsic worth be taken into consideration. To give a partial idea of what one may see, we append the following list: Beautiful Kimonos, fine China Wares, Art Bronzes and Brasses, hand-embroidered Silk and Linens, hand-carved Ivory, Silver and Sandalwood, exquisite Oriental Jewelry, pieces of Jade (the luck stone of China); Paper and Straw Goods, handsome Screens and Lamps, and other quaint things for every use. Every day is visiting day. Stop in when you have the time.

Residence of Charles M. Schwab—Riverside Drive and 73d st. This is said to be the handsomest and costliest residence in this country; the material used in construction was imported from Germany and other foreign countries. The estimated cost of the building, furnishings and property is estimated at about eight millions. It is said that at the death of Mr. and Mrs. Schwab this property will revert to this city to be used as a museum.

St. Mark's Church—Located at Second ave. and Tenth st. One of the oldest churches in this city; its site was formerly a part of the farm of Petrus Stuyvesant, the last Dutch Governor of New Amsterdam, whose remains rest in a tomb under the edifice. The present church is the second, the first having been erected in 1826. It was from the graveyard surrounding this church the body of A. T. Stewart, the merchant prince, was stolen, over twenty years ago. Tablet, St. Mark's Church: In this vault lies buried Petrus Stuyvesant, late Captain General and Governor-in-Chief of Amsterdam, in New Netherland, now called New York and the Dutch West India Islands. Died in A. D., 1672. Aged 80.

Windsor Arcade—571 Fifth ave. This was the site of the Windsor Hotel which was destroyed by fire March 17, 1899, at which about fifty lives were lost.

SHORT TALKS

The large dry goods shops are showing the most attractive and at the same time inexpensive wash suits and wash skirts appropriate for outing wear.

The cheap linen suit, colored reps and other cotton substitutes for linen are in great demand. In the better quality garments, French and ramie linens, in the pastel shades, have the preference. The pure white ramie has an increased valuation from the fact the supply is very limited. So also are shades of rose and wistaria, both of which have been great favorites on account of the novelty colors.

There is a great liking for the new yellowish tans and deep buff tones, in both linen and pongee. The natural pongees and natural linens are also the vogue, as they are included in the class of tans and yellows. The ultra tones of this kind, however, are dyed, as they are of greater depth and brilliancy than the natural linen.

Then there are dresses of princess type, closing in front in their entire length. Instead of buttons for fastening, there is on either side a row of large eyelet holes in button-hole stitch. Through these, ribbon (No. 9 or 12) is laced, allowing an open space of two inches at the throat, but which widens as it descends, until at the hem it has a space of five or six inches. Underneath this lacing is placed some fancy fabric, or else all-over lace, over which the ribbon crosses. The effect is of an under robe.

Then the pretty little cotton dresses for summer morning and afternoon wear are of striped and plain gingham, chambrays, percale and printed organdies, made in styles, while they carry out the prevailing fashion ideas, can readily be laundered, for it is an absolute necessity that such dresses shall be fresh and dainty, as this is the great charm.

The lingerie gown goes on its way rejoicing. It is the same, and yet not the same, as it was last year. It is truly marvelous how designers can find new ways of disposing of and combining embroidery and lace. They are to be had at prices to suit all pocketbooks, and even the most inexpensive are dainty and attractive. It would be foolish to endeavor to describe the ornamentation of these gowns. One and all, they are simply a mass of embroidery, whether of flouncing or boudings, with inserted laces.

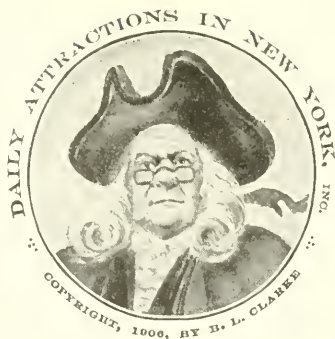

The colored lawn and silk princess slips to be worn underneath these gowns so transforms them that the wearer is given credit for having a greater variety than she really possesses.

The delicate colored sash ribbon is a great addition.

A new way of arranging this is to run it underneath the gown in front, just below the bust; then to bring the two long ends out in the back, and let them fall almost to the bottom of the skirt. These ends should be fastened about four inches above the normal waist line, and not meet in the centre back, but be separated three or four inches, the points where they are fastened to the gown being concealed by small ribbon rosettes.

To clean a delicate fan, use benzine, then dust with Mennen's Violet Talcum Powder.

MADAME ROBERTA.

This tariff applies to both day and night.

All Taxicabs are four-cylinder Darracq landaulettes, seating four people comfortably; and are painted bright red with green panels on the door.

There is only one tariff, no extra charge being made whether one or four passengers are being carried, either by day or night. As fares are plainly indicated on the Taximeter, the public cannot be overcharged by unscrupulous drivers.

NEW YORK TAXICAB COMPANY COUPON BOOKS

For the convenience of our patrons, we issue books containing coupons in denominations of one dollar, fifty cents and ten cents, which will be accepted for fares. Ten dollar and Twenty dollar Coupon Books can be had at the office of the Company, or at the hotels, club and restaurants at which stations are maintained.

These books are sold at a discount of 5 per cent.

The inconvenience of carrying money or making change will be avoided by purchasing one of the books.

INFORMATION FOR PASSENGERS

The TAXIMETER automatically indicates the fare for the use of the cab.

When the red flag is in an upright position, the cab is "for hire," when in a horizontal position the cab is engaged.

Passengers are warned, when engaging a cab, to see that the flag is in the upright position.

PHONE 7400 COLUMBUS

Before starting, the driver will put the flag down when the Taximeter instrument will register 30 cents. This will pay for the use of the cab until service to that amount, either in driving or waiting, has been rendered. The Indicator will thereafter register an additional 10 cents for each quarter of a mile, or for each 4 minutes of waiting.

In case of accident, punctured tire, etc., causing delay, the driver will immediately press down the lever, causing the words "not recording" to appear on the dial. The Taximeter immediately stops registering any fare until the repair is completed and the cab starts off again. Should the passenger not care to wait until the repair is made, he should pay the driver the amount recorded on the taximeter.

All discourtesy, bad language, or rudeness on the part of the employees of the Company should be reported at once to the officials of the Company, the driver's number being given.

Drivers must carry any small pieces of baggage on the outside of cab when requested to do so.

Kindly remember you can have a red Taxicab at your door in a few minutes by calling up 7400 Columbus. We have stands throughout the city and can reach you quickly.

BE SURE AND CALL FOR A RED TAXICAB

When a cab is called for from an address north of 156th St. or outside of the Borough of Manhattan, a sending charge of 20 cents per mile will be made from the nearest stand, and 20 cents per mile return charge if dismissed north of 156th St. or outside Manhattan Island, calculation from point of dismissal to the aforesaid limits.

Have you seen our Busses? Just the thing for theatre parties. Each Buss carries eight persons. Rates: $6 per hour, or $10 for a theatre party if within a radius of three miles, and $2 for each additional mile. An extra charge of $6 if supper call is made.

THE CITY'S SUMMER

The man of statistics says that in every five thousand inhabitants of New York City, three thousand go to the country in the summer. This means that where three thousand yield to the lure of summer, two thousand submit to the tyranny of it.

How splendid to yield to the lure of the summer! To respond to the call of nature, who invites you to come and be entertained, to view her scenery that is a bold and brazen copy of some beautiful stage curtain you can see any night at the theatre, a high-handed robbery of moon and fire-fly effects, her concerts free and lasting all night long, her green velvet carpets to be walked on indiscriminately, her flowers beckoning to you, her quiet resting you, her pure air and food subject to no inspector, pure water from an ice mine somewhere down deep in the direction of China by the short cut, her sunrise and sunset every day, and dozens of things that never happen in town. Where there are trees that seem to belong to nobody in particular; maybe some one gives you a tree, and even when you can't take it away, it is pleasant to think that you own it, pleasant to look forward to next summer when you can go to see it again and sit beneath its friendly shade, experience the proprietorship attitude, and love it. And say your prayers to it.

My neighbor tells me that she owns a cow up in the country somewhere, and that she goes every summer to visit bossy, whose real name is Mrs. Elizabeth Smith. I gather that there is a distinct difference between a perpetual pure milk supply and the pasteurized bottle that is left on the dum-waiter every morning in town. It is so fine to have friends in the country, even if they are merely a tree and a cow, and then to run away from the rush and the hurry and the noise and the worry and the discomforts; why, it's like heaven in the country. It's the promised land of the year. Oh, the leisure and the lure of it!

In town it's different. The babies that live on the sidewalk look very pale this month, and some of the gate-posts are already marked the same as the angel marked them long ago. The ice man chops his big cakes of treasure into sections, and while he may give you careless measure, he makes a reckless spatter of it in the cutting, and the little children gather up the melting crystals and carry them about in bits of paper. The poor sleep on the roofs, and the fire-escape is floored over for housekeeping purposes.

One of my neighbors whose family has gone to the country comes home late in a cab, comes surging, cannonading through the street in a taxicab that has nothing to conceal, no matter how late the hour, and the rest of the neighbors scramble from their beds and run to the windows, and then look at the clock. The walls of my apartment seem to close in so as to make the rooms smaller and hotter and stuffier. The houses opposite have their windows and doors boarded up, and the husbands, one and all, have slipped the bridle and are frisking in forbidden meadows.

Doubtless there are alleged compensations. There is an electric fan in the office to convince you that you are swept by ocean breezes. There are roof gardens where things are doing, and patrons are making the best of it; there are trolley rides, and there is—oh, best of all—the vacation you are to have this month, and then you, too, escape from the tyranny, and join the throng that yields to the lure of summer.

The business woman next door tells me that a year full of New York Augusts is her idea of future punishment (only she didn't say it quite so politely).

POINTS OF INTEREST

American S. P. C. A.—The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, incorporated April 10, 1866, and is supported by voluntary contributions; located at 50 Madison ave., corner 26th st. This society maintains a uniformed force of officers with police power for the enforcement of the humane laws, and has special ambulances and life-saving apparatus for the rescue and transportation of disabled animals.

Bible House—Erected in 1852 by the American Bible Society, located on Fourth ave., between 8th and 9th sts. Cost over $300,000. There are over five hundred people employed here daily in printing the Bible in many different languages.

Bellevue Hospital—Located from First ave. to East River, between 26th and 28th sts., and is the largest and best known hospital in the city. It is under the supervision of the Department of Public Charities. Established 1826. The city morgue is located on the grounds of this institution, which is open day and night.

Bryant Park—On Sixth ave., between 40th and 42d sts., was named for William Cullen Bryant, and occupies the site of the old Crystal Palace, which was destroyed by fire in 1858, and in which was held the first world's fair in the United States.

Consolidated Stock Exchange—Organized in 1875, under the title of the New York Mining Stock Exchange, and merged with the American Mining Stock Exchange, the National Petroleum, the Miscellaneous Security Board and the New York Petroleum Exchange and Stock Board. Located at 36 Beaver st. Open to visitors from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Grand Central Station—42d st. and Park ave., used exclusively by the two railroads which gives actual entrance into the heart of the city. It has been estimated that over five hundred trains arrive and depart daily from this station.

Herald Square—35th st., Broadway and Sixth ave. Here is to be found the statue of William E. Dodge; the home of the daily newspaper, "The New York Herald," and a large number of department stores.

Kip's Bay—Foot of 36th st., East River. It was named in honor of Hendrick Kip, and it was here that the British landed in 1776 when making their first attack on the army under command of Washington.

Lenox Library—Located on Fifth ave., between 70th and 71st sts.; was founded by James Lenox, a noted collector of literary and art treasures; was opened to the public in January, 1877, and was incorporated in 1870. The cost was about $1,000,000, which was borne by the founder.

Liberty Island—Also known as Bedloe's Island, located in the Bay off the Battery. Previous to 1860 was used as a place of execution, and at one time contained a fortification named Fort Wood; the star-shaped walls form the outlying boundaries for the pedestal of the Statue of Liberty, which is also called "Liberty Enlightening the World." This statue was designed by Bartholdi, a French sculptor, in 1879, and was completed and presented to the United States as a token of esteem by the French nation in 1883. The pedestal cost over $250,000, which was raised by public subscription. Height from base to torch, 151 feet. There are 154 steps in the statue from the pedestal to the head, and the ladder leading up through the extended right arm to the torch has 54 rounds. Round trips are made every half hour from Battery Pier, near the Aquarium, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. Fare, 25 cents.

Mills Hotel No. 1—Erected by D. O. Mills as a hotel for men of moderate means; located at 160 Bleeker st. Clean and more than comfortable rooms are to be had for 20 cents a night. They are nicely fitted, containing iron bedstead, hair mattress, clean linen, which is changed daily, chairs, locker and electric light. A large store room in the basement is arranged for baggage where the guests have easy access to it at all times. There are also reading rooms (restaurant), and plunge bath, all without extra charge.

Pearl Street—Received its name on account of the pearl shells found along its path; is the oldest street in the city. There are three tablets of interest located at No. 73 Pearl st., the site of the first Dutch house of entertainment on the Island of Manhattan. Later the site of the old "Stadt Huys" or City Hall. This tablet was placed here by the Holland Society of New York, September, 1890. No. 81 Pearl st.: On this site William Bradford, appointed public printer April 10, A. D. 1693; established the first printing press in the colony of New York. Erected by the Historical Society April 10, A. D. 1893, in commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the introduction of printing in New York. No. 88 Pearl st.: Destroyed 1835, in conflagration of December 16, 17. Six hundred and fifty buildings containing merchandise were consumed in one night; loss, $20,000,000. Rebuilt, 1836. Again destroyed by fire, 1853.

Phong, Fat & Company, Orientalists—6 West 22d st., across from the "Flatiron" Building. Here are displayed specimens of the wonderfully artistic wares from the other side of the world, especially those of China and Japan. The remarkable patience and skill of the artisans of these countries have produced many pieces of rare beauty and noteworthy for their extremely difficult execution. The marked attention given to the most minute detail is evidenced in the hand-carved Ivory, Silver and Sandal-wood; the quaint Oriental beauty and design of the pieces of Jewelry and fine China Wares have a charm that satisfies the taste of lovers of the unusual; the art needle-work also comes in for a share of the admiration which it deserves and is especially noticeable in the exquisite Kimonos, Table Linens, Mandarin Coats, Waists and Dresses, Pillow Tops and Pictures. Every day is visiting day. If you have a few minutes to spare, stop in and see these interesting pieces.

Stewart Mansion—Located at the northwest corner of Fifth ave., at 34th st.; was the former home of the late A. T. Stewart and was erected at a cost of $2,000,000; at one time the headquarters of the Manhattan Club, and now occupied by the Knickerbocker Trust Company.

Times Building—B'way, Seventh ave. and 42d st. This is sometimes called "Flatiron" building No. 2, as it is one of the tallest buildings above 34th st. It is here that "The New York Times" has its home.

Union Theological Seminary—Located between 69th and 70th sts., on Park ave. Founded in 1836 and was removed from University Place to present site in 1884.

Wall Street—At lower Broadway, opposite to Trinity Church. The street is about half a mile long and derives its name from the fact that the city wall followed its course in the old Dutch days. In 1709 a slave market was in progress at the foot of this street and slaves were brought to this city in large numbers. It was here that Washington landed in 1789 on his way to take oath of office as first President of the United States in 1789.

SHORT TALKS

The yachting and boating dress is always of the sailor type, usually in blue or white serge or linen. It is made with a blouse having broad collar, finished with the emblem embroideries on collar and sleeve. With this is worn a narrow brim sailor hat or yachting cap of white duck or linen.

The costume for the fishing trip is of a distinctly different type. It must be substantial and weather-resisting, also warm, as the dampness and water courses usually means cool nights.

In fishing camps far removed from fashionable cottage and hotel life, and especially for trout fishing and canoeing, women wear knickerbocker and long coats, in preference to skirts and jackets. The knickerbocker permits the use of the hip boots of rubber for wading the trout streams. In fact, this style of dress is a necessity for trout fishing.

The woman who plays golf and tennis, when packing her trunk will see she has provided herself with several sweaters, also with easy fitting shirt-waists of substantial materials, and duck and serge skirts in walking lengths cut in such a manner as to escape contact with the turf as she stoops on the putting green.

This outdoor life engenders the expenditure of a large amount of money, for these sports call for accessories of a special character, such as footwear, headwear, neckwear, corsets, veils and often gloves as well, and when we include the implements employed in the various sports, such as fishing rods and tackle, bow and arrow, golf clubs, tennis rackets, saddles and whip, the amount of money required is far from insignificant.

The suits intended for outdoor wear are worn in rain and sunshine, so the material must be of practical wear-resisting materials. The reference is given to serge, corduroy, khaki and linen.

in New York City, stunning costumes have been designed. The model most in favor is the princess type, the skirt five or six inches from the floor.

New York has certainly gone wild over the Hudson-Fulton celebration, which will take place in September. Decorations will be in demand for private houses, hotels, clubs, and, in fact, everything and every place that is possible to ornament. To the question: Where shall we go to get the proper decoration? we direct you to the beautiful show rooms and Art Department of The Dennison Manufacturing Co., 15 West 27th st., near 5th ave. A visit will be a surprise to the most credulous and they will be amazed at the beautiful and artistic articles procured from crepe paper. They have displayed in the most ingenious manner in the Art Room the Dutch effects. The Dutch colors, yellow and brown, are utilized in the most delightful manner to be used as a freize. Here the "Half Moon," which was fitted out by the Dutch East India Company for Hendrik Hudson, sails majestically along, broken here and there with the dates 1609-1709. Walls are transformed to a woodland with background of brown, divided into panels with forest green trees. Ceilings are screened with a trellis of green made of this paper from which climbing over and hanging from are flowers that Mother Nature after close scrutiny would be compelled to call her own. The Dutch landscape which can be made to cover the wall of any height, is of brown crepe paper. A winding road goes up, up, till it reaches a wind-mill, whose wheel seems to move as we gaze admiringly. For dinner name cards and favors the designs show the thought of a finished artist. Space will not permit us to mention the Dutch tulips, the pure white snowballs, hollyhocks, roses, etc. We can only repeat the invitation given by Mr. Dennison: "Come and see for yourself."

The National Society, Daughters of the Empire State,

to be held the week of September 25th to October 2d. Located on one of the finest sites on the course of the parades—at 59th Street and Seventh Avenue. The opportunity to make reservations by other organizations is offered and the tickets are $3.00, good for the three great land pageants. Plan can be seen at the home of Mrs. N. E. Hulbert, President, 104 West 84th Street, New York.

POINTS OF INTEREST

Abingdon Square—Located at the foot of Eighth ave., and was known as Greenwich Village; in the olden days was occupied by a number of fine country homes.

Astor House—Broadway, Barclay and Vesey sts. July 4, 1909, was the 75th birthday of this famous "down-town hotel" and is under the personal direction of Mr. A. H. Thurston. "Astor's Hotel"—The cornerstone of this fine building was laid on the 4th inst., at 6 o'clock a. m., in the presence of about a hundred spectators. A box was deposited beneath the stone with a silver tablet in it, containing the following inscription: 'Cornerstone of the Park Hotel; laid the 4th of July, 1834; the hotel to be erected by John Jacob Astor; builders: Philetus H. Woodruff, Peter Storms, Campbell & Adams; superintendents: Isaiah Rogers and Wm. W. Burwick; architect: Isaiah Rogers.' The daily papers of the preceding day—the last number of the 'Mechanic's Magazine,' containing a full length portrait of Lafayette—and Goodrich's Picture of New York—were also deposited in the box. The dimensions of the building are as follows: The length, fronting Broadway, will be 201 feet 1 inch; fronting Barclay st., 154 feet; fronting Vesey st., 146 feet 6 inches. There are to be six stories. The height to the top of the cornice will be 77 feet. In the centre there will be a court-yard, measuring 105 feet by 76. Each of the fronts will be built of blue Quincy granite. As the principal entrance will be from Broadway, there will be four columns—two of the Doric and two of Antae—surmounted with entablature." (Copied from "The Constellation" of July 19, 1834. The paper was at that time published at 13 Ann st. by A. D. Patterson.)

Castle Garden—Located at the Battery (now the Aquarium). In the year 1805 Fort Clinton was erected near the site of the old Dutch block-house. On account of its circular shape it was known as the "Castle." It was at that time regarded as a triumph of solidity. The walls in some places were thirty feet thick and mounted with barbette and casement guns. Several years after this trees were planted and walks laid out and it soon became a fashionable resort for the people. In the year 1847 it was fitted up as a theatre or opera house, and three years later became the scene of Jenny Lind's great triumph in this country. Madame Sontag also sang here in the year 1852. In the year 1855 the building was leased by the State Board of Emigration and used as a landing depot for immigrants, and to-day the building is used as an aquarium. Admission free. Open from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. (except Monday forenoon).

City Hall—Located in City Hall Park, Broadway and Chambers st. Here is the headquarters of the City Government. Was erected in 1803 and 1812 at a cost of more than $500,000. This section was at that time thought to be on the outskirts of Manhattan. The "Governor's" room, on the second floor, is used for official receptions and contains the desk on which George Washington wrote his first message to Congress, the chairs used by the first Congress, the chair in which Washington was inaugurated first President of the United States, and a gallery of paintings of many mayors of the city, State Governors and other leading national officers of the Revolution. Directly outside in front of the City Hall is a bronze tablet commemorating the preliminary operations in regard to the digging of the subway. Tablet: "At this place, 24th March, 1900, Hon. Robert A. Van Wyck, made first excavation for the Underground Railway. Rapid Transit Commission, A. E. Orr, president," etc. West wing of present City Hall: "Near this spot in the presence of General George Washington the Declaration of Independence was read and published to the American Army, July 9, 1776."

Fifth Avenue Stage—From Washington Square, a small park, at Fifth ave. and Waverly place, to 86th st. and Fifth ave. Views: Washington Memorial Arch and Judson Memorial Institute, at Washington Square; Fifth Avenue Building, site of the old Fifth Avenue Hotel; the "Flatiron" Building and the fine marble structure of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., at 23d st.; the Marble Collegiate Church, Fifth ave. and 29th st.; the Waldorf-Astoria, at 33d st.; the enormous Marble Home (when completed) of the New York Public Library, now being erected at 40th to 42d sts.; Delmonico's, at 44th st.; St. Patrick's Cathedral, at 50th st.; hotels St. Regis and Gotham, at 55th st.; Central Park entrance, at 59th st.; Metropolitan Museum of Art, and the Egyptian Obelisk, at 83d st. On this trip you pass most of the costly residences in America. Fare, 10 cents each way.

First Methodist Church—Located on the south side of John street, near Nassau st. It is the first church of this denomination and was erected in the year 1818. It is still used as a place of worship and is frequented by business men during noon hour, when services are held.

McGowan's Pass—Central Park. Tablet placed on an old historic gun which reads: "This Eminence Commanding McGowan's Pass was occupied by British troops September 15, 1776, and evacuated November 21, 1783. Here, beginning August 18, 1814, the citizens of New York built Fort Clinton to protect the city in the second war with Great Britain. This tablet is erected by the children of the City History Club of New York, A. D. 1906." The rocky defile of this pass was named after McGowan, a farmer, who lived near this spot and on September 15, 1776, stragglers of the American troops passed through this Pass in their retreat to Harlem. The British in pursuit met at this spot a lad, Andrew McGowan, and they immediately made use of him to show them the road the Americans had taken. He led them in various ways over wrong roads and thus by his wit gave the Americans time to escape. This tablet was unveiled with appropriate ceremonies on Evacuation Day, 1906.

Park Row Building—Located at Park Row and Broadway, and is one of the tallest office buildings in the world. Contains 32 stories and it is estimated that fully 25,000 people pass in and out during business hours.

Phong, Fat & Co.—The most beautiful embroideries in the world come from China and Japan; the nimble fingers of the little yellow men produce things with the needle and thread that are really marvelous; Pictures of Birds, Animals and other things true to life, embroidered on Table Linens, Kimonos, Screens and Wall Panels. You are invited to view the great assortment of Chinese and Japanese embroidered pieces at Phong, Fat & Company, 6 West 22nd st., just across from the "Flatiron" Building.

Post Office (General)—Located at the Junction of Broadway and Park Row. Open all hours of the day and night, week days, and from 9 to 11 a. m. on Sundays. Tablet: Post Office Building—On the common of the City of New York, near where this building now stands, there stood, from 1766 to 1776, a liberty pole, erected to commemorate the repeal of the stamp act; it was repeatedly destroyed by the violence of the Tories, and as repeatedly replaced by the Sons of Liberty, who organized a constant watch and guard. In its defence the first martyr blood of the American Revolution was shed, on January 18th, 1770.—A. D., 1897, erected by the Mary Washington Colonial Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Somerindyke House—This house formerly stood in Ninth ave., near 75th st. Was the home of royalty during its exile. Louis Philippe and his brothers, the Duc de Montpensier and the Comte de Beaujolais, taught school for their living. The Duke of Kent, Queen Victoria's father, visited them here.

Stevens House—Located at 27 Broadway. New York's second oldest hotel. Among its patrons were Prince Napoleon Bonaparte and Jenny Lind.

Ward's Island—Located in the East River near its junction with the Harlem River, and forms the northern boundary of Hell Gate. It is owned by the city and contains about 200 acres, and is occupied by the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane, the State Emigrant Hospital, Houses of Refuge, and a nursery or home for children, as well as home for invalid soldiers of the Civil War. Can be reached by boat from East 116th st. in the afternoon. Procure pass from Manhattan State Hospital. Also by steamer from Peck Slip, 11.30 a. m., Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Washington Building—Located at Battery place and Broadway, erected by Cyrus W. Field, the author and founder of the Atlantic cable. Tablet erected: No. 1 Broadway: "Here stood Kennedy House, once headquarters of Generals Washington and Lee" On the Bowling Green opposite, the leaden statue of King George was destroyed by the people, July 9, 1776, and later made into bullets for the American army.

West Washington Market—Located at the foot of West 12th st., but was formerly extending along West st., on the river side to the market. It is here that all early fruits and vegetables from Bermuda Islands are received, and it has been estimated that during the peach season from 50,000 to 100,000 baskets are received daily.

GRANT'S TOMB

Grant's Tomb is located on Riverside Drive and 123d st. This may be reached by Sixth ave. and Amsterdam ave. car to 123d st., then walk west. Hours, 10 to 5 daily, including Sunday. No admission fee. This monument was designed by John H. Duncan, and is constructed of white granite from Maine, with marble interior, and from its commanding site overlooking the Hudson is very imposing. The structure is 90 feet on the side and 72 feet in height, with circular cupola and Ionic columns 70 feet in diameter. The dome rises 150 feet from the ground, the apex of the monument about 280 feet above the river; from the plaza facing the south side steps 70 feet wide ascend to the portico, which has double lines of Doric columns before the entrance and massive bronze doors; above the portico two sculptured figures by J. Massey Rhind, emblematic of Peace and War. On a panel are inscribed these words: "Let us have peace." (This was the concluding sentence of General Grant's letter accepting the nomination for the Presidency, May 29, 1868.)

The interior is 76 feet between the walls. The four great piers of the rotunda carry arches and are about 50 feet from the floor. The gallery is circular, supported by the arches, 40 feet in diameter; the dome about 105 feet above the floor. Sculptured reliefs by J. Massey Rhind represent Youth, Military Life, Civil Life and Death. In the small rooms surrounding the rotunda are stands of battle flags. Through the circular opening in the floor the sarcophagus is seen in the crypt directly beneath the centre of the dome. It is of red porphyry from Montello, Wis., and is supported on a pedestal of granite from Quincy, Mass. Upon the lid is the name, Ulysses S. Grant. The companion sarcophagus, an exact counterpart, both in material and design, was provided, it being the expressed wish of General Grant that Mrs. Grant should lie by his side.

General Grant died July 23, 1885, at Mount McGregor, N. Y. The funeral was the grandest pageant ever seen. The remains lay in state in the City Hall and was then conveyed to the temporary tomb. The procession was eight miles long and it was estimated that over a million people lined the route.

There were 90,000 contributors, and the fund, with interest, amounted to $600,000, and was raised by the Grant Monument Association. The corner-stone was laid April 27, 1892, by President Harrison. Sealed in it were copies of the Declaration of Independence, Constitution of the United States and Articles of Confederation, a Bible, the "Memoirs" of General Grant, an American flag, badges of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Loyal Legion, and a number of medals struck in United States mints in commemoration of events in General Grant's life.

SHORT TALKS

In spite of the vogue of the simple dress, the washable shirtwaist continues a favorite. This is due to the immense popularity of the severely tailored suit. The washable waist for summer is so much more practical than the net waist it has the sanction of common sense as well as fashion.

The frilled front waist is still in great favor. The well dressed woman quickly recognized the effectiveness of this style and is loath to give it up. A properly laundered frill front waist conveys the strictly tailored idea, yet it is relieved from the absolute and often unbecoming severity of the plain tucked waist. Where a frill is not attached to the blouse itself a separate frill is often worn with these tailored waists.

We mention an exquisite waist of very sheer though rather coarse weave of white pongee.

This is made with inch tucks, in both body and sleeves, and a finely tucked collar and cuffs. The front box pleat is hemstitched, and crossed with four large button holes, through which is drawn a tie with jabot ends. The tie, the collar and the cuffs are finished with frills of cream lace.

The longer shoulder line is shown in the latest waists and will be the accepted model for the fall.

The long shoulder line is accomplished in various ways, the simplest being the use of a flat pleat or band, which extends from the neck over the shoulder seam, and down the outer sleeve to the wrist. Where the waist is of border material, this strip is formed of the border. In white waists an embroidered band is often employed in this way.

A beautiful dress was seen at a garden party, worn by a fashionable woman just gone into mourning.

The material was black moiré gauze. The skirt slightly trained. Hemming it was a wide band of gros tulle embroidered in dull black silk, imitating straw. Nearly all the corsage was made of this beautiful embroidery. Cut low, it passed over the shoulders in narrow bretelles, framing a chemisette of plain black mousseline de soie. Black satin with a dull surface was folded into a high belt, twisting into a huge rosette in the middle of the back. Three-quarter long sleeves of mousseline de soie, falling into small elbow puffs drawn below into narrow embroidered bands, were overhung by short open sleeves of the embroidery.

The Parisian fad of the artificial flower for the corsage bouquet is fast gaining favor here. The shops are showing copies of the bouquets made by the more exclusive florists. The popular flowers for this purpose are orchids, with and without maiden-hair fern; gardenias, Parma and wood violets, roses, carnations and camellias, and to add to their perfection they are scented with the natural perfume of the flower.

The hot August days are with us again and accompanied with intolerable thirst that nothing will quench but a refreshing drink of ice-water. The price of ice has soared higher and higher till it amounts almost to a luxury. We are reminded by these conditions of the hint given by Araminta last summer how to keep the ice from melting with small expense.

Any pitcher will do, but one of gray stone holding about two quarts Araminta has proven the most economical.

All that is required is wrapping paper and a sheet of cotton batting. Measure the paper round the pitcher, including the handle, double the paper, make an interlining of the cotton baste all around, and sew together. Cut a round top and line the same way. Sew on the top or cover. Ice with a little water in the pitcher covered with the "cosey" has been proved to last all day. Water can be added as required.

TARIFF

First Half Mile or Fraction thereof...30c.
Each Quarter Mile thereafter.....10c.
Each Four Minutes of Waiting.....10c.
This tariff applies to both day and night.
One or four persons the same price.

EXTRAS

For Each Package or Trunk carried

All Taxicabs are four-cylinder Darracq landaulettes, seating four people comfortably; and are painted bright red with green panels on the door.

There is only one tariff, no extra charge being made whether one or four passengers are being carried, either by day or night. As fares are plainly indicated on the Taximeter, the public cannot be overcharged by unscrupulous drivers.

NEW YORK TAXICAB COMPANY COUPON BOOKS

For the convenience of our patrons, we issue books containing coupons in denominations of one dollar, fifty cents and ten cents, which will be accepted for fares. Ten dollar and Twenty dollar Coupon Books can be had at the office of the Company, or at the hotels, club and restaurants at which stations are maintained.

These books are sold at a discount of 5 per cent.

The inconvenience of carrying money or making change will be avoided by purchasing one of the books.

INFORMATION FOR PASSENGERS

The TAXIMETER automatically indicates the fare for the use of the cab.

When the red flag is in an upright position, the cab is "for hire," when in a horizontal position the cab is engaged.

Passengers are warned, when engaging a cab, to see that the flag is in the upright position.

PHONE 7400 COLUMBUS

Before starting, the driver will put the flag down when the Taximeter instrument will register 30 cents. This will pay for the use of the cab until service to that amount, either in driving or waiting, has been rendered. The Indicator will thereafter register an additional 10 cents for each quarter of a mile, or for each 4 minutes of waiting.

In case of accident, punctured tire, etc., causing delay, the driver will immediately press down the lever, causing the words "not recording" to appear on the dial. The Taximeter immediately stops registering any fare until the repair is completed and the cab starts off again. Should the passenger not care to wait until the repair is made, he should pay the driver the amount recorded on the taximeter.

All discourtesy, bad language, or rudeness on the part of the employees of the Company should be reported at once to the officials of the Company, the driver's number being given.

Drivers must carry any small pieces of baggage on the outside of cab when requested to do so.

Kindly remember you can have a red Taxicab at your door in a few minutes by calling up 7400 Columbus. We have stands throughout the city and can reach you quickly.

BE SURE AND CALL FOR A RED TAXICAB

When a cab is called for from an address north of 156th St. or outside of the Borough of Manhattan, a sending charge of 20 cents per mile will be made from the nearest stand, and 20 cents per mile return charge if dismissed north of 156th St. or outside Manhattan Island, calculation from point of dismissal to the aforesaid limits.

Have you seen our Busses? Just the thing for theatre parties. Each Buss carries eight persons. Rates: $6 per hour, or $10 for a theatre party if within a radius of three miles, and $2 for each additional mile. An extra charge of $6 if supper call is made.

DAILY ATTRACTIONS IN NEW YORK

SHORT TALKS

It is the fancy of the moment to wear stockings to match the color of the gown and shoe laces the same hue in black shoes.

Crystal and metal trimmings are the decorations of afternoon and evening costumes. Trimming is chiefly confined to the bodice of a gown, though there is noted a tendency to trim the skirt, but always in the same color as the material.

From Araminta we learn how to make a hat bag which requires very little time or material, but it is an immense boon when traveling.

Dimity, flowered swiss or any dainty thin stuff answers best for this purpose as it is important to have it thin, so that it will fold into small compass in the suit case.

One yard and a half of goods will be sufficient. From the half yard of cloth, cut a circle eighteen inches in diameter; cut the remaining yard in half and sew the two pieces together at each end, to form the sides of the bag. Hem the edge which is to be the top of the bag, and about an inch and a half from the top stitch a casing for the drawing ribbon, then the bottom of this piece is stitched on, quite straight, to the edge of the circle which forms the bottom of the bag. Press the seam, turn the bag right side out and run the drawing string—two yards of taffeta ribbon to match the cloth—through the casing.

A bag for rubbers is very necessary, too, when traveling. Take a piece of ecru linen, nine inches by twelve, and sew each of the two ends around a circle of the linen four inches in diameter, this cylinder shaped bag is fastened at the side with a button and button-hole.

Araminta's improvement on the laundry bag is exceedingly clever.

It is made of cretonne, and the back is cut four inches longer than the front. This piece is brought up and buttoned over the front.

The best way to keep plumes from one season to another is to put them in glass jars, fastening the cover securely. If white ones are put away in this manner, sprinkle them with magnesia, and when removed for use they will be light, clean, and as fluffy as when new.

From the "Hint how to mend gloves" we are told never to use silk for this purpose, as it cuts the Kid, but select cotton the exact shade of the gloves and with a very fine needle buttonhole 'round the rip or tear, then catch together on the wrong side, taking one stitch at a time from one loop of the buttonhole stitch to another.

Of course a Fair is the mode employed to raise the money. A few suggestions of things seen in the shops might help in the selection of saleable articles.

A great many persons no doubt would like to own a "Billikens," but did not care to pay the price asked when they were first introduced. They are now made in diminutive size, only an inch and a half in height. It is the same bland Billikens smile, the same expressive feet and with the same warrant to bring good luck to the owner for the small sum of 35 cents. Tape measures are concealed in a miniature typewriter. A "silver" tray with bottle of champagne with standard for tumbler is harmless, for the ring of the tape measure protrudes from a slit in the side of the bottle and the tumbler is a thimble; price, 25 cents; and many more pretty articles too numerous to mention.

Art Galleries—The art galleries of New York to which the public are admitted are comparatively few in number, but there are a number of notable pictures to be seen by those interested in art matters, in some public buildings which are devoted to other purposes. Thus there are in the Lenox Library a number of fine pictures bequeathed to the city by Mr. Lenox, including works by Reynolds, Turner and Munkeasy. The New York Historical Society possesses some valuable pictures, while there are some interesting portraits of former mayors of New York to be seen at the City Hall. Some of the chief artistic treasures of New York, however, are to be found in the collections of private individuals. This picture is 38 feet high and 40 feet wide and was presented to this church by Mrs. Rhineland, at a cost of over $20,000. It is supposed that it took 3,000 pounds of paint to execute this work. A story told of the early days is that planks were laid to Broadway across the meadows and a small sum of money was paid to the truant officer to prevent the boys from bathing in the brook, which was located at the back of the church, during service.

- Golden Hill—Near John and William streets was shed the first blood of the Revolution in a skirmish between citizens and the king's soldiers. This is known as the "Battle of Golden Hill." A tablet marks the spot—William and John streets, Golden Hill. Here, January 18, 1770, the fight took place between the "Sons of Liberty" and the British Regulars, 16th Foot. First blood in the War of the Revolution. Erected by the Sons of the Revolution.

Here General Putnam had his headquarters previous to the Battle of Long Island, and at various times it was occupied also by Lord Cornwallis, Lord Howe, Sir Henry Clinton and Talleyrand. Here also Benedict Arnold arranged his conspiracy, and from here Washington witnessed the departure of the British troops.

- Obelisk—Near Museum of Art. Erected in Egypt, 1500 B. C. Presented by the Khedive. Brought here 1881 at cost of $100,000.
- Phong, Fat & Co.—Just across Fifth ave. from the "Flatiron" Building, at 6 West 22d st., is probably the most unique store in the city. It is unique particularly for its wares. It is also unique in that strangers in the city are welcome to look around to their heart's content, even though they do not purchase, and admire the thousands of beautiful as well as useful pieces which bear witness of the wonderful skill of the Oriental craftsman. Courteous clerks are here to supply the visitor with any information that they may desire concerning these beautiful wares. Every man, woman and child will find many things of interest in the wonderful display of moderately priced fine hand-made chinaware, brasses, bronzes, hand-carved ivories and sandal-wood, embroidered waist, dress and robe patterns in silk, linen and cotton crepe, things made of bamboo, silverware novelties, antiques and thousands of other things that are well worth more than a passing glance and which cannot be appreciated without seeing them. No one should leave the city without paying this attractive store a visit.

Potter's Field—Here lie the bodies of the unknown and pauper dead. Located on Hart's Island. Can be reached by boat from East 26th st. Pass can be had by applying to Department of Charities or Correction.

Rhineland Sugar House—Formerly stood on the corner of the present Rose and Duane streets, one of the many buildings in which American prisoners were incarcerated during the Revolution, subject to inhuman cruelties at the hands of the infamous Cunningham.

Rogues' Gallery—Police Headquarters, No. 300 Mulberry st. Can be viewed only by special permission. A collection of photographs of notorious criminals who have from time to time been in the hands of the police.

Spanish Museum—At the foot of West 156th st., near Riverside Drive, is situated the property on which Mr. Archer Huntington has built the beautiful Hispanic Society Building. Built of gray stone with Doric columns, Roman-Spanish in style of architecture, a stone embankment preserves the terraced foundation, and two flights of stone steps lead down to the street in the middle front. For many years Mr. Huntington has devoted much time and money to the collecting of rare and choice Spanish antiques from earliest periods, including those of the Spanish colonies, it being his wish to establish in this city a museum and library that would represent the complete history of Spain in its national, political, social, intellectual and art life. Visitors are welcome.

Statue of Liberty—Bedloe's Island. Steamer from Battery every hour; 25 cents round trip; tickets good for admission to the statue; presented by France.

St. Paul's Church—Broadway and Vesey st. Built in 1764; maintained by Trinity Parish. Attended by Washington, whose pew remains.

St. Patrick's Cathedral—Fifth ave. and 50th st. Open daily. Visitors are welcome. On view is the cardinal's hat hanging on the altar. It is so high up under the arch that it looks like a mere speck.

Stock Exchange—20 Broad st.

Sub-Treasury—Wall and Nassau. Government banking house, $200,000,000 in gold and silver coins often stored here. Site of Washington's inauguration. The stone he stood on can be seen.

The Swamp—Is located west of Franklin Square, and east of City Hall Park. Here is to be found the centre of the hide and leather trade of New York. As this section is in a hollow, it is called to this day "The Swamp," the atmosphere being strongly impregnated with the odor of fresh sole leather and of salted hides.

Van Cortlandt Mansion—Van Cortlandt Park, near Jerome ave., now a historic museum in charge of Colonial Dames.

Washington Arch—Washington Sq. and 5th ave. Dedicated 1893.

Washington Bridge—Amsterdam ave., 181st, over Harlem River.

Washington Market—Occupies the entire blocks, Washington, West, Fulton and Vesey streets. This is the principal meat and vegetable market of the city, and in the early morning hours affords a spectacle well worth witnessing.

Woodlawn Cemetery—Jerome and Webster aves., East 211th to 233d.

SHORT TALKS

There is no gainsaying the popularity of the scarf. With both day and evening costumes the scarf is a prominent feature.

They are made in the greatest variety and many materials—in nets, embroidered and plain; in chiffon, crepe, satin, cashmere de soie and lace. They are braided, embroidered, beaded, spangled, printed in designs, and ornamented with hammered metal work.

The increasing length and ornamentation is accompanied with the increasing width, some being so wide they might be called a mantle.

A distinct requirement is—the scarf must match the hat for day wear, and for the evening costume the same material as the dress.

The fringe-trimmed scarf is very stylish. Very lovely are those of coarse mesh nets of both silk and metal, finished with fringe made from lacet braid.

It has become quite popular to drape these scarfs. The Bedouin cape style at the back, with point weighted with a tassel, is quite popular. Another style, the scarf is shirred or pleated in the center back, where it is held in shape by a large ornament of rich embroidery. In the hammered metal scarf the increased favor is very apparent; in fact, entire evening mantles and coats are made of these, put together in most artistic designs.

If you are fortunate to possess a Chantilly lace scarf bequeathed you by your grandmother, now is the time to unearth it, as they are most gracefully adjusted as sashes and draperies on the new gowns. Seen lately on a gown of opalescent silk, a long scarf of Chantilly lace was employed with charming effect to form the corsage. Held by a beautiful ornament at the belt line in front, it passed over the shoulders and was fastened at the back waist line, the ends being left to fall on the skirt. The rest of the corsage is a chemisette of white tulle laid over pink, then blue mousseline

There seems to be no end to the ingenuity in designing practical novelties for the use of the traveler.

A bathroom case, which folds up in a very compact manner, is one of the latest. When fully opened, a number of pockets are brought into view—fourteen, to be exact—all of which have a special purpose. There is one for brushes, another for slippers, others for combs, wash-rags, soap, sponge—in fact, practically everything that a fastidious person would require when making the morning ablution. When not used for traveling purposes, it can be fastened to the wall. Price, $2.

Then there is a pretty little toilet cabinet, which is fitted with hairpins of different sizes in black and bronze, and has also a receptacle for dressing pins.

The bracelet fan is something new. It gets its name from the bracelet fastened to a ribbon in bangle fashion. The bracelet comes in both amber and shell and the fan in ostrich feathers or in silk in all the delicate shades.

The vogue for jet in dress trimmings, buttons and other ornamental trimmings is pronounced, and naturally we find it in neckbands, pins for the hair and brooches. A beautiful design of a pendant brooch of jet is diamond-shape, on metal base, with a good, strong pin at the back. From this is suspended a fringe of eight strands of jet beads of different sizes and of graduating lengths.

The cool summer has brought into general favor the white serge coat, both stylish and comfortable, to be worn on the piazza and in the gardens. They are long and enveloping, of very simple cut, and finished in tailored style. The pure white is preferred, but occasionally those with collar facings of black and large jet buttons are seen.

BEAUTIFUL BIRDS

The many who visited the Sportsmen's Show last winter will recall with pleasure the bird exhibit of Mr. Dudley Tilley. This was only a "bird's-eye view." To see this magnificent collection in all its grandeur, the visitor to New York is cordially invited to visit this wonderful collection at the home of Mr. Tilley, at Darien, Conn., directly opposite the Darien Station. The farm covers an area of more than forty-five acres. He has imported birds from all over the world and has buyers in London, Antwerp, Liverpool, Germany, Holland and in South American countries. The most striking birds in the collection are the pheasants, and in many respects they are the most remarkable of all, for, aside from their exquisite beauty, there are many rare specimens. All come from China, with two exceptions—the Versicolor and Somering's, which come from Japan. The attention is immediately directed to the Golden pheasant, resplendent in bright scarlet and gold; Reeve's or Bartail, one of the greatest flyers and frequently measuring six feet from point of bill to point of tail; Versicolor, opalescent in color and the back so wonderfully feathered as to suggest a Persian rug; Impeyan, one of the heaviest of pheasants and the most gorgeously colored in existence; Elliott's, a rare bird, when seen in the proper light, disclosing a remarkable colored effect of burnished copper; Lady Amherst, the same family as the golden; Silver pheasants, which are very easy to rear, and are as tame as barnyard fowl, making a pretty appearance when roaming at will across the lawn; peacock pheasants, small and of a steel-gray color—this is one of the exceptions to the hardy class, requiring a warm place in winter; Trago Pan, a most extraordinary specimen, the crimson Trago Pan being said to be the handsomest bird in the world; Manchurian, noted for the fact that the plumage of the sexes is alike; it is extremely hardy and tame and may be given the liberty of the lawn.

The park devoted to Cranes makes a very striking appearance, with these long-legged birds stalking about. There the Sarrus crane from Africa may be seen standing about six feet in height; the Demorselle from Siberia, with white tufts on head, dark slate-colored back and blue breast; the European, the American Sandhill, the Crowned and the Stanley, which is very rare and also very tame.

There is a remarkable assortment of common pea-fowl. These do not show off in all their glory until they are four years old, then developing truly bewildering tails. Among the rare varieties is the Green of Java, which is selling generally for

The White pea-fowl is also of much beauty, being entirely white, and when the tail is extended looking not unlike a gigantic fan-tail pigeon. The Black-winged pea-fowl comes from India, the wings being black instead of buff. Another rare bird is the Specifer pea-fowl. In connection with this family a word should be said about the guinea fowl, the Vulturine, with its steel blue feathers, attracting much attention.

of beauty, the water fowl rival the land birds. There is a splendid array of swans, including, of course, the Mute, or common white variety, which may be seen in nearly every park. This is a prolific breeder. Then there are the Black-billed Whistling swan, the latter being well named. This bird is not bred in captivity and all Mr. Tilley's specimens were captured in the Florida Keys. Other varieties to be seen are the white Bewick, the rare American Trumpeter; Whooping, and Black Australian, a rare bird with a red bill, white wings, black feathers (those on the back curled as though with an iron), and a flute-like note; Coscorba, a little bird with a straight neck, resembling the goose, and the rare Black-neck-white, which comes from South America and is conspicuous for a pure white body and jet black head and neck.

Coming from the swans, the visitor meets the geese, and, if he is a novice, finds at once that these birds are more varied and interesting than he had ever believed. The Canada, Hutchings and Cackling are three distinct species, although marked exactly alike, the only difference among them being in size.

Space will not permit of describing the many other rare and beautiful birds, but it is fitting to mention this work of Mr. Tilley's is the outgrowth of a boyish fad for pigeons and fowls. The collection grew so rapidly that Mr. Tilley began the study of ornithology, in which he is now an authority. Darien is but one hour from New York on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. The superintendent is there at all times to show and give information to the visitor, whether he comes for pleasure or to purchase.

INFORMATION FOR PASSENGERS

The TAXIMETER automatically indicates the fare for the use of the cab.

Passengers are warned, when engaging a cab, to see that the flag is in the upright position.

In case of accident, punctured tire, etc., causing delay, the driver will immediately press down the lever, causing the words "not recording" to appear on the dial. The Taximeter immediately stops registering any fare until the repair is completed and the cab starts off again. Should the passenger not care to wait until the repair is made, he should pay the driver the amount recorded on the taximeter.

All discourtesy, bad language, or rudeness on the part of the employees of the Company should be reported at once to the officials of the Company, the driver's number being given.

THE BRIDGES OF NEW YORK

Brooklyn—Terminal at City Hall Park. Spans the East River, connecting the Borough of Manhattan with the Borough of Brooklyn. The bridge was designed by John Roebling, the builder of the Niagara Falls Suspension Bridge, and was begun in the year 1870 and formally opened in 1883. It consumed about thirteen years to build, and cost originally \$15,000,000, but with numerous alterations that cost is now about \$21,000,000. The Manhattan approach is 1,562 feet 6 inches; the Brooklyn approach 971 feet; the channel span from tower to tower, 1,505 feet 6 inches; the total length of the bridge is 5,989 feet, and with the extension, 6,537 feet; the towers are 278 feet above high water and from water to roadway 119 feet, and from roadway to roof 159 feet; the floor at the tower is 119 feet; and the height at center of span 135 feet above water; the width is 85 feet, and the cables are $15\frac{3}{4}$ inches in diameter and 3,578 feet 6 inches in length. Towers rest upon caisson foundations, on the Manhattan side, on bed-rock 78 feet below high water mark; the Brooklyn side on a clay bottom 45 feet; the size of the caissons are: Manhattan, 171 by 102 feet; the Brooklyn, 168 by 102 feet, each weighing 7,000 tons and filled with 8,000 tons of concrete; the towers consist of three buttressed shafts joined by connecting walls up the roadway and arched above; at high water the towers are 140 by 159 feet, and the roof 136 by 153 feet. The four cables are imbedded in anchorage 930 feet back from the towers; these are masses of masonry, each having a dead weight of a million pounds and capable of resisting two and a half times the pull of the cable; each cable consists of 5,295 oil-coated and galvanized steel wires 3,578 feet 6 inches long, laid parallel, not twisted, and closely wrapped with galvanized wire into a solid cable $15\frac{3}{4}$ inches in diameter; the strength of the cables are 12,000 tons; and the four cables weigh 6,800,000 pounds; where they pass over the towers the cables fit in saddles weighing 25,000 pounds each; these rest upon steel rollers, so that each cable may have a movement forward and backward to accommodate for the change in temperature and variation of load; the ropes which support the superstructure of twisted galvanized wire can sustain five times the load they are required to bear. The floor is provided with expansion joints in the center of the three spans to allow for expansion and contraction; the natural life of a bridge is estimated to be 20,000 years. A central promenade for foot passengers, two roadways for trolley cars and teams, and two railroads. The promenade is free; trolley fare, 5 cents; bridge cars, 3 cents one way; round trip, 5 cents.

ried across the river, the original Croton aqueduct, which brings the water for city use from Croton River and other sources in Westchester. The length is 1,460 feet; there are 14 arches, the highest 116 feet above the river; the footway or path affords a view, and from the sight-seeing yacht a view of the lower portion can be seen; the water tower is located on the Manhattan side and back of this is a high-pressure reservoir.

Queensboro, or Blackwell's Island Bridge extends across the East River from East 59th st., Manhattan, to Ravenswood, Queens, and is supported by two piers rising from Blackwell's Island; the weight and carrying capacity is the greatest cantilever bridge in the world; length, 3,724 feet; approach from Manhattan, 1,051 feet in length. The river span consists of two cantilever arms 591 feet in length each; the span between the two piers at Blackwell's Island is 630 feet; the river span, 984 feet; the easterly cantilever is 459 feet; the Long Island approach, 3,455 feet; the towers are 185 feet in height. There are two floors, the lower 86 feet wide, the upper 67 feet; on the lower is a roadway 56 feet wide for passengers and carriage traffic, and two trolley tracks; also two other trolley tracks are on extensions of the floor beams; on the upper floor is arranged for four elevated tracks and two 12-foot sidewalks. The bridge was designed by Gustav Lindenthal and cost about $20,000,000. A bus from the Manhattan side will convey you across for the fare of 5 cents.

Washington—Located at W. 181st, north of High Bridge, and is constructed of iron, steel and granite and is considered the most beautiful of all our bridges; it is 2,384 feet in length, 80 feet wide; and the two central arches have a span of 510 feet, and are 135 feet above the river. The lamps are of solid bronze and each part is most beautiful and will bear close inspection. The cost was about $2,700,000.

Williamsburg—Terminal Grand st., Manhattan, to Williamsburg, Brooklyn; formally opened in the year 1903; cost $12,000,000. Channel span of 1,600 feet; length, 7,200 feet; height, 135 feet at the center and towers 335 feet; it is the largest suspension bridge in the world; the width is 118 feet and has two cable tracks, four trolley tracks, two roadways and two foot walks and also two bicycle paths.

ART NOTES

Lenox Library—Fifth ave. and 70th st. Exhibition of prints, etchings, engravings and other pictures, illustrating the history of Henry Hudson, Robert Fulton and the Hudson River. Open to the public; also Labor Day. The prints are arranged in three sections. The first, called "Henry Hudson and the Discovery of the Hudson River," is comparatively small on account of the lack of authentic material. This includes engraved portraits based upon the doubtful paintings in the City Hall, photographs and other reproductions of paintings by Albert Bierstadt, George Wharton Edwards and others. The second division illustrates "Robert Fulton and Early Steam Navigation." The third section includes views of the Hudson River from New York to its source and contains many rare old prints of the seventeenth century and later.

HUDSON-FULTON AT THE EDEN MUSEE

The management of the Eden Musee is making great preparation for the reception of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration visitors to New York. All of the Musee artists are at work on different groups for this great event. An exact duplicate of the "Half Moon" will be on exhibition in the Central Hall. It is half size, being 32 feet long, and everything is exactly as the original ship, masts, crew and equipments. The ship appears to be in motion and Hendrick Hudson is giving orders to his crew, all plainly visible. In the Entrance Hall is a realistic figure of Robert Fulton, showing him working upon his model of the "Claremont," the first steam vessel to navigate the Hudson. Another group of this celebration will be "The Purchase of Manhattan Island in 1612 from the Indians for Twenty Dollars." In this group Peter Minuit is shown surrounded by his crew and courtiers in the act of bartering hardware, beads, dresses and other trinkets with the Indians. Other groups will show events that have happened since the discovery of the Hudson River which are connected with the development of navigation and a great city. Special Cinematograph pictures for this celebration are now on their way from Europe and will be shown hourly, afternoon and evening, during the week's festivities. They will include a display of great ocean liners and battle-ships of all nations. The World in Wax, for which the Musee has become so justly famous, will be thoroughly up-to-date, including the mammoth groups of "People talked about," "Rulers of the World," "Heroes of All Nations," and hundreds of other historical figures and groups. A special musical program has been arranged by Karl Kaposy for his celebrated Royal Blue Hungarian Orchestra, which will give elaborate concerts afternoon and evening during the celebration.

SHORT TALKS

Millinery for Fall is all ready to take captive the feminine heart and only awaits the word "Fall Opening" to show itself in all its beauty.

A visit to a large importer and also to the designers of hats for special high-class trade shows that the hat shapes are modified along lines which are particularly appropriate for wings and fancy feathers, such as coques, ostrich and aigrette trimmings.

For the early fall, wings will have unusual prominence and range in size from one extreme to another, but for late fall and winter the ostrich and aigrettes will be in greater demand than they have ever been in the history of millinery.

The cavalier shape, which has had such a vogue in Paris, will be the model affected by the fashionable who appreciate this classical or picturesque character.

The material which promises to be more popular than velvet is panne velvet or satin antique, which is commonly known as hatter's silk plush. This handsome material will be the favored material for making the large dress shapes in black, white and colors.

There is nothing in millinery more beautiful than the hat of silk plush with ostrich or aigrette trimmings.

Velvet shapes with moiré silk facings, in self and contrasting colors, will be a favorite.

Another material which will be used and was only shown by the exclusive milliners last winter, is flowered moiré silk, the designs in heavy brocaded flower effects on a rather heavy ribbed moiré or antique silk. Sometimes these have gold cords outlining or interwoven in the flower patterns. This material is rich and distinctive, and its expensiveness will keep it from becoming common. Strange to say, the supply is limited, and it is used only for dress hats for evening and theatre wear. In fact, all the materials which are fashionable are expensive.

As to colors which will be most favored, are the new blues, such as bleu de France. This is a sort of marine, but is lighter and has a cast which must be seen to be appreciated. Also all blues on the light navy and marine order.

Browns are not in evidence, and the same is true of greens, with the exception of "Bohnie green," a sort of blue réséda.

Among the new turban models, the Henry IV. is a notable example, because of the striking lines of this particular shape. The materials in the Henry IV. turban are beaver and velvet. The large, oblong shape, with sharply turned left side brim, has a full velvet draped crown, this peculiar draping of the full folds of velvet giving originality and distinctiveness to a rather eccentric turban idea. This is emphasized by trimmings of fancy feathers, or large wings, which are arranged so as to accentuate the height by pointing backwards.

The familiar Gainsborough type of picture hat will be more prominent than ever in fall millinery fashions. It will be of enormous size in brim, crown and height, with handsome ostrich plume trimmings. These hats are as near perfect as any type of hat ever created. The long, sweeping, graceful lines of the Gainsborough appeal to women always, and the rich character of the hat makes it a favorite for the most dressy occasions.

Put in a saucer two teaspoonfuls of pulverized sulphur, cut a lemon in half, dip into the sulphur and rub the hat briskly; rinse with warm water, using a nail brush; then place in the sun to bleach. If it is a man's hat, cover the band with a double fold of newspaper.

Lenox Library—Fifth ave. and 70th st. Exhibition of prints, etchings, engravings and other pictures, illustrating the history of Henry Hudson, Robert Fulton and the Hudson River. Open to the public; also Labor Day. The prints are arranged in three sections. The first, called "Henry Hudson and the Discovery of the Hudson River," is comparatively small on account of the lack of authentic material. This includes engraved portraits based upon the doubtful paintings in the City Hall, photographs and other reproductions of paintings by Albert Bierstadt, George Wharton Edwards and others. The second division illustrates "Robert Fulton and Early Steam Navigation." The third section includes views of the Hudson River from New York to its source and contains many rare old prints of the seventeenth century and later.

GRANT'S TOMB

Grant's Tomb is located on Riverside Drive and 123d st. This may be reached by Sixth ave. and Amsterdam ave. car to 123d st., then walk west. Hours, 10 to 5 daily, including Sunday. No admission fee. This monument was designed by John H. Duncan, and is constructed of white granite from Maine, with marble interior, and from its commanding site overlooking the Hudson is very imposing. The structure is 90 feet on the side and 72 feet in height, with circular cupola and Ionic columns 70 feet in diameter. The dome rises 150 feet from the ground, the apex of the monument about 280 feet above the river; from the plaza facing the south side steps 70 feet wide ascend to the portico, which has double lines of Doric columns before the entrance and massive bronze doors; above the portico two sculptured figures by J. Massey Rhind, emblematic of Peace and War. On a panel are inscribed these words: "Let us have peace." (This was the concluding sentence of General Grant's letter accepting the nomination for the Presidency, May 29, 1868.)

The interior is 76 feet between the walls. The four great piers of the rotunda carry arches and are about 50 feet from the floor. The gallery is circular, supported by the arches, 40 feet in diameter; the dome about 105 feet above the floor. Sculptured reliefs by J. Massey Rhind represent Youth, Military Life, Civil Life and Death. In the small rooms surrounding the rotunda are stands of battle flags. Through the circular opening in the floor the sarcophagus is seen in the crypt directly beneath the centre of the dome. It is of red porphyry from Montello, Wis., and is supported on a pedestal of granite from Quincy, Mass. Upon the lid is the name, Ulysses S. Grant. The companion sarcophagus, an exact counterpart, both in material and design, was provided, it being the expressed wish of General Grant that Mrs. Grant should lie by his side.

General Grant died July 23, 1885, at Mount McGregor, N. Y. The funeral was the grandest pageant ever seen. The remains lay in state in the City Hall and was then conveyed to the temporary tomb. The procession was eight miles long and it was estimated that over a million people lined the route.

There were 90,000 contributors, and the fund, with interest, amounted to $600,000, and was raised by the Grant Monument Association. The corner-stone was laid April 27, 1892, by President Harrison. Sealed in it were copies of the Declaration of Independence, Constitution of the United States and Articles of Confederation, a Bible, the "Memoirs" of General Grant, an American flag, badges of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Loyal Legion, and a number of medals struck in United States mints in commemoration of events in General Grant's life.

SHORT TALKS

In the new waist ideas the importance of harmony in shade is a factor. So great is this necessity that the purchaser of a ready-to-wear suit will find the shade of the suit can be matched in a waist.

The materials most desirable are rêpe de chine, messalines, satins, hiffons and large mesh nets. Those of a more serviceable nature are of hiffon, taffeta, moiré and changeable silks.

There is a decided interest shown in the jersey dress, which is unquestionably the most marked feature in the fall styles. Owing to the peculiar construction of the jersey dress, there is a limit to the variations; but there is one point which must be observed—the jersey must be of excellent quality and of correct cut to have any beauty at all.

One of the most attractive models of the jersey dress, the entire bodice is jetted with fine beads, and where the bodice and skirt are joined a sash is artistically draped. As yet the jersey is not manufactured as a separate article, but is attached to the pleated skirt, which is preferred of silk, but is also made of fine broadcloth.

The fall fashions show the important feature in trimming gowns and dresses will be ribbons. The high class dressmakers in their late summer designs employed the broad ribbon sash most effectively or hip draperies in the form of a scarf, and in low hanging drapery effects on more dressy costumes.

The vogue of ribbons in millinery continues with unabated vigor. Ribbons are used in enormous quantities on the early fall hats. The bow of moiré, satin and taffeta ribbon, also the cockade bow and immense rosette, are some of the early fall styles of trimming.

The jabot of lace and net seems to have lost very little of its popularity, as this dainty style of neckwear is worn as much as ever and will be during the coming season. In style, they differ very little from those in vogue during the spring and summer, except that they are much fuller and more voluminous. Irish and Cluny laces are employed as much as ever, but the new style note in neckwear is Venise. Very expensive types of jabots and stocks are made up of real Venise.

The many new models in bras-sièrs which are shown proves that women appreciate this little article which so improves the bust.

One of the novelties is made of knitted tricot. This is the tie-round type, there being no lacing. It is of the bandage type of garment, the front being shaped to conform to the bust, while the straps, passing around the back of the figure, cross the shoulders on opposite sides, forming as it were a shoulder brace as well as a bust supporter.

Another novelty is a hip confiner, of knitted tricot. It is extremely heavy and in honeycomb design. It is woven to the outline of the body and the open gore at the front permits of lacing, thus making possible a very snug adjustment. It is worn below the waist line and encases the figure snugly. Three sets of hose supporters hold the confiner in place.

Another article coming into more general use among women who wish to conform to the present requirements of fashion and have very slender hips, is the Dissolvène rubber garments; whilst removing the superfluous flesh which is poison to the system, requires no change in the wearer of her manner of living, no dieting or unusual exercise. A visit to the parlors of the Dissolvène Mfg. Co., 18 West 34th st., near the Waldorf-Astoria, will convince the woman who is burdened with an excess of flesh that she has indeed found the article which is a safe remedy and will give her relief.

Bits of lemon and orange peel put in the pitcher of water on the washstand will make the water very soft and give a very pleasing fragrance.

RED TAXICABS

TARIFF

First Half Mile or Fraction thereof...30c.
Each Quarter Mile thereafter.....10c.
Each Four Minutes of Waiting.....10c.
This tariff applies to both day and night.

One or four persons the same price.

EXTRAS

For Each Package or Trunk carried
outside 20c.

All Taxicabs are four-cylinder Darracq landaulettes, seating four people comfortably; and are painted bright red with green panels on the door.

There is only one tariff, no extra charge being made whether one or four passengers are being carried, either by day or night. As fares are plainly indicated on the Taximeter, the public cannot be overcharged by unscrupulous drivers.

NEW YORK TAXICAB COMPANY COUPON BOOKS

For the convenience of our patrons, we issue books containing coupons in denominations of one dollar, fifty cents and ten cents, which will be accepted for fares. Ten dollar and Twenty dollar Coupon Books can be had at the office of the Company, or at the hotels, club and restaurants at which stations are maintained.

These books are sold at a discount of 5 per cent.

The inconvenience of carrying money or making change will be avoided by purchasing one of the books.

INFORMATION FOR PASSENGERS

The TAXIMETER automatically indicates the fare for the use of the cab.

When the red flag is in an upright position, the cab is "for hire," when in a horizontal position the cab is engaged.

Passengers are warned, when engaging a cab, to see that the flag is in the upright position.

PHONE 7400 COLUMBUS

Before starting, the driver will put the flag down when the Taximeter instrument will register 30 cents. This will pay for the use of the cab until service to that amount, either in driving or waiting, has been rendered. The Indicator will thereafter register an additional 10 cents for each quarter of a mile, or for each 4 minutes of waiting.

In case of accident, punctured tire, etc., causing delay, the driver will immediately press down the lever, causing the words "not recording" to appear on the dial. The Taximeter immediately stops registering any fare until the repair is completed and the cab starts off again. Should the passenger not care to wait until the repair is made, he should pay the driver the amount recorded on the taximeter.

All discourtesy, bad language, or rudeness on the part of the employees of the Company should be reported at once to the officials of the Company, the driver's number being given.

Drivers must carry any small pieces of baggage on the outside of cab when requested to do so.

Kindly remember you can have a red Taxicab at your door in a few minutes by calling up 7400 Columbus. We have stands throughout the city and can reach you quickly.

BE SURE AND CALL FOR A RED TAXICAB

When a cab is called for from an address north of 156th St. or outside of the Borough of Manhattan, a sending charge of 20 cents per mile will be made from the nearest stand, and 20 cents per mile return charge if dismissed north of 156th St. or outside Manhattan Island, calculation from point of dismissal to the aforesaid limits.

Have you seen our Busses? Just the thing for theatre parties. Each Bus carries eight persons. Rates: $6 per hour, or $10 for a theatre party if within a radius of three miles, and $2 for each additional mile. An extra charge of $6 if supper call is made.

NEW YORK TAXICAB CO., 622-640 West 57th Street, New York

APPELLATE COURT HOUSE OF NEW YORK

The Court House of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court is situated on the northeast corner of Twenty-fifth street and Madison avenue. The cost, including the furnishings, was about $750,000, and was completed in the year 1900. The interior is rich in mural paintings, also marbles, and the exterior is decorated with sculptures. The caryatides, by T. S. Clarke, which support the cornice of the Madison avenue side, represent the Four Seasons; the group above, by Karl Bitter, represents Peace; on the pedestals of the balustrade are the statues of the Great Law-Givers: Alfred, Confucius, Justinian, Manu, Vaivasvata, Zoroaster, St. Louis, Mahomet, Solon, Lycurgus, Moses; at the entrance on Twenty-fifth street are two large seated statues. Force, the pedestal with this inscription thereon, "We must not use force till just laws are defied," also Wisdom, "Every law not based on wisdom is a menace to the state." These statues are the work of F. W. Ruestuhl; the bas-relief of the pediment, by C. H. Niehaus, represents the Triumph of Law over Anarchy; and above this, by C. D. French, is a group symbolizing Justice. On the window pediments are the reclining figures of Morning, Noon, Evening, Night, by M. M. Schwartzott. As you enter the main hall has a wainscoting and pilasters of Sienna marble, with bronze gold capitals. Paintings fill the frieze spaces, and the ceiling is modeled in gold of two shades. The Court Room is also decorated in the same manner. The bench, screen and dais are of dark oak, very handsomely carved. On the stained glass windows of the dome are inscribed the names of the following eminent jurists: Fish, Jay, Butler, Shaw, Webster, Ogden, Choate, Kent, Clinton, Livingston, Hamilton, Marshall, Legare, Story, Pinckney, Taney, Van Buren.

O'Connor, Marcy, Spencer. The mural paintings of the two apartments are symbolical, as well as allegorical. The frieze on the north wall facing the entrance, by H. S. Mowbray, represents the Transmission of the Law. This consists of eight groups, as follows: Mosaic, Egyptian, Greek, Roman, Byzantine, Norman, Common Law, and Modern Law, each group illustrating the distinct period that had its influence on our own; each group is united by an allegorical winged figure to represent transmission from one age to another. To the left on the westerly wall the frieze, by W. L. Metcalf, represents Justice; between the entrance doors on the south wall the two lunettes, by C. Y. Young, represent Law and Equity; to the right, on the easterly wall, the frieze, by Robert Reid, represents Justice supported by the guardians of the Law, with sword and fasces. She gives Prosperity and Peace to the Arts and Sciences, holding the symbols of the Law, sword, book and scales; Education follows Peace, teaching the youth, the book being lighted by a lamp held by Religion; Drama follows Prosperity, and Music with harp; on the south wall the subjects are Poetry, Painting, Sculpture, Architecture and Fame. The Court Room is most interesting. The centre panel illustrates Wisdom attended by Learning, Experience, Humility, Love, also Faith, Patience, Doubt, Inspiration. It is intended that the figure of Wisdom personify spiritual wisdom, Love to carry out the sentiment of the figure of Wisdom. There are other panels representing The Power of Law, Justice of the Law, the seals of the City and State. On the wall behind the dais of the Justices the long frieze, by Kenyon Cox, represents the Reign of Law, and other interesting panels are to be enjoyed. Open daily to the public.

POINTS OF INTEREST

American S. P. C. A.—The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, incorporated April 10, 1866, and is supported by voluntary contributions; located at 50 Madison ave., corner 26th st. This society maintains a uniformed force of officers with police power for the enforcement of the humane laws, and has special ambulances and life-saving apparatus for the rescue and transportation of disabled animals.

Bible House—Erected in 1852 by the American Bible Society, located on Fourth ave., between 8th and 9th sts. Cost over $300,000. There are over five hundred people employed here daily in printing the Bible in many different languages.

Bellevue Hospital—Located from First ave. to East River, between 26th and 28th sts., and is the largest and best known hospital in the city. It is under the supervision of the Department of Public Charities. Established 1826. The city morgue is located on the grounds of this institution, which is open day and night.

Bryant Park—On Sixth ave., between 40th and 42d sts., was named for William Cullen Bryant, and occupies the site of the old Crystal Palace, which was destroyed by fire in 1858, and in which was held the first world's fair in the United States.

Consolidated Stock Exchange—Organized in 1875, under the title of the New York Mining Stock Exchange, and merged with the American Mining Stock Exchange, the National Petroleum, the Miscellaneous Security Board and the New York Petroleum Exchange and Stock Board. Located at 36 Beaver st. Open to visitors from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Grand Central Station—42d st. and Park ave., used exclusively by the two railroads which gives actual entrance into the heart of the city. It has been estimated that over five hundred trains arrive and depart daily from this station.

Herald Square—35th st., Broadway and Sixth ave. Here is to be found the statue of William E. Dodge; the home of the daily newspaper, "The New York Herald," and a large number of department stores.

Kip's Bay—Foot of 36th st., East River. It was named in honor of Hendrick Kip, and it was here that the British landed in 1776 when making their first attack on the army under command of Washington.

Lenox Library—Located on Fifth ave., between 70th and 71st sts.; was founded by James Lenox, a noted collector of literary and art treasures; was opened to the public in January, 1877, and was incorporated in 1870. The cost was about $1,000,000, which was borne by the founder.

Liberty Island—Also known as Bedloe's Island, located in the Bay off the Battery. Previous to 1860 was used as a place of execution, and at one time contained a fortification named Fort Wood; the star-shaped walls form the outlying boundaries for the pedestal of the Statue of Liberty, which is also called "Liberty Enlightening the World." This statue was designed by Bartholdi, a French sculptor, in 1879, and was completed and presented to the United States as a token of esteem by the French nation in 1883. The pedestal cost over $250,000, which was raised by public subscription. Height from base to torch, 151 feet. There are 154 steps in the statue from the pedestal to the head, and the ladder leading up through the extended right arm to the torch has 54 rounds. Round trips are made every half hour from Battery Pier, near the Aquarium, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. Fare, 25 cents.

Mills Hotel No. 1—Erected by D. O. Mills as a hotel for men of moderate means; located at 160 Bleecker st. Clean and more than comfortable rooms are to be had for 20 cents a night. They are nicely fitted, containing iron bedstead, hair mattress, clean linen, which is changed daily, chairs, locker and electric light. A large store room in the basement is arranged for baggage where the guests have easy access to it at all times. There are also reading rooms (restaurant), and plunge bath, all without extra charge.

Pearl Street—Received its name on account of the pearl shells found along its path; is the oldest street in the city. There are three tablets of interest located at No. 73 Pearl st., the site of the first Dutch house of entertainment on the Island of Manhattan. Later the site of the old "Stadt Huys" or City Hall. This tablet was placed here by the Holland Society of New York, September, 1890. No. 81 Pearl st.: On this site William Bradford, appointed public printer April 10, A. D. 1693; established the first printing press in the colony of New York. Erected by the Historical Society April 10, A. D. 1893, in commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the introduction of printing in New York. No. 88 Pearl st.: Destroyed 1835, in conflagration of December 16, 17. Six hundred and fifty buildings containing merchandise were consumed in one night; loss, $20,000,000. Rebuilt, 1836. Again destroyed by fire, 1853.

Phong, Fat & Company, Orientalists—6 West 22d st., across from the "Flatiron" Building. Here are displayed specimens of the wonderfully artistic wares from the other side of the world, especially those of China and Japan. The remarkable patience and skill of the artisans of these countries have produced many pieces of rare beauty and noteworthy for their extremely difficult execution. The marked attention given to the most minute detail is evidenced in the hand-carved Ivory, Silver and Sandal-wood; the quaint Oriental beauty and design of the pieces of Jewelry and fine China Wares have a charm that satisfies the taste of lovers of the unusual; the art needle-work also comes in for a share of the admiration which it deserves and is especially noticeable in the exquisite Kimonos, Table Linens, Mandarin Coats, Waists and Dresses, Pillow Tops and Pictures. Every day is visiting day. If you have a few minutes to spare, stop in and see these interesting pieces.

Stewart Mansion—Located at the northwest corner of Fifth ave., at 34th st.; was the former home of the late A. T. Stewart and was erected at a cost of $2,000,000; at one time the headquarters of the Manhattan Club, rebuilt and now occupied by the Knickerbocker Trust Company.

Times Building—B'way, Seventh ave. and 42d st. This is sometimes called "Flatiron" building No. 2, as it is one of the tallest buildings above 34th st. It is here that "The New York Times" has its home.

Union Theological Seminary—Located between 69th and 70th sts., on Park ave. Founded in 1836 and was removed from University Place to present site in 1884.

Wall Street—At lower Broadway, opposite to Trinity Church. The street is about half a mile long and derives its name from the fact that the city wall followed its course in the old Dutch days. In 1709 a slave market was in progress at the foot of this street and slaves were brought to this city in large numbers. It was here that Washington landed in 1789 on his way to take oath of office as first President of the United States in 1789.

ART NOTES

Lenox Library—Fifth ave. and 70th st. Exhibition of prints, etchings, engravings and other pictures, illustrating the history of Henry Hudson, Robert Fulton and the Hudson River. Open to the public; also Labor Day. The prints are arranged in three sections. The first, called "Henry Hudson and the Discovery of the Hudson River," is comparatively small on account of the lack of authentic material. This includes engraved portraits based upon the doubtful paintings in the City Hall, photographs and other reproductions of paintings by Albert Bierstadt, George Wharton Edwards and others. The second division illustrates "Robert Fulton and Early Steam Navigation." The third section includes views of the Hudson River from New York to its source and contains many rare old prints of the seventeenth century and later.

SHORT TALKS

The most novel thing in this season's veilings is the lace face veil.

These were first brought out in princess lace effects in white and natural, or butter color. Now comes the face veils of Chantilly lace in black, white and colors.

Among the latest importations of this fashionable lace, the pattern is outlined in threads of silver and gold, making a most attractive and fascinating veil.

The newest things in French veiling novelties are the enormous blocks and spots and all manner of irregular shapes in the dots, on the finest of hair mesh, the mesh being in large, irregular diamond weaves. They are certainly smart and look Frenchy, but it is a question if they will not prove a bit too smart for the American woman.

The craze this season is undoubtedly for matching sets of jewelry, the carrying out of a color scheme in jewels, as well as in other accessories of dress.

Semi-precious stones are employed for this purpose, viz., the turquoise, coral, jade, baroque, pearls and opal matrix. The more extravagant fancies are found in the use of rubies, emeralds and sapphires.

Pendant earrings continue to have a great vogue. They are especially becoming with the collarless dresses.

Many novelties are shown in watches, hidden in the bracelet, necklace and purse.

Black and white nets form the basis of many of the season's novelty trimmings. Jet and crystal and metal beaded and bugled effects are done on net foundations, and there are many beautiful embroidered and braided patterns done on net. Combinations of gold and dull silver are much in favor, and many beautiful combinations are seen in the embroideries done in dark rich shades of silk, relieved with metal thread.

Some of these bands are jeweled, the large crystal beads in imitation of rubies, sapphires, emeralds, amethysts, topazes and jet all being used singly and in combination. The amethyst stones are particularly favored, owing to the great use of violet shadings.

Another class of jeweled effects, the semi-precious stones made from celluloid and colored in imitation of turquoise matrix, agate and various other stones, are distinctly new.

Jet buttons are in many new designs, odd shapes being the special feature. High but flat topped semiglobular shapes are new. There are also oblong and triangular buttons of varying sizes.

The keynote of the season in trimmings is unquestionably bugles and beads, with jet taking the lead.

Along with the craze for jet is the fancy for colored crystals and metal effects. The greatest novelty in Paris this last season which is now shown in our shops is "au clair de lune," or moonlight effects. They are not in the opalescent effects, but bear a close resemblance to jet, being of the darkest possible gun-metal gray, with metallic sheen. These moonlight effects appear in bands, in garnitures and all-overs.

The greatest novelty in the "ready-to-wear" separate skirt is the overskirt effect. The model in which it is finding greatest favor is the deeply kilted flounce with an overskirt of tunic effect.

Aldrich Court—41 Broadway. This formed the site of the first habitation of white men on Manhattan Island; was also the site of the second residence of Washington. Tablet: "This tablet marks the site of the first habitation of white men on the Island of Manhattan. Adrian Block, Commander of the Tiger, erected here four houses or huts, November, 1613. He built the Restless, the first vessel made by Europeans in this country. The Restless was launched in the spring of 1614. This tablet is placed here by the Holland Society of New York, September, 1890."

Apthorpe Mansion—Formerly located at the corner of Ninth (or Columbus) ave. and 91st st. It was here where George Washington remained during his evacuation of New York, and after it was occupied by Lord Howe.

Astor House—Broadway, Barclay and Vesey streets. One of the oldest hotels in New York City, founded by John Jacob Astor, and is noted as having been the headquarters of some of the most prominent men of the age. The property on which this hotel is located is said to be more valuable per square foot than any other of equal dimensions on the Island of Manhattan.

Barge Office—In Battery Park. This was originally the landing place of cabin passengers from ocean steamers, and was for a time used as an emigrant station. Now occupied by customs inspectors.

Block House—Located in Central Park. Built by the Americans, but later improved and occupied by the English during the Revolution.

Boreel Building—115 B'way. This site was formerly occupied by the residence of Lieutenant-Governor James DeLancey; after his death it was turned into a public house, known under a number of names, the most famous being "Burns' Coffee House." It was here the non-importation act was signed, also Washington's inaugural ball was held in the so-called "great room." During the year 1793 the building was torn down and a "City Hotel" was erected by a number of New York merchants. Tablet: "The site of the old historical DeLancey House, afterward the 'City Hotel.' The tavern located here had various proprietors, by whose names it was successively called, being, among others, known as 'The Province Arms,' 'The City Arms,' and 'Burns' Coffee House or Tavern.' It was here that the celebrated non-importation agreement in opposition to the 'Stamp Act' was signed October 31, 1765. Erected by the Holland Society of New York, March, 1890."

Bowery—Located from Chatham Square to junction of Third and Fourth avenues. In the early Dutch days this was a lane running along the farms or "Bow-erries," on the northern outskirts of the city; from this the name was taken. On and near this thoroughfare the notorious dives of Owen Gagen and Harry Hill were located.

Bread Line—Originated by Fleischmann, Broadway and 11th st., the celebrated baker, now deceased, who nightly, between the hours of 11 to 12, gives to hundreds of homeless men of this city the surplus breads. This custom, which was started during the life of the philanthropist, is still carried on.

Bridge of Sighs—Connects the Tombs Prison with the Criminal Court Building at Centre and Franklin streets, and derives its name from the fact that prisoners undergoing trial for crimes are taken over this bridge from the Tombs to the Criminal Court Building. On particular occasions when some especially notorious case is being tried the street is crowded with curious people watching for the going of the prisoner to and fro.

Carnegie Hall—57th st. and Seventh ave. Founded by Mr. Andrew Carnegie. Cost over $1,250,000. Formal opening on May 5th, 1891. One of the finest edifices in the world for concerts, lectures, conventions, etc.

Church of the Messiah—Park ave. and 34th st. This site once formed the estate of Robert Murray, the "Quaker Merchant of the Revolution," and was called "Inclenberg," and became historic through the diplomacy of Mrs. Murray in detaining the British officers, Clinton, Howe and Cornwallis, while Putnam and his troops, on their retreat to Harlem, guided by Aaron Burr, passed within a mile of the house.

Coenties Slip—Between Pearl street and the river, above Broad street, and received its name in honor of an influential Dutch shoemaker, whose shop once occupied a corner in this locality; here also stood the old Dutch City Hall, and is now called Jeannette Park, after the ship "Jeannette," sent to the Arctic regions by the "New York Herald."

Cotton Exchange—Located in Hanover Square. This is a large building of yellow brick, with stone facings and it is estimated that it cost $1,000,000. Spot sales of more than five hundred thousand bales of cotton are made during the year. On this site, November 8th, 1725, the first newspaper was printed in New York, and called the "New York Gazette." Tablet: Cotton Exchange—On this site William Bradford, appointed public printer, April 10th, A. D., 1693, issued, November 8th, 1725, "The New York Gazette," the first newspaper printed in New York. During the year 1900 the New York University received a gift of $100,000 for establishing a Hall of Fame to commemorate the names of preeminent Americans. The Ambulatory, or stone colonade half encircling the Memorial Library of the University was devoted for this purpose, and tablets are to be placed in it on which 150 names will be inscribed. Fifty of these names were selected in 1900 by a committee of 100 distinguished men, and five more every five years during the next century. Only 29 names received the required 51 votes from the committee in 1900 and the rest of the first 50 were selected in 1905. It can be reached by subway to Kingsbridge, and then a short walk across the Harlem River or by the Putnam Railroad, of the New York Central, from 155th st. and Eighth ave. to the University Heights Station. The Hall of Fame is situated on the New York University site, on University Heights. From it can be seen Washington Bridge, Highbridge, Manhattan on the south, the
